INTRODUCTION

Constitutions of the World is a unique publication consisting of 39 constitutions of the world. From Albania to the United States of America it covers a wide spectrum. There are constitutions whose texts run into hundreds of pages. At the same time there are others which are quite brief. For example, the Constitution of India is reputed to be the longest whereas the Constitution of the United States of America is the shortest. Barring a few, most of the constitutions included in this volume are framed in the post second world war period.

Constitutionalism is one of the most important theories of political science. It has a history of over two thousand years. The famous work of the Greek Philosopher Aristotle on Politics was the result of his year-long study on a large number of constitutions which existed in the Greek City States or Republics of his time. India too had similar republics which were in existence in the northern parts of the country more than two thousand years ago. It was perhaps true that the ideals of democratic Government and republican institutions were first conceived and practised a thousand years before Christ when the people of Mithila established the world's first Republic. Historical evidence indicates that in the days of Buddha or even earlier, certain types of democracy did flourish in parts of India. But the republics of those days were confined to small areas, tribes and clans and operated in highly decentralised manner. The system could not, however, withstand the pressure of monarchical ideas based on centralisation of power and republican institutions succumbed to their onslaught. What happened in Greece, Rome and West Asia was more or less the same pattern, small independent republics giving way to the territorial ambitions of Kings and Emperors. That position continued for centuries until the emergence of the United States of America as a republic with a written Constitution a little over two centuries ago.

Constitution defined

What is a Constitution? A Constitution is a set of laws and rules setting up the machinery of the Government of a State and which defines and determines the relations between the different institutions and areas of Government, the Executive, the Legislature and the Judiciary, the Central, the Regional and the Local Government. In fact, a Constitution is the source, the jurisprudential fountain head from which other laws must flow, succinctly and harmoniously.

The first well-known instance of a written Constitution was that of the United States of America which set up an original pattern, and which for its "brevity, restraint and simplicity" is universally hailed as a remarkable document. The makers of many other constitutions followed many of its provisions though not its brevity. The Constitution of India is one such document. It is said that the Constitution of India which is the longest of its kind, represents the political, economic and social ideals and aspirations of the vast majority of the Indian people of that time (1947-49) when the Constitution was framed. This is more or less true of all constitutions.

Napoleon once told Talleyrand, his leading political adviser, soon after establishing himself as the undisputed ruler of revolutionary France

"France must have a Constitution. It should be short, it should be clear."
To this the ingenious Frenchman, Talleyrand, countered "No Sire, it should be long and obscure!"

Most of the constitutions of the world follow the first advice of Talleyrand, they are almost invariably long. Until the breakup of the Ugoslavian Republic in the late nineties of the twentieth century, the Constitution of Ugoslavia with over four hundred articles had been the longest. That Constitution is no more in existence. Today the longest Constitution is that of India. The Constitution of India as it was originally passed had 395 Articles and nine Schedules, making it the longest.

The Constitution is the creation of a sovereign act. It is the result of extraordinary legislation direct from the people acting in their sovereign capacity enabling a government structure to be set up, laying down the methodology and extent of the distribution of its powers, the methods and principles of its operation as well as embracing the spirit of a nation. Ordinary laws (as distinct from those rights and duties enshrined in the Constitution) are enacted to meet certain contingency or certain situations or areas ('spheres of human interaction') whereas the Constitution is framed for ages to come and is designed to approach immortality as near as human institutions can approach [Madbury v Madison, (1803) 1 Cranch 137]. The supremacy of Constitution is undisputed and cannot be challenged in a court of law. Any law made by the legislature if repugnant to the Constitution will be void [Gompers v United States, (1914) 233 US 604 (610)].

The supremacy of the Constitution lies mostly in its indestructible nature. While being eternal the law enshrined in the constitution may have to adapt itself to the changing times. As illustrated by the celebrated American jurist Oliver Wendell Holmes, "The Constitution is not a document of fastidious dialectics, but means of ordering the life of a people. It is an organic growth" [Gompers v United State, (1914) 233 US 604 (610)].

While embarking upon the study of comparative constitutional law, the most important differential contrasts must be remembered. While a statute is a mere legislative enactment in the usual process of legislation, the Constitution is a constituent act forming the fundamental or organic law of the land to which all other laws made by legislature must conform. In the core of Kelsenian theory, the Constitution would be equivalent to the 'grund norm' or the basic rule. Hans Kelsen illustrated and emphasized this point (aspect) in his own writings. "The 'grund norm' (the Constitution) is not created by legal procedure or by a law creating organ. It is not as a positive legal norm valid, because it is created in a certain way by a legal act, but it is valid, because it is pre-supposed to be valid, and it is pre-supposed to be valid because without this pre supposition no human act could not be interpreted to be legal, specially as a norm-creating act. In other words, the validity of the Constitution generally lies in the social fact of its being accepted by the community and for the reasons that its 'norms' have become efficacious. Its validity is meta-legal' [Hans Kelsen, General Theory of Law and State] in countries where a written Constitution exists, it is approximately time to say the Constitution itself provides such a supreme norm [Stanley I. Benn, On the Uses of Sovereignty (Defence of Sovereignty) pp. 67, 70]. It is now universally accepted that the Constitution is, in every sense and circumstances, the supreme law, the law-makers being the people themselves in whom the residuum of political power and sovereignty resides [Hans Kelsen, General Theory of Law and State, p. 116].

What is the need for a Constitution?

Scholars and students of comparative constitutional law have attempted to answer this question in two ways. First, the answer probably along the lines of a social contract situation, the Constitution being the natural desire of a politically organized people to have enduring law - setting out the structure of the government of the nation and organizing governmental functions. This structuring and demarcation is essential for the stability of governance and the rule of law within a nation. Second, the new start by nations in the post-colonial era. Many people under colonial rule mandated to make a start de novo and structured a Constitution accordingly. An illustration in this respect can be traced to the Indian Constitutional history. On the peaceful transfer of power by the British Government to the Indian people under the Indian Independence Act, 1947, the Indian people who wanted to make a new and determined start, structured a Constitution and gave it unto themselves. Every country has aspirations which are particular and personal to its people, a distinctive tradition and culture as well as its own problems. As individualistic as the people, people of a nation would naturally desire a Constitution which would enable them to fulfill their aspirations. The law of the Constitution is and must be in all cases individually structured and engineered to be the supreme law of the State which is the Kelsen 'grund norm' to govern the life of the nation. The working of the Constitution, the way it adapts to future challenges would depend upon the thoughtful persistence of the people whose life it regulates. A Constitution must grow with the growth of the nation. A comparative study will reveal provisions in every Constitution for change and growth. Readers as they move along with the book will note both pros and cons, too rigid a Constitution which is unalterable by nature is as dangerous as one which is easily alterable. Not only constitutions themselves but the process by which they can be adapted require restructuring or moulding to changed circumstances. In the ultimate analysis, a Constitution must adapt itself to the changing need of the time [K.C. Wheare, Modern constitutions, pp. 98-99].

Constitutional obligations of the judiciary

A written Constitution is enabled by the judiciary which upholds the basic structure of the written draft. The basic tenets of the Constitution are upheld by the three organs of government each one acting independently of the other for the common good. The great Roman Orator, Cicero, said "the chief law is public good." This maxim summarizes the entire reason for the entrustment of certain powers to each one of the three separate wings of governance. For the purpose of the proper "implementation of the rule of law," the interpretation the judiciary makes has to be aligned with the basic structure of the Constitution.

Judicial creativity must fill the gap between the existing law and the law as it ought to be. The Constitution as the grund norm should be interpreted according to current societal standards. Complete justice or true justice must encompass within its morality and ethics. The interpretation of laws has to be purposive. This means the interpretation must subserve the object of the enactments of the law keeping in view the supreme law, the grund norm, the Constitution. Every law has to accord with the Constitution, otherwise it suffers the defect of invalidity or un-constitutionality and, therefore, even while constructing statute law, one must always bear in mind the provisions of the Constitution, the constitutional goals and the constitutional purpose which is sought to be achieved.

The basic and integral scheme of separation of powers requires conferment of the power of judicial review in the judiciary. That is an acknowledged basic aspect of (world) constitutions and constitutionality. Judicial review, as originally conceived, is generally understood to emanate from the judgment of Chief Justice Marshall in the American Supreme Court in Marbury v. Madison in the year 1803. It was strongly resented by the other wings. Nevertheless, it had been forgotten that two centuries before Chief Justice Marshall it was Lord Coke who had said the same thing in Dr. Bonham's case. Now it is an acknowledged basic feature of the Constitution. That is the significance of the role of the judiciary envisaged by constitutions across the globe.

It is expected that the judiciary would keep everyone within the bounds indicated by the Constitution. But the bounds are equally applicable to the judiciary itself and the Constitution has entrusted the judiciary with the additional task of not merely keeping everyone else within bounds, but also remaining within bounds. The judiciary is empowered to perform certain functions and discharges only a delegated function. A delegate can never claim to be superior than the principal. Also for achieving the purpose of ensuring socio-economic justice by enabling constitutional mechanisms, proper access to the courts is important. The requirement is speedy justice, an area in which the constitutions of the world have some serious thinking to do.

The powers which are constitutionally delegated to the judiciary, are not provisions meant for personal aggrandizement. They are meant to subserve the constitutional purpose and to uphold the majesty of the law. True respect, lasting admiration and justification for being placed at the highest level has to be earned by the people. It is not to be exhorted from them by instilling the fear of the contempt power. Lord Denning said, in the year 1968, that respect for judge must rest on surer foundations than mere exercise of the contempt power. The contempt power is there to keep in check the recalcitrant, to punish the incorrigible and the adamant only for the purpose of upholding the majesty of the law and not for the judge's [personal majesty]

While studying comparative constitutional law, no one doubts that the independence of the judiciary is a must. It is essential for the proper administration of justice. Care has to be taken in constitutions worldwide to ensure independence of the judiciary.

The full import or meaning of the expression independence of the judiciary is often not realized. There are many facets to it. Independence of the judiciary does not mean merely independence from outside influences, but also from those within. "Be you ever so high, the law is above you". The judiciary has to remember that this is not meant only for others. It applies equally to the judiciary with the added responsibility which one has of implementing it on themselves. Failure to do so would result in the erosion of credibility and the independence of the judiciary. The only cure is the one envisaged by the constitutions the world over, accountability to the same law, accountable to the same standards set up for others.

Constitutions would have to perfect in-house procedures for the higher judiciary. Unaccountability is not the order of any Constitution. It is an antithesis to basic democracy and fundamental democratic principles, and therefore, for the preservation of the independence of the judiciary it is necessary to ensure judicial accountability at all levels.

The written Constitution. Analysing content: freedom and equality

In countries which have written constitutions, such as the United States, Canada, Australia or India, judicial decisions are to play a vital role in the interpretation of constitutional law. Particularly, the US judiciary has shown the way. In the USA, the Federal Supreme Court is the ultimate arbiter in cases relating to the interpretation of the Constitution. So, Justice Holmes has said: "The provisions of the Constitution are not mathematical formulas having their essence in the form, they are organic living institutions transplanted from English soil. Their significance is vital, not formal, it is to be gathered not simply by taking the words and dictionary, but considering their origin and the line of their growth."<sup>1</sup>

The capacity for growth is inherent in a flexible Constitution like that of England. The principles of the British Constitution which is largely unwritten and embedded in customs and conventions, have no rigidity about them. Dicey gives a classic exposition of conventions. He writes that the conventional element is as large as the English Constitution. By convention what is meant is binding rule, a rule of behaviour accepted as obligatory by those concerned in the working of the Constitution.<sup>2</sup> Broadly speaking, conventions are the rules for determining the mode on which the discretionary powers of the Crown (or of Ministers as servants of the Crown) ought to be exercised.<sup>3</sup> The court can neither enforce conventions nor can it give relief in the case of breach of convention. It is the weight of public opinion which decides the matter in such cases. The judiciary has nothing to do about it. The peculiar fact about England is, as Wheare observes that after 1968, the doctrine of sovereign Parliament ruled out any possibility of a Constitution which could control the legislature.<sup>1</sup> As Sir Ivor Jennings tersely puts it, "the supremacy of the Parliament is the Constitution." It is recognised a fundamental law just as a written constitution is recognised as fundamental law. Various public authorities – the Crown, the Houses of Parliament, the courts, the administrative authorities have powers and duties. Some are traditional and some are determined by common law.<sup>2</sup> It is now established that a statute enacted by Parliament has an absolute authority and has a binding force for the whole realm unless and until it is repealed by Parliament itself. The validity of British statutes cannot be questioned by courts. Parliament being supreme, no Act passed by it is subject to judicial review nor can its validity be questioned. If a mistake has been made, says Lord Hannon, "the legislature can alone correct it. The courts of law cannot sit in judgment on the legislature, but must obey and give effect to its determination."<sup>3</sup> In contrast to England, the judiciary of those democratic countries which have written Constitution can invalidate any law made by Parliament on ground of its being repugnant to the Constitution. The Supreme Court is the ultimate arbiter of cases relating to interpretation of the Constitution. There is, therefore, a clear distinction between the constitutional law and the rest of the law in such countries, but where there is no written Constitution, for example, in England, no such distinction is maintained. There is no fundamental law in England, that is to say, there is no constitutional law in the technical sense of the term.

To sum up, "Constitutional law" whether written or unwritten may be described as the fundamental principles or the basal elements which determine the State's organization and functions. In other words, the structure of the Government, division of powers, organs and methods of their function pertain to constitutional law. The primary function of constitutional law, according to Holland is to ascertain the political centre of gravity of any given State.<sup>4</sup> Constitutional Law, therefore, stands on a different footing as compared to statute law. As already stated, it is an extraordinary legislation emanating directly from the people acting in a sovereign capacity. A statute law is the creation of the representatives of the people in their capacity as legislators. Statute laws are in the nature of temporary expedients, but constitutional law is of a permanent nature.

Problem of interpretation

The problem of constitutional interpretation has little significance in England, the oldest of democracies, as no Constitution exists there in a technical sense. The English Constitution is largely unwritten and has been evolved over hundreds of years through various enactments, conventions, rules and precedents. Various rules of statutory interpretation have evolved in England during the last two centuries. Most of the rules speak of literal interpretation of the words in a statute as the safest rule. In all ordinary cases, as observed by Salmond, the courts must be content to accept the litera legis. Ita scripta est (literal interpretation of the script) is the first principle of interpretation.<sup>1</sup> Judges are not at liberty to add or to take from or modify the letter of the law, simply because they have reason to believe that the true sententia legis is not completely or correctly expressed by it.<sup>2</sup>

The literal interpretation of a statute is the normal rule and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has uniformly applied this rule in interpreting the constitutions of some of the Commonwealth countries such as Canada<sup>3</sup> or Australia.<sup>4</sup> It is obvious from various decisions of the English Courts that they are averse to going beyond the literal rule. Since our legal system in India is based on the English system and the Judges of the Indian High Courts and the Supreme Court, trained as they are in the English legal system, have been following the method adopted by the English Judges in interpreting statutes. When our Constitution came into existence, our Judges did not swerve from the trodden way the Privy Council or the English courts had shown. In Gopalan v. State of Madras, AIR 1950 SC 27 (the first case that came before the Supreme Court after the Constitution had come into force), the court gave a most mechanical interpretation to Arts. 21 and 22 of the Constitution. The technique of interpretation adopted by the Judges was one which is normally applied to penal or taxing statutes. Personal liberty which is the most valuable right to every citizen and which is the key theme of Art. 21 received a very narrow interpretation in Gopalan's case (supra). In criticizing this attitude, D.D. Basu said in his Tagore Law Lectures on the subject, namely, Limited Government and Judicial Review, thus: "Generally trained in the British legal system based mostly on common law traditions, the Indian Judges had little experience of broad perspective of constitutional law. The Constitution Act of 1935 mostly occupied their minds which had little scope for judicial review and could be interpreted like any other statute. The Privy Council's decisions which were binding on our courts till then, had not lost their grip over our judges and they could not shake off this mentality when faced with constitutional problems."<sup>5</sup>

What Mc Whinney, an American critic has said about the attitude of the English Judges towards constitutional matters apply besittingly to our Judges trained in the English system of law. Thus he says "The story is one of a cramped, fettering approach on the part of the Judges who have devoted most of their professional lives to the final determination of private law cases and are suddenly confronted for the first time with broad policy problems inherent in the adjudication of constitutional law. Their approach has been to treat the constitutions in question as ordinary statutes only, and to subject them to the same restrictive canons of construction normally applied by the common law Judges to the interpretation of statute law."<sup>1</sup>

The cardinal rule of interpretation of the Constitution as enunciated and reiterated by the Supreme Court of India was that the words should be read in their ordinary, natural and grammatical meaning. Even in Keshavananda Bharati case<sup>2</sup> decided in 1973, Sikri, CJ said that the well-settled principle of construction of the language of the Constitution is to preclude the import of political justice or social concepts into the language of the Constitution to be interpreted.

To speak candidly, no standard of constitutional interpretation has been set up by our Supreme Court. Different Judges have different notions, but the main trend is that of grammatical interpretation, being the safest rule. In some cases, though some Judges are found to be enthused with the oft-quoted dicta of Chief Justice Marshall of the U.S. Supreme Court that "we must not forget that it is a Constitution we are expounding – a Constitution which is to endure for ages and consequently to be adopted to the various crises of human affairs"<sup>3</sup> but, in reality, Marshallian approach to the interpretation of the Constitution was confined only to high-sounding words of some Judges.<sup>4</sup> The very cautious approach of our Judges in the matter of constitutional interpretation reminds us of the dead weight of the British legacy which our Judges have not been able to shake off. The Marshallian doctrine of constitutional interpretation, therefore, remains a matter of citation and not a matter of practical application.

In this context, it is worthwhile to remember that the U.S. Supreme Court Judges had never been hesitant to play a creative role in the 4 Krishna Iyer, J. In his usual flourish and verbal dexterity made the following observations in Shamsber Singh v State of Punjab, AIR 1974 SC 2192 (paras 151-153)

"In spite of the limited task assigned to the Court, our activism is – interpretation must not be bogged down by logomachy or blinkered by legalism, but be aglow with the insightful observations of Marshall, CJ, Supreme Court of the United States. Therefore, not the terminological façade of euphemism, but the underlying reality of government by the people must be our lodestar as we search for the true semantics of terms of art used in the Great Charter" interpretation of the U.S. Constitution. In the words of Chief Justice Hughes', 'We are under a Constitution but the Constitution is what the Judges say it is'. It is an undisputed fact that the Supreme Court of the United States never confined itself to the literal interpretation of Constitutional words and phrases. If it were so, then the U.S. Constitution which was framed in the "horse-and-buggy" days<sup>1</sup> would have become quite useless for the machine age and would have found a cold burial in the National Archives and as President Jefferson advocated, a revised Constitution would have taken the place of the old one after about every twenty years'. Both the Judiciary and the Executive in the United States were aware of the sanctity and permanent nature of the Constitution and imbued with this spirit, the U.S. Judiciary started interpreting the Constitution in such a way as to uphold and maintain its spirit in spite of its language and the Executive refrained from amending the Constitution at every whiff of the wind as has been in India. Our Judiciary started interpreting the Constitution as if it were an ordinary statute and impatient with the judgments that did not suit the convenience of the Executive Government, the Constitution was subjected to unthought-of and unwarranted amending process.

The American Judges have given to the American Constitution made in the "horse-and-buggy" days a touch of dynamism of the machine age by their interpretative process. Otherwise it would have been difficult for the nation to cope with the problems arising out of the industrial and commercial revolution of which the Constitution-makers could not dream at the time of framing the Constitution. So when Chief Justice Marshall declared: 'We must never forget that this is a Constitution we are expounding', he was uttering the truth, because if the Constitution be regarded as a living and organic instrument and is intended to endure for ages to come, then it must be adapted to the various crises of human affairs."<sup>2</sup>

What Roscoe Pound, the famous Dean of the Harvard Law School, has said in this connection appears relevant to the point. Says he in his inimitable style "The Constitution is not a glorified Police Manual; constitutional provisions lay down great principles to be applied as starting points for legal and political reasoning in the progress of society... the principles established by the Constitution are not to be interpreted and applied strictly according to the literal meaning of words used by the framers of the Constitution as if they have laid down rules. Interpretation of constitutional principles is a matter of reasoned application of rational precepts of conditions of time and place."<sup>3</sup>

It is clear, therefore, that the Constitution by its very nature does not permit of too much of literal construction being given to it. Justice Holmes of the U S Supreme Court sounded this note of caution many times in his learned judgments Constitutional law, he says, cannot be expounded with the aid of a dictionary In ascertaining the meaning of words used in a Constitution, their origin and line of growth must be kept in view The provisions of the Constitution are not to be taken as mathematical formulas having their essence in their form Their significance is vital and not formal <sup>1</sup> On another occasion he stated that "some play must be allowed for the joints of the machine", meaning thereby that a formalistic and rigid interpretation should not be given to constitutional provisions <sup>2</sup>

On the creative role of the U S Supreme Court, an Indian jurist in one of his lectures at the Stanford University, United States, 1956, stated that the effect of amending the Constitution every now and then would have been damaging to the national life What, therefore, the nation did was to place its entire faith in the adaptability of the Constitution through judicial interpretation Formal changes to the Constitution by way of amendments have been few But the wide judicial interpretation by the Supreme Court of the broad power of the Federal Government like the commerce power, taxing, spending and war powers has largely met the needs of the growing nation <sup>3</sup>

The Supreme Court of the United States, as observed by Justice Frankfurter, has done a great deal of law-making during the first hundred years <sup>4</sup> In contrast to this, what our Supreme Court did when it was confronted with the problem of Constitutional interpretation during the first several years after our Constitution came into existence was that it started interpreting the Constitution as if it were an ordinary statute The result was ominous When the Government found that the desired reforms could not be made possible because of the obstacles put by the judiciary by its interpretation of the Constitution, it also found a way to counteract the judgments of the Supreme Court by amending the relevant provision or provisions of the Constitution To speak the truth, neither the Judiciary nor the Government had any abiding faith in the adaptability of our Constitution to various crises of human affairs Amendments after amendments have poured in only with a view to negating the Supreme Court decisions In this respect what Hidayatullah, J said in Golaknath case<sup>5</sup> was nothing but the truth "In our country", he says, "amendments so far have been made only with the object of negating the Supreme Court decisions In this battle royal between the Judiciary and Executive, if anything has suffered badly, it is the Constitution itself And the prestige of the Supreme Court nonetheless The Forty-second Amendment to the Constitution was the climax It may be called

Literal and Liberal Interpretation Contrasting and Perfecting Constitutional Interpretation – (a) Literal interpretation – Meaning and scope of the rule

The doctrine of literal interpretation as enunciated by the English Judges in the interpretation of English statutes came to be adopted by the Indian Judges. The Privy Council being the highest Tribunal of appeal its interpretation of statutes was binding upon the Indian Courts. The literal rule of interpretation has uniformly been followed by the Privy Council and this came as a legacy to the Indian Courts. The Law Lords like Lord Brougham, Lord Ellenborough, Lord Esher, M.R., Lord Denham, Lord Parker, Viscount Simon, L.C. – all advocated the doctrine of literalness, that is, literal interpretation of statutes. The gist of the rule enunciated by them is that "the rule of law upon which the construction of all statutes is based is to construe them according to the plain, literal and grammatical meaning of the words" [Att – General v. Lockwood, (1842) 9 M&W 378(398) (per Alderson, B.)]. The golden rule is that the words of a statute must prima facie be given their ordinary meaning [Noakes v Doncaster Collieries Ltd., (1910) 3 All ER 549 (HL) (per Viscount, Simon L.C.)]. Where the literal reading of the statute produces an intelligible result, there is no ground for reading in words or challenging words according to what may be the supposed intention [R v Oakes, (1959) 2 QB 350 (per Lord Parker, C.J.)]. The literal rule of interpretation is a rule of common sense as strong as can be [Doe v Joseph, (1810) 12 East 288 (292) (per Lord Ellenborough)]. Even if the language used in a statute is incapable of a meaning we cannot supply one [Green v Wood, (1845) 7 QB 178 (185) (per Lord Denham, C.J.)]. The true way is to take the words as the Legislature has given them and to take the meaning which the words given naturally imply. [Crauford v Spooner, (1846) 6 Moore PC 19 (per Lord Brougham)].

Our Judges have uniformly followed the English Judges in interpreting statutes and they have extended the principle of statutory construction to the interpretation of the Constitution. The great authorities in the field of interpretation of English law are Maxwell, the author of the Interpretation of Statutes and Craies, the author of Statute Law. The Indian Judges often quote from these two English authorities to support their views not only in interpreting statutes, but even when they are required to interpret the Constitution.

According to Maxwell, the first requirement of literal interpretation is that the words and phrases of technical legislation are to be used in their technical meaning if they have acquired one, otherwise in their ordinary meaning, and secondly, the phrases and sentences are to be construed according to the rules of grammar.<sup>1</sup>

According to Craies, the language of the Acts of Parliament and more specially of modern Acts, must either be extended beyond its natural and proper limits in order to supply omissions or defects, not strained to meet justice of individual cases.<sup>2</sup>

True to the tradition of literal interpretation, our Supreme Court has declared in unequivocal terms that it is the safe rule, because the spirit of the law is an elusive and unsafe guide.<sup>3</sup> Ordinarily, it is not the function of the courts to go beyond the plain meaning and to busy themselves with the supposed intention when the meaning of the words is plain.<sup>4</sup> The court has only to ascertain the precise connotation of the expression which it possesses in law.<sup>5</sup> In Keshav Chandra Mandal's case<sup>6</sup> the Supreme Court held the similar view as expressed by the Privy Council in Pakala Narayanaswami case.<sup>7</sup> More than once our Supreme Court has given expression to this view that the fundamental rule of construction is to find out the intention of the legislature from the words used in the statute.<sup>8</sup> If the literal construction leads to no apparent absurdity, there can be no compelling reason for departing from that golden rule of construction.<sup>9</sup> If the intention of the legislature is plain and clear, the court must not adopt any hypothetical construction on the ground that it is more consistent with the alleged object of the Act.<sup>10</sup> In coming to such conclusion, our Supreme Court must have been influenced by the famous dictum of Lord Dunedin, viz, "Express enactment shuts the door to further implication."<sup>11</sup>

In the interpretation of a statute, as observed by the Supreme Court, the courts always presume that the legislatures inserted every part thereof for a purpose and the legislative intention is that every part of the statute should have effect.<sup>12</sup> It is not a sound principle of construction to brush aside words in a statute as being inapposite surplusage if they can have appropriate application in circumstances conceivably within the contemplation of the statute.<sup>13</sup>

In Golaknath v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 161, Subba Rao, C.J. states at p. 1655 that the 'preamble' contains in a nutshell its ideals and aspirations. And in view of this noble preamble setting up the ideals of the governance of the country for welfare of the people, the duty of the courts should be, while interpreting constitutional provisions concerning the liberty and freedom of the people and economic justice, always to remember that they are expounding a Constitution and not an ordinary statute. The 'spirit of the Constitution' as embodied in its 'preamble' must be maintained by the courts in their interpretation of the provisions of the Constitution.

The value of the 'preamble' in interpreting the enacted part of a statute has been explained by Lord Halsbury in Pouell v. Kington Park Race Course Co., (1899) AC 143 (153) as follows:

"Two propositions are quite clear: one, that a preamble may afford usual light as to what the statute stands to reach, and another, that if an enactment is itself clear and unambiguous, no preamble can qualify or cut down the enactment."

Our Supreme Court has taken its cue from Lord Halsbury's dicta. In the Reference by the President of India under Art. 143(1) AIR 1960 SC 845, the Supreme Court laid down that the value of the 'preamble' to the present Constitution is the same.

This unequivocally means that the Supreme Court does not like to give a greater importance to the 'preamble' to our Constitution than a preamble to an ordinary enactment. It is this attitude that prompted our Judges to give statutory interpretation to the Constitution from the beginning and this has created many anomalies in constitutional interpretation and prevented the Supreme Court itself from building up a series of coherent case laws arising out of constitutional cases. Sometimes, there is an attempt on the part of some Judges to come out of the shell of statutory interpretation and to approach the Constitution with a wider outlook, but often and again we find a volte face among them. The provisions of the Constitution must be interpreted against their broad perspective and not in a narrow and pedantic sense. Lord Wright in James v. Commonwealth of Australia, (1936) AC 578 (614) has stated the following words:

"That a Constitution must not be construed in any narrow or pedantic sense."

Although broadly agreeing with this view, our Supreme Court laid the principles in Customs Act, sec. 20(2), in re: AIR 1963 SC 1760 as follows.

"While a broad and liberal spirit should inspire those whose duty it is to interpret the Constitution, it is equally important that the well-established rules of interpretation must not be disregarded. The Constitution must be interpreted by reference to its terms and those alone, nothing is to be read into it on grounds of some supposed spirit pervading the Constitution, or on the ground of policy or even for the purpose of supplying omissions or of correcting errors."

These principles are merely a repetition of what the Supreme Court said in Gopalan's case (supra) over a decade earlier.

True, it is laid down in Art 367 of the Constitution that the General Clauses Act 1897 shall, subject to any adaptations and modifications as may be made therein under Art 372 apply to the interpretation of the Constitution<sup>1</sup>, it does not follow therefrom that the Court is bound strictly by the rule of grammatical interpretation. It only means that the words and phrases as defined by the General Clauses Act would equally apply to the interpretation of the Constitution. It is not an invariable rule of construction that the meaning of terms and phrases as given by the General Clauses Act shall have to be slavishly followed, if in the context, or in view of the changing needs of the time, an extended or wider meaning of the term is warranted to effectuate the purpose of the provision. To arrive at the real intention which actuated the enactment of the provision, as Story points out in commentaries on the U S Constitution, words are not to be read in vacuo, but must be considered in their historical setting and context.<sup>2</sup>

The learned members of the Drafting Committee who framed the Constitution and those learned members who passed the Constitution after close scrutiny of each word, phrase and clause and even of punctuation mark felt the need for liberal construction of the provisions of the Constitution. Thus, Alladi Krishnaswamy Aiyar voiced the feelings of the House

"It is to be borne in mind that the Constitution is an instrument under which all laws are made, and this consideration should rather impel the Court to interpret the constitutional provisions more liberally."<sup>3</sup>

But the Supreme Court stated expressly in Gopalan's case (supra) that it was not bound by any comments or observations made by any member of the Constituent Assembly. It was bound to interpret any provision of the Constitution according to the plain meaning of the language itself.<sup>4</sup>

The utmost the Supreme Court could do has been expressed in Navinchand Mafatlal's case, where it observes that the cardinal rule of interpretation of the Constitution is that the words should be read in their ordinary, natural and grammatical meaning subject to the condition that in construing words in a constitutional enactment conferring legislative power, the most liberal construction should be put upon the words so that the same may have effect in their widest amplitude. But still a restricted meaning is not altogether excluded if it is necessary to avoid a conflict between two exclusive jurisdictions.<sup>5</sup>

LIBERAL INTERPRETATION - Its scope and application

Lord Denning may be called the precursor of liberal interpretation in England if by liberal interpretation is meant a purposeful interpretation given to words or phrases of a statute by looking into the spirit of the enactment "We sit here" said Denning, I J. in 1950 (as his Lordship then was) to find out the intention of Parliament and of Ministers and carry it out and we do it better by filling in the gaps and making sense of the enactment than by opening it up to destructive analysis".<sup>1</sup> This view of Denning, I J. was not approved by the House of Lords in appeal from the case. "If a gap is disclosed", said Lord Simonds in reply to the statement of Denning, I J., in the Court of Appeal "the remedy lies in the Amending Act".<sup>2</sup>

It is a general rule of statutory construction in England that if there is a mistake or a gap in the statute, it is not for the Judge to make it good by his interpretation but leave it to the legislature to rectify the defect by an amending Act.

Between these two extremes, however,—one emphasising the literal aspect and the other emphasising the purpose aspect—it is difficult to evolve a simple compromise formula. But by and large it has gradually been recognised even in England that when any problem arises, the Judges are not to sit helpless with their hands folded, but arrive at a reasonable conclusion through interpretative process. Lord Cairns said a century ago that the primary duty of the Judge, however, is to find out the intention of the legislature through the medium of written words. But if this fails to give effect to the intention of the legislature, it is entirely left to the Judges to go beyond the written words.<sup>3</sup>

Learned Hand, J. of the U.S. Federal Court declared that statutes should be construed not as theorems of Euclid, but with imagination of purpose behind them.<sup>4</sup> In this paper "On the Spirit of Liberty" Learned Hand said: "A Judge is in a contradictory position, he is pulled by opposite forces. On the one hand, he must try as best as he can, to put into the concrete form the common will expressed by the legislature. On the other hand, he must try as best as he can to put into the concrete form what the 'will' is, not merely by slavishly following the words but also by trying honestly to say what was the underlying purpose expressed".<sup>5</sup>

The doctrine of literalness though acclaimed as the safest rule by great English authorities (as mentioned in the earlier section) does not prove to be always so. In such circumstances, the court is to look beyond the verbal expression of the law and look into the purpose and, more precisely, into the object of the law behind the written words. To use the language of Sir Carleton Allen, "the court sometimes finds itself in a peculiar position insofar as it relates to the finding out of the legislative intention through the written words which if literally interpreted would defeat the very purpose of the statute<sup>1</sup> In such circumstances courts cannot sit dumb and mute, they must correct and supplement the defective sententia legis as well as the defective littera legis. Where there is a genuine and perfect intention lying behind the defective text, the courts must ascertain and give effect to the intention, which the legislature presumably would have had, if the ambiguity or omission had been called to mind. This may be regarded as the dormant or latent intention of the legislature and it is this which must be sought for as a substitute in the absence of any real or any conscious intention<sup>2</sup>

In spite of the greater emphasis on literal interpretation of statutes, the doctrine of liberal interpretation of statutes was not entirely ruled out even in England. Liberal interpretation does not, of course, mean that each and every word or phrase of a provision in a statute should be given a wide connotation. Liberal interpretation virtually means going beyond the dictionary meaning of the term if it so warrants for giving effect to the purpose of the enactment in question. Prima facie, the words are mere expressions of one's thought. If by the wrong use of words, it appears that the main object of the statute is likely to be crippled or changed, it is the duty of the court to give them a purposeful meaning without, of course, changing the law. Having regard to the object of the statute, departure from the strict letter is justified by the great inconvenience which would have resulted from a rigid adherence to it. "The canons of construction", says Lord Reid, "are not so rigid as to prevent a realistic solution"<sup>3</sup>

The rule as enunciated by Maxwell, a leading authority on the interpretation of statutes, is that just as the court will occasionally fill omissions, so it will sometimes – contrary to the general principle that effect must be given to every word in a statute – read a section and while doing so, ignore certain words<sup>4</sup>. Similarly, where the sense of the statute demands it, or where there has been an obvious mistake in drafting, the court will be prepared to substitute another word or phrase for that which actually appears in the text. Two instances of substitution are particularly important. They concern the conjunctions 'and' or 'or' and the verbs 'may' or 'must'<sup>5</sup>. Our Supreme Court has followed this rule of substitution in certain cases<sup>6</sup>.

Now, if the rigidity of statutory construction can be relaxed, then, no question should arise in the case of interpretation of constitutional provisions. To achieve the objectives of the Constitution which are broad-based on the will of the people who have enacted and adopted the Constitution through their representatives in the Constituent Assembly, the words and phrases in the Constitution cannot be construed too rigidly to defeat the purpose of the provision "The soul of the Constitution" as Justice Frankfurter of the U.S. Supreme Court has aptly put it, differ profoundly from ordinary law. The dominant issues of Supreme Court litigation (on constitutional law) and consequences of their adjudications are not those of the familiar law suits between John Doe and Richard Roe.<sup>1</sup>

Though expressly it is no function of the Judges to make laws, in fact in the sphere of interpreting statutes and particularly the Constitution this theory has little value inasmuch as the words like 'liberty', 'property' and phrases like 'regulate commerce', 'war-power' etc. have received the widest possible judicial construction at the hands of U.S. Supreme Court Judges because literal construction would have defeated the purpose for which the Constitution stands.<sup>2</sup> For example, even prior to the First Amendment Act to the U.S. Constitution, the U.S. Supreme Court gave a meaning to the word 'liberty' to ensure freedom of speech etc. The Australian High Court too, even in the absence of a Bill of Rights in its Constitution, while interpreting defence power of the Commonwealth has spelled out what should be the real scope of freedom of speech and association.<sup>3</sup> In the same manner, the Supreme Court of Canada played a vital role in establishing certain natural rights not dependent on civil law, which cannot be infringed by the legislature.<sup>4</sup>

Liberal interpretation is opposed to narrow and restricted interpretation. Constitutional law being the Supreme law of the land must not be equated with statute law which is the creation of the legislature and which must conform to constitutional law if it is to exist at all. If this is so, then how could the same principle of construction applicable to statute law be applied to constitutional law? Constitutional words and phrases should receive a broader and wider interpretation for the achievement of its social, economic and political mission.

The concept of liberal interpretation was not unknown to our Judges even at the earlier stage of constitutional interpretation. In some areas, the Supreme Court showed a tendency towards liberal construction of constitutional provisions. For example, in construing Art 29(1) of the Constitution, the Supreme Court held that "the right to conserve the language of the citizens" includes "the right to agitate for the language". Therefore, political agitation for conservation of the language of a section of a community cannot be regarded as a corrupt practice within the meaning of sec 123 (1) of the Representation of the People Act. Unlike Art 19(1), Art 29(1) is not subject to any restriction.<sup>5</sup>

Two other earlier decisions on the liberty of press may be cited as examples of liberal interpretation to Art 19(1) (a) of the Constitution. In Brij Bhushan's case, it was held by the Supreme Court that the imposition of pre-censorship on publication of the newspaper was an unreasonable restriction unless justified by clause (2) of Art 19 as violative of freedom of speech and expression. There can be little doubt that the imposition of pre-censorship on a journal is a restriction on the liberty of the press which is an essential part of the freedom of speech and expression as declared by Art 19(1) (a) of the Constitution.<sup>1</sup> Freedom of speech was also given a wide interpretation in Romesh Thappar's case. The Supreme Court held that freedom of speech also included propagation of ideas and the freedom could be maintained only by the freedom of circulation of the paper.<sup>2</sup>

In Sbolapur Spg And Wvg Co's case, it was held by the majority of Judges that Art 31 which defines a right must be construed as granting a right to persons and not as impliedly giving the State a right to exercise "police power". The Article, as held by the Supreme Court must be construed liberally and not narrowly and literally.<sup>3</sup>

Again, the Supreme Court upheld the Bombay High Court's decision on the question that civil rights and liberties of a citizen were in no way to be curtailed by the order of detention to carry on his activities.<sup>4</sup>

In another case decided in 1965, the Supreme Court held that legislative exercise directed towards distributive justice cannot be considered in the light of a dated value-system though sanctified by the by-gone decisions of the Court.<sup>5</sup> The word 'control' in Art 235 of the Constitution has also received a wide construction including disciplinary control of the High Court over the subordinate courts.<sup>6</sup> A wide meaning was given to the word 'control' with reference to the words, 'posting', 'promotion', 'grant of leave', etc found in immediate connection with the word 'control' used in the Article.<sup>7</sup> Again in Art 276, the expression 'taxes on professions, trades, callings, and employments' was interpreted by the Supreme Court to include "services". It was held that a person in service was, therefore, liable to professional tax, even though he had been paying income tax.<sup>8</sup>

The Supreme Court in Kraipak's case<sup>9</sup> has extended the scope of "natural justice" to include administrative acts. In other words, if administrative acts are discriminatory, they can be challenged in a proceeding under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

In defining the term 'religious denomination', the Supreme Court extended the ambit of the term to include a sect or sphere of religious activity. Accordingly, it has been held that the Roman Catholic Mission is a religious denomination.<sup>1</sup> Similarly, a 'monastery or spiritual fraternity' may be said to be a denomination.<sup>2</sup> It can legitimately come within the purview of Art. 26 of the Constitution.<sup>3</sup>

In interpreting Art. 16 of the Constitution, the Supreme Court gave a new dimension to the word 'appointment' in the case of Rangachari, the term 'appointment' was held to include 'selection' or 'selection posts'.<sup>4</sup> In later cases, the expression 'matters relating to employment or appointment' was interpreted in its widest amplitude to cover selection, matters in relation to employment or appointment, which are ancillary to employment, such as salary, increment, leave, gratuity, pension and superannuation, promotion and even termination of employment.<sup>5</sup> The term 'appointment' has also been interpreted to comprehend 'employment or retirement'.<sup>6</sup> In interpreting Art. 16(1) of the Constitution, a quite liberal interpretation to this provision has been given by the Supreme Court per Chinnappa Reddy, J. who went the length of saying that Art. 16(1) was not in the nature of exception (as held in earlier cases), but a facet of Art. 16(1) of the Constitution.<sup>7</sup>

Another liberal interpretation has been given by the Supreme Court to the equality clauses of the Constitution in a case decided in 1982, where the Supreme Court while interpreting Arts. 14 and 16 in the light of the Preamble and Art. 39(d) held that "equal pay for equal work" could be deduced from these Articles though specifically it was not provided in those Articles, and this may be applied to cases of unequal scales of pay based on no classification or on irrational classification though those drawing the different scales of pay do identical work under the same employer."

In another field, i.e., in interpreting social welfare legislation the Supreme Court showed maximum possible liberalism. In State of Mysore v. Workers of Gold Mines, Gayendragadkar, J. (as he then was) observed that social and economic justice have been given a place of pride in our Constitution. By quoting Arts. 38 and 43 of the Constitution his Lordship then remarked that the concept of social and economic justice is a living concept of revolutionary import which gives substance to the rule of law and meaning and significance to the welfare State.<sup>8</sup> In a later case the Supreme Court reiterated the earlier view stating that the concept of social justice is not narrow, one sided or pedantic or confined to industrial adjudication alone,<sup>1</sup> but its sweep is comprehensive and within the broad sweep of these terms "justice and equality", and this court has, therefore, to consider the jural relations existing between the worker and the employer, the landlord and the tenant, the producer and the consumer and between the members of the society connected by fiduciary relations<sup>2</sup>

This indeed is a tall promise, but this remains to be translated into action

In recent years, no doubt, there is a marked tendency among the judges to ensure social and economic justice to the weaker sections of the community. The Directive Principles which were totally ignored earlier in view of the fact that they are not justiciable, are now looked into and considered for interpreting statutes as well as other provisions of the Constitution as and when necessary. The Directive Principles have now become a source of inspiration to our Judges. Of course, all our Judges in the Supreme Court are not equally inspired by the same ideal. We find two trends still at work at the Supreme Court. One, adherence to traditional method of legalistic approach to the constitutional problems and the other is the tendency to break away from the tradition. The result is that we have many conflicting decisions and dissenting judgements.

PROGRESSIVE INTERPRETATION

It is an admitted fact that a Constitution is not to be interpreted just like an ordinary statute. Being the organic law, it must be interpreted in its broader perspective. If the Constitution is to guide the destiny of the people, it must be adapted to the changing needs of time through the process of construction and not by the amending process as and when the ruling party wants to do so. The U.S. Supreme Court showed the way as to how the Constitution could be adapted to various crises of human affairs. In dealing with the words of a constituent act like the Constitution of the United States, as observed by Justice Holmes, it must be realised that they (Constitution-makers) have called into life being, the development of which could not have been foreseen, so the case before us must be considered in the light of our whole experience and not merely in that of what was said a hundred years ago<sup>3</sup>.

Thus emerged the concept of what may be termed as "progressive interpretation". Chief Justice Hughes of the U.S. Supreme Court in interpreting sec. 10 of Art. 1 which provides that "the State shall not make any law impairing the obligation of contract" held that "not only are existing laws read into contracts in order to fix obligation as between the parties, but the reservation of essential attributes of sovereign power is also read into the contracts as a postulate of that legal order. The principle of harmonizing the constitutional prohibition with the necessary residuum of State power has had progressive recognition in the decision of this Court. In short the law from which the obligation stems must be understood to include constitutional law and, moreover, a progressive constitutional law.<sup>1</sup>

It is true that the Founding Fathers of the U.S. Constitution could not envisage the crisis that would come over certain States in the distant future and so it was left to the Court to interpret the contract clause of the Constitution in the light of the economic change that came over the country in 1933. So applying the doctrine of progressive interpretation Chief Justice Hughes said

"It is no answer to say that the public need was not apprehended a century ago or to insist that what the provision of the Constitution meant to the vision of that day it must mean to the vision of our time. If by the statement that what the constitution meant at the time of its adoption it means today, it is intended to say that the great clauses of the Constitution must be confined to the interpretation which the framers with the conditions and outlook of their time and have placed upon them, the statement carries its own refutation."<sup>2</sup>

The rule of progressive interpretation has also been applied by the U.S. Supreme Court to other clauses of the Constitution. Thus when the Constitution was adopted, the framers of the Constitution did not surely have in mind the mode of selection as well as elimination of candidates for the Congress by the direct primary which has come into vogue by way of Party Convention. In determining, therefore, whether a provision of the Constitution applies to a new subject-matter, as held by the court, it is of little significance that it is one with which the framers of the Constitution were not familiar. Hence we read its words, not as we read legislative codes which are subject to continuous revision with the changing course of events, but as the revelation of great purposes which were intended to be achieved by the Constitution as a continuing instrument of Government.<sup>3</sup>

By applying this rule, the U.S. Supreme Court extended the dimension of the Bill of Rights, and it added several other rights by way of deduction from the main body of the Bill of Rights, such as "freedom of association", "freedom of privacy", "right of education of a child in a school of parent's choice, etc." The U.S. Supreme Court has also evolved many new ideas out of the general expressions used in the U.S. Constitution, such as the words like "liberty"

1 Home Building and Loan Association v. Blaisdell, (1934) 290 US 398 (435). See Wood v. Lovett, (1941) 313 US 362 (383) where Justice Black referred to Blaisdell's decision as a realistic appreciation of the fact that ours is an evolving society and the general words of the contract clause were not intended to reduce the legislative branch of the Government to helpless impotency.

3 United States v. Classic, (1941) 313 US 537.

"property" and phrases like "regulate commerce", "due process of law" and "equal protection of law", etc.<sup>1</sup>

What emerges from the above discussion of the US Supreme Court cases is that the Courts are not to give traditional meaning to the words and phrases of the Constitution as they stood at the time the Constitution was framed but give a broader connotation to such words and phrases in the context of the changing needs of time. The rationale behind such concept is that when our mode of thinking, ways of life and culture change with the change of time, then why the words and phrases should not take colour from the surrounding aspects of the changing pattern of our life and thought. Words are merely the vehicles of thought. The pattern of thought is not the same everywhere in the world.

The same word carries different meanings to peoples in different parts of the world. Even different dictionaries sometimes give different meanings to the same word. If this is so, why the Judges should be debarred from reading into the word or words which seems to them most appropriate and relevant in the context of the changing pattern of life more with a view to subserve the common good for which the Constitution of a country stands. Take for example, the word 'socialist' has been introduced in the Preamble to the Indian Constitution<sup>2</sup> and this word has been incorporated in the Preamble obviously with a definite purpose. The word 'socialist' is a much misunderstood word. Different thinkers starting from Marx to the writers and thinkers of present day have understood the word in different senses. Our Supreme Court has, in a recent case, interpreted the word in the following manner:

"The principal aim of a 'socialist' State is to eliminate inequality in income and status and standards of life. The basic framework of 'socialism' is to provide a decent standard of life to the working people. This amongst others on the economic side envisaged economic equality and suitable distribution of income. This is a blend of Marxism and Gandhism leaning heavily towards Gandhian socialism. It is such a socialist State (a blend of Marxism and Gandhism) directs the centres of power — Legislative, Executive and Judiciary to strive to set up from a wholly feudal exploited slave society to a vibrant, throbbing socialist welfare society is a long march, but during this journey to the fulfilment of the goal every State action taken must be directed, and must be so interpreted, as to take the society one step towards the goal."<sup>3</sup>

Thus, in interpreting Arts 39(e) and 41 of our Constitution, the Supreme Court has kept in mind the socialistic goal, as envisaged in the Preamble, to be gradually achieved by the State through peaceful Gandhian means and not through revolutionary and violent methods as done in Russia and China. This,

we must say, is a progressive approach towards interpretation of the relevant constitutional provisions

Human approach to life and liberty is one aspect of progressive interpretation – if we may call it – is revealed in some recent cases decided by the Supreme Court. One such case is the re-appraisal of the death sentence of a life-convict for murder committed by him as provided in sec 303 of the Penal Code. The reason, or at least one of the reasons as observed by the Supreme Court in Mibu v State of Punjab, AIR 1983 SC 473 (175), seems to have been that if, even the sentence of life imprisonment was not sufficient to act as a deterrent and the convict was hardened enough to commit a murder while serving that sentence, the only punishment which he deserved was death. The severity of this judgement is in accordance with the deterrent and retributive theories of punishment which then held sway. The reformative theory of punishment which came later in the day yet to be fully and widely accepted. In its 42nd Report (1971) the Law Commission of India has observed in para 15 17 (239), that "the primary object of making the death sentence mandatory for an offence under this section seems to be to give protection to the prison staff". If a strictly penological view was taken of the situation dealt with by sec 303, the framers of the Code would have a second thought on their decision to make the death sentence mandatory, even without the aid of constitutional constraints which operate now. The Court then held

"Judged in the light shed by Maneka Gandhi (AIR 1978 SC 597) and Bachan Singh (AIR 1980 SC 898), it is impossible to uphold sec 303, IPC as valid. Section 303 excludes judicial discretion. The scale of justice are removed from the hands of the Judge so soon as he pronounces the accused guilty of the offence. So final, so irrevocable and so irresistible is the sentence that no law which provides for it without involvement of the judicial mind can be said to be fair, just and reasonable. Such a law must necessarily be stigmatised as arbitrary and oppressive. Sec. 303 is such a law and it must go the way of all bad laws. Sec 303 must be struck down as unconstitutional" (per Chinnappa Reddy, J. concurring with the unanimous judgement of the Bench) (p 484)

In reaching this conclusion, the learned Judge observed that sec 303, IPC is anachronism. It is out of tune with the mark of times. It is out of tune with the rising tide of human consciousness. It is out of tune with the philosophy of an enlightened Constitution like ours. It particularly offends Art 21 and the new jurisprudence which has sprung around it ever since the Bank Nationalisation case (AIR 1970 SC 564) freed from the confines of Gopalan (AIR 1950 SC 27)

In an earlier case, viz, Dilip Kumar Sharma v State of M P, AIR 1976 SC 133 (1976) 2 SCR 289 Sakaria, J., in his concurring judgement described the section as "Draconian in severity, relentless and inexorable in operation", though at that time the Court was not concerned with the vires of sec 303, IPC. N B Death sentence for murder is not prohibited under the Indian law as in the U S A. In Bachan Singh v State of Punjab AIR 1980 SC 898 (1980)2

SCC 684, the Supreme Court while upholding the validity of the death sentence as a punishment for murder, ruled that the sentence of death can be imposed in a very exceptional class of cases – "the rarest of rare cases" The Court held in that case that the normal sentence for murder is life imprisonment, and if the death sentence is to be imposed, the Court is under a legal obligation under sec 354(3) of the Cr P C to state the special reasons for imposing that sentence See also the case of Shidagouda Ningappa Ghandavar v State of Karnataka, AIR 1981 SC 764, 1981 Cri LJ 324

By exploring a new dimension of the right to life and personal liberty, as observed by Bhagwati, J in the Bhagalpur blinded prisoners' case, "we would, at the next hearing, proceed to lay down the correct implications of the constitutional right in Art 21 in the light of the dynamic constitutional jurisprudence which we are evolving in this Court "

This is obviously an indication towards progressive approach to the issues of the gravest constitutional importance [see Khatris & others v State of Bihar, AIR 1981 SC 928(930) & 1068 (1074)]

The expression "progressive interpretation" has no fixed meaning It depends upon the nature of provision contained in the Constitution or the words or phrases used therein It is more or less a kind of flexible construction of the words or phrases in a provision to meet a new situation that may arise In the language of Wynes, the doctrine of progressive interpretation may rather be called "general interpretation" meaning thereby that the new development of the same subject and new means of executing an unchanging power do arise from time to time and are capable of control and exercise by the appropriate organ to which the power has been committed In other words, while power remains the same, its extent and ambit may grow with the progress of history <sup>1</sup>

By the term 'generic' we usually mean characteristics of a genus or a class The word has also other meanings, such as "applied to (any) individual of a large class", "general not specific or special" What then "generic interpretation" should mean? In order to achieve the object of "generic interpretation", it must be applied to a genus or a class Thus, any clause meant for the benefit of the weaker community or backward section or minority communities can be given a progressive interpretation There is ample scope for it in Arts 14 and 16 of our Constitution In this light, we may say that the Supreme Court's ruling in Sukhddev's case<sup>2</sup> that the employees of statutory Corporations like Oil and Natural Gas Commission, Industrial Finance Corporation, Life Insurance Corporation or Municipal Corporation, etc are also entitled to reinstatement to service if wrongfully dismissed from service, on the ground that the statutory corporations are authorities within the meaning of Art 12 of the Constitution and their employees have a statutory status, is a step towards progressive interpretation The public corporation is a new type of economic organisation and that it, therefore, does not fit in the old legal categories. Instead of forcing it into them the latter should be adapted to the needs of changing times and conditions.

This judgement is a break-away from the old traditional legal barrier that "break of service contract can lead only to damages but not to specific performance in view of sec 14(1)(b) of the Specific Relief Act 1948".

The concept of progressive interpretation thus contemplates a new approach to a new situation through the process of interpretation. The Supreme Court of the United States laid down the principle hinc est thus:

"Without doing violence to the language used, a constitutional provision shall be given a fair, liberal and progressive construction so that its true object might be promoted".<sup>1</sup>

The words and phrases used by the framers of the Constitution are those which are prevalent at the time and reflect the mores of the age. For example, when the U.S. Constitution was framed, it was an era of laissez faire, but it has endured for more than two hundred years and passed through various vicissitudes of time, it has had to adapt itself to the changing needs of time.

In an Australian case, Lord Wright put the matter in the following words:

"It is not that the meaning of the words that changes, but the changing circumstances illustrate and illumine the full import of that meaning". In other words, it would mean that the powers and limitations created by the Constitution be made applicable to new situations and it cannot be prevented on the ground that the new situations were not contemplated by the framers of the Constitution."

HISTORICAL AND CONTEMPORANEOUS INTERPRETATION

The two approaches to constitutional interpretation represented by two theories, viz., historical interpretation and contemporaneous interpretation are, in fact, not very different.

The first is an approach to the issue with a view to explaining the matter in the light of the understanding of the provision which was prevalent at the time of its adoption whereas the second is the mode of interpretation of words in a sense they originally bore at the time when the statute was passed (Craies, Statute Law, (7th Edn.) pp. 79, 80).

The historical approach to the problem of interpretation is not a new thing. It is as old as the day of Lord Coke who enunciated the doctrine in the following manner:

"The interpreter must consider what was the condition of the law before the new law was passed and what was the mischief or defect to be remedied and what was the remedy which the legislature has resolved to adopt to cure the mischief or defect. The true reason and remedy of the new law being ascertained such a construction should be made as will suppress the mischief and advance the remedy, avoiding and suppressing the subtle inventions and evasions and giving life and vigour to the remedy proposed. Again where a contemporaneous construction has been applied to a law that construction is generally adopted as is most likely to be in accordance with the intention of the legislature."<sup>1</sup>

Historical interpretation does not prohibit the use of historical materials including pre-legislative materials for the understanding and construction of the provision of a statute. This applies equally to the Constitution. It has been held by the leading authorities like Sir George Jessel, M.R. and Earl of Salisbury that the courts should not be oblivious of the history of the law and legislation.<sup>2</sup> Particularly, in interpreting older statutes it was held to be legitimate to look into the well-known historical facts at the time the statute was passed. In the famous Alabama Arbitration case Cockburn, C.J. referred both to the American and English Foreign Enlistment Acts of the early part of the 19th century and showed that they were not intended to prevent the sale of armed ships to belligerents but to prevent the American and British citizens from manning privateers against belligerents.<sup>3</sup>

It is now a settled rule both in the U.K. and in the U.S.A. to refer to historical facts where necessary for comprehension of the subject matter. The latest trend is the erosion of the exclusionary rule even in England itself its very stronghold.<sup>4</sup>

CONCLUSION

What then should be the criteria of interpretation of Constitution — whether the principles of statutory construction should be applied or new principles should be evolved.

There is no doubt that a Constitution is, in fact, a statute, but with the difference that it is a Constitution act while a statute is a legislative act made through ordinary legislative process. The question, therefore, is whether this makes all the difference. As already stated, Constitution is the fundamental law of the land to which all other laws must conform. In short, constitutional law is the supreme law of the country. This being so interpretative process cannot be the same in both the areas, statutory and constitutional. A Constitution is to endure for ages to come while a statute has no permanent life; it can be revoked or repealed by another. It is enacted for a particular purpose and to meet particular situation and, therefore, the interpretative process is limited to the specific purpose for which the enactment stands. Constitution, on the other hand, is concerned with the governance of the country and the life of the people at large. It is, therefore, obvious that Constitution stands quite on a different footing and accordingly the interpretative process should be such as to help fulfil the aspirations of the people as well as to evolve principles to iron out the differences or conflicts if any, arising between the different organs of the Government. It is necessary therefore, that those who are entrusted with the interpretation of the Constitution must have a wider vision and a broader perspective.

It is now admitted on all hands that Constitution should receive liberal construction. What is the criterion of liberal construction depends on the attitude of different Judges. The scope of liberal interpretation not having been authoritatively defined anywhere, it is likely that Judges would give an interpretation which they may call liberal according to their own concept of liberalisation. Thus, an Indian Judge who became the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, while admitting the need for liberal construction of Constitution, held at the same time that the same principles would undeniably apply which are applicable in construing a statute, but the ultimate result must be determined upon the actual words and not in vacuo but as occurring in a single complex instrument in one part may throw light on the other.<sup>1</sup>

The above proposition unmistakably shows the limited scope of liberal construction of Constitution as conceived by some of our Judges of the Supreme Court. At best, we can say that it is a concept of liberal construction of statutes in its restricted form and not of Constitution, because a Constitution, as already told, is not an ordinary statute.

It is submitted that framers of our Constitution never intended that words or phrases used in the Constitution should be construed in their restricted sense; Constitution being a living organism, 'the words must grow with the world'<sup>2</sup> If not so, then the Constitution would become obsolete after a few decades of its birth. The American Constitution still endures to-day even after two hundred years of its birth and to this end the contribution of the American Judiciary is far-reaching. Once President Roosevelt described the American Constitution as "a relic of the horse-and-buggy days" - when there was not much banking, commerce or inter-State trade. With the growth of industry, commerce and inter-State trade, it was necessary to give new meanings to the words used in the Constitution. The U S Supreme Court has read into the Constitution many things which were not expressly there, thereby not only giving the words of the Constitution new dimensions, but changing the meanings of the words beyond what the framers of the Constitution had ever dreamt of. Particularly, the expression "the Congress shall have power to regulate commerce" has received the widest possible meaning from the U S Supreme Court. By giving it a meaning in keeping with the new situations that have developed, the Court upheld the Congress in the extension of its commerce power to rail-roads, radio-broadcasting stations, telegraph and telephone companies, airplanes, steamships, stock-exchanges and ordinary industrial concerns which carry on inter-State trade. Thus, the U S Supreme Court has given a new dimension to the Constitution by means of interpretative process.<sup>1</sup>

In order to give an effective and purposeful meaning to a provision in the Constitution, it becomes essentially necessary to look into the Drafting Committee Reports and the Reports of other Committees forming the nucleus of the Constitution. This is certainly a part of interpretative process. The record of the Constituent Assembly Debates makes it abundantly clear as to what was the purpose underlying each provision and in the final analysis of the provision in reply to the debate, Dr B R Ambedkar, Chairman of the Drafting Committee and a great jurist of the time, made an illuminating exposition of the provisions of the Constitution. Thus the Constituent Assembly Debates purport to serve a very useful purpose not only as a historical background to each and every provision but also as a guideline to interpretation. But our Supreme Court was, in the early days very reluctant in the use of Drafting Committee Reports or the record of the Constituent Assembly Debates. Kania, C J said, in Gopalan's case (supra) (p 38) that the report of the Drafting Committee of the Constituent Assembly in respect of the wording which was brought to the notice of the court cannot be read to control the meaning of the Article, but may be seen in case of ambiguity.<sup>2</sup> Patanjali Sastri, J expressed similar views in the same case. He went to the extent of saying that he would attach no importance to the speeches made by some of the members of the Constituent Assembly in the course of debate on Art 15 (now Art 21).<sup>3</sup>

The earlier attitude towards the use of such extrinsic aids, such as the Report of the Drafting Committee as well as Debates of the Constituent Assembly has undergone considerable change later. The Judges of the Supreme Court have now shed off this inhibition and are referring to these Debates extensively to find out the 'intention' of the framers of the Constitution underlying such provision or the sense of the words and phrases in which they have been used by them. One recent case which quotes abundantly from the Constituent Assembly Debates is an illustration in point.<sup>4</sup>

A Constitution when written does not breathe. It comes to life and begins to grow only when human elements gather together and work it. As time passes, it changes in form and content almost imperceptibly and assumes a new shape and even a new meaning. This comes of the nature and temper of those who work it. Time and circumstances do have their impact on it. Yet, it is men, more than anything else, who shape and mould the destiny of a written Constitution.

1 See Justice Frankfurter's essay on Justice Holmes and the Constitution, where he wrote that decisions under "commerce clause" whether allowing or confining State action and whether sanctioning or denying the Federal power are inevitably exercises in judgement. (The Holmes Reader, Docket Series, pp 176-177)

3 Ibid, p 78

4 S P Gupta v Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 149 (Paras 199, 261, 271)

As Ambedkar, the Chairman of the Drafting Committee of the Constitution of India, observed

However, good a Constitution may be, it is sure to turn out bad because those who are called to work it happen to be a bad lot. However, bad a Constitution may be, it may turn out to be good if those who are called to work it happen to be a good lot. The working of a Constitution does not depend wholly upon the nature of the Constitution. The Constitution can provide only the organ of state such as the Legislature, the Executive and the Judiciary. The factors on which the working of these organs of the state depend are the people and their political parties they will set up as their instruments to carry out their wishes and their policies. Who can say how people of India and their parties will behave? Will they uphold constitutional methods of achieving their purposes or will they prefer revolutionary methods of achieving them? If they adopt the revolutionary methods, however good the Constitution may be, it requires no prophet to say that it will fail. It is, therefore, futile to pass any judgment upon the Constitution without reference to the part which the people and their parties are likely to play.

What Ambedkar said in 1949 holds good for all constitutions. In the ultimate analysis, it is those who are chosen to work the Constitution who work it well or wreck it.

I hope that this volume, Constitutions of the World, would prove to be an excellent reference work for lawyers, legislators and students of law, political science and related subjects.

{Adopted on 29 April 1991}

CHAPTER I
GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. Republic, Sovereignty

Albania is a Parliamentary Republic. National sovereignty stems from the people and belongs to them

2. Foundations

(1) The Republic of Albania is a juridical and democratic State

(2) Man's dignity, his rights and freedoms, free development of his personality as well as the constitutional order, equality before the law, social justice, and pluralism are the foundations of this State, whose duty is to observe and defend them

3. Division of Powers, Representation, Rule of Law

(1) The fundamental principle of State organization is the division of the legislative, executive, and judicial power.

(2) The people exercise their power through their representative organs and referendum as well

(3) The representative organs are elected by free, general, equal, direct, and secret ballot.

(4) State activity is exercised only by the state organs recognized by law

4. Human Rights, Minorities

The Republic of Albania recognizes and guarantees the fundamental human rights and freedoms, those of national minorities, admitted in the international documents

5. Powers

(1) The legislative power belongs to the People's Assembly of the Republic of Albania

(2) The head of the State is the President of the Republic elected by the People's Assembly

(3) The rights and duties of the President are set by this law

(4) The supreme organ of the executive power is the Council of Ministers

(5) The rights and duties of the Council of Ministers are set by this law

(6) The judicial power is exercised by courts which are independent and are guided only by law

6. Pluralism, Political Parties

(1) Political pluralism is one of the fundamental conditions of democracy in the Albanian State

(2) The political parties and other organizations are created and exercise their activity according to the law. They are fully separated from the State

(3) It has prohibited the activity of political parties in military units and institutions of the Ministry of Defence and the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs and diplomatic representations abroad, the attorney's offices, investigation offices, courts, etc. The depoliticization and depoliticization of organs is achieved by law

7. Secular State, Religion

(1) The Republic of Albania is a secular State

(2) The State observes the freedom of religious belief and creates conditions to exercise it

8. International Law, Equality

(1) The legislation of the Republic of Albania considers, recognizes, and observes the principles and norms of the international law generally accepted

(2) The strict and similar application of juridical norms is compulsory for all State organs, political parties, other organizations, employees as well as for other physical and juridical persons

(3) All the citizens are equal to the law

9. Foreign Relations, Albanians Abroad

(1) Concerning the relations with foreign countries, the Republic of Albania defends the national independence and interests and pursues the policy of cooperation and good neighborliness, international peace, and security

(2) The Republic of Albania takes care of the recognition and observation of the national and democratic rights of the Albanians residing outside the State borders of the Republic.

10. Economy

(1) The country's economy is based on the diversity of ownership, free initiative of all economic subjects, and the regulatory role of the State

(2) Economic initiative of juridical and physical persons cannot develop contrary to the social interest and should not impair the security, freedom, and dignity of man

11. Property

(1) The State, juridical, and physical persons have the right to ownership

(2) All kinds of ownership are equally defended by law.

(3) The assets which are objects of the State property are set by law.

12. Property for Foreigners

(1) The foreign juridical and physical persons may gain the right to ownership under the conditions foreseen and guaranteed by law

(2) The foreign physical and juridical persons are guaranteed the right to carry out independent economic activity, to invest at home, to form joint ventures and their own under the circumstances set by law. They are also guaranteed the right to transfer profits

13. Taxation

(1) It is compulsory for juridical and physical persons to contribute to carry the State expenditure in relation to their income

(2) No tax or levy can be established, but by law.

14. Unions

The trade unions recognized by law are juridical persons and may sign collective working contracts with the public or private subjects. The way of reaching contracts is defined by law

THE SUPREME ORGANS OF STATE POWER

Part A—The People's Assembly

15. Legislative Power

(1) The People's Assembly is the highest organ of State power and the only law-making organ

(2) The People's Assembly exerts sovereignty in the name of the people and State, in the forms and boundaries foreseen by this law.

16. Competences

The People's Assembly has the following main competences.—

1 It defines the main directions of internal and foreign policy of the State

2 It approves and changes the Constitution and the laws, decides definitely upon the reconciliation of the laws with the Constitution, and makes their interpretation

3 It approves the economic and social draft programs of the country's development and the synthetic indices, as well as the state budget.

4 It decides on the partial and general mobilization, the state of emergency, and the state of war in case of armed aggression against the Republic of Albania or when this is necessary to fulfill obligations deriving from the international treaties

5. It ratifies and denounces the treaties of political character, the treaties or agreements of military character, the treaties or agreements which have to do with the borders of the Republic of Albania, the treaties or agreements which have to do with the fundamental rights and duties of the citizens; the treaties from which derive financial obligations for the State, treaties or agreements leading to changes to the legislation. treaties and other agreements which foresee that their ratification or denunciation be done by the People's Assembly

6. It grants amnesty.

7. It decides on people's referendums

8. It elects and discharges the President of the Republic of Albania.

9 It elects, appoints, and discharges the Supreme Court, the Attorney General, and his substitutes

10. It controls the activity of the Council of Ministers and the Attorney's General office

11. It controls the activity of RTV, ATA, and other official media of public information, depending on it. The status of these organs is set by law

12. It defines the administrative-territorial structure of the country.

52. All bills for raising revenue and for the recruitment of troops shall exclusively originate in the House of Deputies

53. Only the House of Deputies has the power to impeach before the Senate the President, the Vice-President, the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet, the Ministers, and the Justices of the Supreme Court, in such cases of responsibility as are brought against them for misconduct or crimes committed in the fulfillment of their duties, or for ordinary crimes, after having known about them and after the decision to bring an action had been voted by a majority of two-thirds of its members present

THE SENATE

54. The Senate shall be composed of three senators for each province, and three for the City of Buenos Aires, jointly and directly elected, corresponding two seats to the political party obtaining the majority of votes, and the other seat to the political party following in number of votes. Each senator shall have one vote

55. In order to be elected senator the following conditions are required to have attained to the age of 30 years, to have been six years a citizen of the Nation, to have an annual income of two thousand strong pesos or similar revenues, and to be a native of the province electing him or to have two years of immediate residence therein

56. Senators shall hold office for a term of six years and may be indefinitely re-elected, but the Senate shall be renewed by one-third of the constituencies every two years

57. The Vice-President of the Nation shall be President of the Senate, but he shall have no vote unless in case of equality of votes

58. The Senate shall appoint a President pro tempore to preside in it in case of absence of the Vice-President, or when he holds the office of President of the Nation

59. The Senate is empowered to judge in public trial those impeached by the House of Deputies, its members being on oath for the case. When the President of the Nation is impeached, the Senate shall be presided by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. No person shall be declared guilty without the majority of two-thirds of the members present

60. The judgment shall not extend further than to remove the accused person from office, and to disqualify him to hold any office of honor, trust, or profit in the Nation. But the party declared guilty shall, nevertheless, be subject to accusation, trial, and punishment according to law before the ordinary courts

61. In case of foreign attack, the Senate is also empowered to authorize the President of the Nation to declare in state of siege one or several places of the Republic

62. When any vacancy occurs in the Senate because of death, resignation or other cause, the government to which the vacancy belongs shall immediately call an election for a new member

CHAPTER III

PROVISIONS APPLICABLE TO BOTH HOUSES

63. Both Houses shall assemble, on their own account, every year in ordinary legislative session from March 1 until November 30. The President of the Nation may convolve to extraordinary legislative session or extend the ordinary one.

64. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, rights and qualifications of its members, as regards their validity. Neither of them shall meet without the absolute majority of its members, but a smaller number may compel the absent members to attend the meetings, in the terms and under the penalties as each House may provide

65. Both Houses begin and conclude their legislative session simultaneously. Neither of them, while they sit, shall adjourn its meetings for more than three days without the consent of the other

66. Each House shall make its rules of proceedings, and with the concurrence of two-thirds may correct any one of its members for disorderly behavior in the exercise of his duties, or can remove him on account of physical or moral disability occurring after his admission, and may even expel him from the body, but a majority of one more than the half of those present shall be enough to decide on voluntary resignations from office

67. Senators and deputies, on assuming office, shall take an oath to duly perform their duties and to act in all matters in accordance with the provisions herein established

68. No member of Congress shall be accused, judicially examined, or disturbed for opinions expressed or speeches delivered by him while holding office as legislator

69. No senator or deputy shall be arrested as from the day of his election until the expiration of his term, except when flagrantly surprised committing a crime deserving capital punishment or other infamous or serious punishment, in which case a summary report of the facts shall be submitted the corresponding House

70. When a written complaint is filed before the ordinary courts against any senator or deputy, once examined if there is enough evidence in a public trial, each House may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the votes, suspend the accused party from his office and place him under the jurisdiction of the competent court to be judged

71. Either House shall summon the Ministers of the Executive Power to receive such explanations or reports as it may deem necessary.

72. No member of Congress shall be appointed to any civil office or commission under the Executive Power, without the previous consent of the respective House, except for employments subject to promotions power to levy taxes and power of police over these premises, insofar as they do not interfere with the achievement of those ends

31 To order the federal intervention of a province or of the City of Buenos Aires

To approve or revoke the intervention decreed by the Executive Power during its recess

32 To make all appropriate laws and rules to put into effect the aforementioned powers, and all other powers granted by this Constitution to the Government of the Argentine Nation

76. (1) The legislative powers shall not be delegated to the Executive Power save for issues concerning administration and public emergency, with a specified term for their exercise and according to the delegating conditions established by Congress

(2) The expiration of the term foreseen in the previous paragraph shall not imply the revision of the legal relationships emerging from the rules issued as a result of the powers delegated by Congress

CHAPTER V

MAKING AND ENACTMENT OF LAWS

77. (1) Laws shall originate in either House of Congress, through Bills introduced by their members or by the Executive Power, save for the exceptions established in this Constitution

(2) Bills modifying the electoral system and that of political parties shall be approved by the absolute majority of all the members of the Houses

78. When a Bill is passed by the House in which it originated, it is sent to the other House for its debate. Once approved by both, it is sent to the Executive Power of the Nation for its examination, and if it is also approved, it shall become a law

79. After the general approval of a Bill, each House is empowered to delegate to its committees the detailed approval of said Bill with the vote of the absolute majority of all its members. With equal number of votes, the House may revoke the powers delegated and return to the ordinary procedure. The committee approval shall require the vote of the absolute majority of all its members. Once the Bill is approved by the committee, the ordinary procedures shall be followed

80. Any Bill not returned within ten working days is to be considered approved by the Executive Power. When a Bill is partially rejected, the remaining part shall not be approved. However, non-vetoed parts may only be promulgated if they have normative autonomy and if their partial approval does not alter the spirit or the unity of the Bill approved by Congress. In this case, the procedure foreseen for decrees of necessity and urgency shall be applicable

81. No Bill wholly rejected by either House shall be reintroduced in the legislative session of the same year

No House shall totally reject a Bill originated in it and later added or amended by the revising House. If the Bill were subject to additions and amendments by the revising House, the result of the voting shall be made known in order to state if such additions or amendments were made by the absolute majority or by two-thirds of the members present. With the absolute majority of its members present, the originating House shall approve the bill with the additions or amendments made or insist on the original text unless the additions or amendments were made by the revising House with two-thirds of those members present. In such a case, the bill shall be sent to the Executive Power with the additions or amendments of the revising House, unless the originating House were to insist on the original text with the vote of two-thirds of the members present. The originating House shall not include new additions or amendments to those already made by the revising House.

82. The will of each House shall be expressly stated, the tacit or fictitious approval is excluded in all cases.

83. If a Bill is totally or partially rejected by the Executive Power, it shall return with the objections to the originating House, the latter shall reconsider it and if it is confirmed by a majority of two-thirds of the votes, it shall be sent again to the revising House. If both Houses approve it by such majority, the Bill becomes a law and is sent to the Executive Power for promulgation. In all such cases the voting in both Houses shall be by roll call, by yeas and nays, and both the names and grounds of the voters, as well as the objections of the Executive Power shall be immediately published by the press. If the Houses differ as to the objections, the Bill cannot be reintroduced in the legislative session of that year.

84. In the enactment of laws the following formula shall be used: The Senate and House of Deputies of the Argentine Nation, in Congress assembled, decree or enact as law.

CHAPTER VI

GENERAL AUDITING OFFICE OF THE NATION

85. (1) The Legislative Power is exclusively empowered to exercise the external control of the national civil service as regards its estates and its economic, financial and operative aspects.

(2) The revision and opinion of the Legislative Power about the performance and the general situation of the national civil service are to be based on the reports of the General Auditing Office of the Nation.

(3) This technical advisory body of Congress with functional autonomy, shall be made up as established by the law regulating its creation and operation, which shall be approved by the absolute majority of the members of each House. The chairman of the body shall be appointed under the proposal of the opposition with the largest number of legislators in Congress.

(4) It shall be in charge of the control of the legal aspects, management and auditing of all the activities of the centralized and decentralized civil service, whatever its forms of organization may be, as well as of other powers granted by law. It must take part in the approval or rejection of the revenue and investment accounts of public funds.

CHAPTER VII

THE OMBUDSMAN

86. (1) The Ombudsman is an independent body created within the sphere of the National Congress operating with full autonomy without receiving instructions from any authority. The mission of the Ombudsman is the defense and protection of human rights and other rights, guarantees and interests sheltered under this Constitution and the laws, in the face of deeds, acts or omissions of the administration, as well as the control of public administrative functions.

(2) The Ombudsman has capacity to be a party in a law suit. He is appointed and removed by Congress with the vote of two-thirds of the members present of each House. He has the immunities and privileges of legislators. He shall hold office for the term of five years and may only be re-appointed on one occasion.

(3) The organization and operation of this body shall be ruled by a special law.

Sub-title II—Second Division: Executive Power

ITS NATURE AND DURATION

87. The Executive Power of the Nation shall be vested in a citizen with the title of "President of the Argentine Nation."

88. In case of illness, absence from the Capital City, death, resignation, or removal of the President from office, the Executive Power shall devolve upon the Vice-President of the Nation. In case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of the President and the Vice-President of the Nation, Congress shall determine the public officer who shall exercise the Presidency until the ceasing of the grounds of inability or the election of a new President.

89. To be elected President or Vice-President of the Nation it is necessary to have been born in the Argentine territory, or to be the son of a native born citizen if born in a foreign country, and to have the other qualifications required to be elected senator.

90. The President and Vice-President shall hold their offices for the term of four years, and they may be re-elected or may succeed each other for only one consecutive term. If they have been re-elected or they have succeeded each other, they cannot be elected for either of these two positions but with the interval of one term.

91. The President of the Nation shall cease to exercise power on the same day his four-years term expires, no event that may have interrupted it shall constitute grounds for completing the term later

92. The President and Vice-President receive a remuneration paid out of the Treasury of the Nation, which shall not be altered during their term of office. During this same period they shall neither hold any other office nor receive any other emolument from the Nation or from any province whatsoever

93. On assuming office, the President and Vice-President shall take oath before the President of the Senate and before Congress assembled, respecting their religious beliefs, to "perform with loyalty and patriotism the office of President (or Vice-President) of the Nation, and to faithfully observe the Constitution of the Argentine Nation, and to cause it to be observed"

PROCEDURE AND TIME OF THE ELECTION OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE NATION

94. The President and Vice-President of the Nation shall be directly elected by the people, by second ballot, according to this Constitution. To this end, the national territory shall be a single constituency

95. The election shall be held within the two months previous to the expiration of the term of the President in office

96. The second ballot, when appropriate, shall be held between the two voting formulas of the most voted candidates, within thirty days of the previous election

97. If in the first ballot the most voted formula obtains more than forty-five per cent of the affirmative votes validly cast, its members shall be proclaimed President and Vice-President of the Nation.

98. If in the first ballot the most voted formula obtains at least forty per cent of the affirmative votes validly cast, and there is a difference of more than ten per cent regarding all the affirmative votes validly cast for the formula following in number of votes, its members shall be proclaimed President and Vice-President of the Nation

POWERS OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

99. The President of the Nation has the following powers-

1 He is the supreme head of the Nation, head of the Government and he is politically responsible for the general administration of the country

2 He issues the instructions and rules necessary for the enforcement of the laws of the nation, without altering their spirit with regulatory exceptions

3 He takes part in the making of laws according to the Constitution, promulgates them and has them published. The Executive Power shall in no event issue provisions of legislative nature, in which case they shall be absolutely and irreparably null and void. Only when due to exceptional circumstances the ordinary procedures foreseen by this Constitution for the enactment of laws are impossible to be followed, and when rules are not referred to criminal issues, taxation, electoral matters, or the system of political parties, he shall issue decrees on grounds of necessity and urgency, which shall be decided by a general agreement of ministers who shall countersign them together with the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet.

Within the term of ten days, the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet shall personally submit the decision to the consideration of the Joint Standing Committee of Congress, which shall be composed according to the proportion of the political representation of the parties in each House. Within the term of ten days, this committee shall submit its report to the plenary meeting of each House for its specific consideration and it shall be immediately discussed by both Houses. A special law enacted with the absolute majority of all the members of each House shall regulate the procedure and scope of Congress participation.

4 He appoints the Justices of the Supreme Court with the consent of the Senate by two-thirds of its members present, in a public meeting convoked to this effect. He appoints the other Judges of the lower federal courts according to a binding proposal consisting of a list of three candidates submitted by the Council of Magistracy, with the consent of the Senate in a public meeting, in which the qualifications of the candidates shall be taken into account. Once they have attained to the age of seventy five years, a new appointment, with the same consent, shall be necessary so that they may continue in office. Judges of that age or over shall be appointed for five years, and may be indefinitely re-appointed by this same procedure.

5 He may grant pardons or commute punishments for crimes subject to federal jurisdiction, after the report of the corresponding court, except in cases of impeachment by the House of Deputies.

6 He may grant pensions, retirements, leaves of absence, and widowed pensions according to the laws of the Nation.

7 He appoints and removes Ambassadors, Ministers Plenipotentiary and Commercial Attaches with the consent of the Senate, on his own account, he appoints and removes the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet and the Ministers, the officers of his Secretariat, Consular Agents, and other employees whose appointments are not otherwise regulated by this Constitution.

8 He annually performs the opening of the legislative session of Congress, both Houses being assembled for this purpose, reporting on this occasion on the state of the Nation, on amendments promised by the Constitution, and recommending for consideration the measures he deems necessary and advisable.

9. He extends the ordinary legislative session of Congress, or convokes to an extraordinary one when some serious order or progress interest so requires it

10 He oversees the performance of the duties of the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet as regards the collection of the revenues of the Nation, and their investment according to the law or budget of national expenditures

11 He concludes and signs treaties, concordats and other agreements required for the maintenance of good relations with international organizations and foreign powers, he receives their Ministers and admits their Consuls

12 He is Commander-in-Chief of all the Armed Forces of the Nation

13 He provides for the military posts of the Nation with the consent of the Senate, he grants posts or ranks for the higher officers of the Armed Forces; and on his own account, he has the same faculties in the battlefield

14 He has the control of the Armed Forces and is in charge of their organization and distribution, according to the needs of the Nation

15 He declares war and orders reprisals with the consent and approval of Congress.

16 In the event of foreign attack, he declares, with the consent of the Senate, one or more places of the Nation in state of siege for a limited period. In the event of domestic disorder, he only exerts this power when Congress is in recess, since this is a power pertaining to this body. The President exercises it under the limitations prescribed in section 23

17. He may request whatever information he may consider proper from the Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet and from the heads of all branches and departments of the Administration, and through them, from other employees. They are compelled to supply such information

18 He may leave the territory of the Nation with the consent of Congress. During the recess of the latter, he may only do so without permission on justified grounds of public interest

19 He is empowered to fill vacancies requiring the consent of the Senate and occurring during its recess, by means of appointments on commission expiring at the end of the next legislative session

20 He decrees the federal intervention of a province or of the City of Buenos Aires in the event of the recess of Congress, and simultaneously he must convoke the latter to consider such intervention

CHAPTER IV*THE CHIEF OF THE MINISTERIAL CABINET AND OTHER MINISTERS OF THE EXECUTIVE POWER

100. (1) The Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet and the other Secretary Ministers, whose number and powers shall be determined by a special law, shall be in charge of the business of the Nation and shall countersign and legalize the acts of the President with their signatures, which are essential to become effective

(2) The Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet, politically liable before the National Congress, is empowered

1 To exercise the general administration of the country

2 To perform the acts and issue the rules necessary to exercise the powers granted by this section as well as those delegated by the President of the Nation, being countersigned by the pertinent secretary minister to which the act or rule refers

3 To appoint the employees of the administration, except for those pertaining to the President

4 To exercise the functions and powers delegated to him by the President of the Nation and, in cabinet agreement, to decide about matters that the Executive Power may indicate to him or, on his own account, about those he deems it necessary due to their importance, within the scope of his jurisdiction

5 To coordinate, prepare and convoke the meetings of the ministerial cabinet, presiding at them in the absence of the President

6 To submit to Congress the bills on Ministries and National Budget, with their prior consideration in cabinet agreement and their approval by the Executive Power

7 To have the revenues of the Nation collected and to enforce the National Budget Act

8 To countersign regulatory decrees of the laws, decrees to extend the ordinary legislative session of Congress or to convoke to an extraordinary one, and the messages of the President supporting legislative initiatives

9 To attend the meetings of Congress and take part in its debates, but not to vote

10 Once the ordinary legislative session of Congress has begun, to submit together with the other ministers a detailed report on the state of the Nation regarding the business of the respective departments

11 To give such oral and written reports and explanations that either of the Houses may request from the Executive Power

12 To countersign decrees about powers delegated by Congress, which shall be under the control of the Joint Standing Committee

13 To countersign, together with the other ministers, decrees of necessity and urgency and decrees on partial promulgation of laws. Within ten days of their approval, he shall personally submit these decrees to the consideration of the Joint Standing Committee.

(3) The Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet shall not be simultaneously appointed to another ministry.

101. The Chief of the Ministerial Cabinet shall attend Congress at least once a month, alternating between each House to report on the progress of the Government, notwithstanding the provisions of section 71. He may be interpellated for the purpose of considering a vote of censure, by the vote of the absolute majority of all the members of either House, and he may be removed by the vote of the absolute majority of the members of each House.

102. Each Minister shall be responsible for the acts he legalizes, and shall be jointly responsible for those he agrees on with his colleagues.

103. Ministers shall in no case adopt resolutions on their own account, except in relation to matters concerning the economic and administrative affairs of their respective departments.

104. After the opening of the legislative session, the ministers of the Cabinet shall submit to Congress a detailed report on the state of the Nation regarding the business of their respective departments.

105. The Ministers shall be neither senators nor deputies without resigning their offices as ministers.

106. Ministers may attend the meetings of Congress and take part in its debates, but shall not vote.

107. They shall receive for their services a remuneration established by law, which shall neither be increased nor diminished in favor or to the detriment of the incumbents.

Sub-title III—Third Division: The Judicial Power

CHAPTER I

ITS NATURE AND DURATION

108. The Judicial Power of the Nation shall be vested in a Supreme Court and in such lower courts as Congress may constitute in the territory of the Nation.

109. In no case the President of the Nation shall exercise judicial functions, assume jurisdiction over pending cases, or reopen those already adjudged.

110. The Justices of the Supreme Court and the Judges of the lower courts of the Nation shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall receive for their services a remuneration to be ascertained by law and which shall not be diminished in any way while holding office.

111. To be a member of the Supreme Court it is necessary to be a lawyer of the Nation, with eight years of practice, and with the same qualifications required to be a senator.

112. On occasion of the first installation of the Supreme Court, the persons designated shall take an oath before the President of the Nation, to perform their duties, to administer justice in a proper and faithful manner, and in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution. In the future, they shall take the oath before the Chief Justice of the Court

113. The Supreme Court shall issue its own internal regulations, and appoint its subordinate employees

114. (1) The Council of Magistracy, ruled by a special law enacted by the absolute majority of all the members of each House, shall be in charge of the selection of the Judges and of the administration of the Judicial Power

(2) The Council shall be periodically constituted so as to achieve the balance among the representation of the political bodies arising from popular election, of the Judges of all instances, and of the lawyers with federal registration. It shall likewise be composed of such other scholars and scientists as indicated by law in number and form

(3) It is empowered

1 To select the candidates to the lower courts by public competition

2 To issue proposals in binding lists of three candidates for the appointment of the Judges of the lower courts

3 To be in charge of the resources and to administer the budget assigned by law to the administration of justice

4 To apply disciplinary measures to judges

5 To decide the opening of the proceedings for the removal of judges, when appropriate to order their suspension, and to make the pertinent accusation

6 To issue the rules about the judicial organization and all those necessary to ensure the independence of judges and the efficient administration of justice

115. (1) The Judges of the lower courts of the Nation shall be removed on the grounds stated in section 53, by a special jury composed of legislators, judges, and lawyers with federal registration

(2) The decision, which cannot be appealed, shall have no other effect than the removal of the accused. But the condemned party shall nevertheless be subject to accusation, trial, and punishment according to law before the ordinary courts

(3) If no decision was taken after the term of one hundred and eighty days since the opening of the proceedings for removal, said proceedings are to be filed and, in that event, the suspended Judge shall be reinstated

(4) The composition and procedure of this jury shall be stated in the special law mentioned in section 114

CHAPTER II*POWERS OF THE JUDICIARY

116. The Supreme Court and the lower courts of the Nation are empowered to hear and decide all cases arising under the Constitution and the laws of the Nation, with the exception made in section 75 sub-section 12, and under the treaties made with foreign nations, all cases concerning Ambassadors, Public Ministers and Foreign Consuls, cases related to admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; matters in which the Nation shall be a party, actions arising between two or more provinces, between one province and the inhabitants of another province, between the inhabitants of different provinces, and between one province or the inhabitants thereof against a foreign State or citizen

117. In the aforementioned cases the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, with such regulations and exceptions as Congress may prescribe, but in all matters concerning foreign Ambassadors, Ministers and Consuls, and in those in which a province shall be a party, the Court shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction

118. The trial of all ordinary criminal cases not arising from the right to impeach granted to the House of Deputies, shall be decided by jury once this institution is established in the Nation. The trial shall be held in the province where the crime has been committed, but when committed outside the territory of the Nation against public international law, the trial shall be held at such place as Congress may determine by a special law

119. Treason against the Nation shall only consist in rising in arms against it, or in joining its enemies, supplying them with aid and assistance. Congress shall by a special law determine the punishment for this crime, but the penalty shall not extend beyond the person of the convicted, nor shall this dishonor be transmitted to relatives of any degree.

Sub-title IV—Fourth Division: The Public Ministry

120. (1) The Public Ministry is an independent body with functional autonomy and financial autarky, with the function of promoting the participation of justice for the defense of the legal character of the general interests of society, in coordination with the other authorities of the Republic

(2) It is composed of an Attorney General of the Nation and a General Defender of the Nation, and such other members as the law may establish

(3) Its members enjoy functional immunities and intangibility of remunerations

Title II—Provincial Governments

121. The provinces reserve to themselves all the powers not delegated to the Federal Government by this Constitution, as well as those powers expressly reserved to themselves by special pacts at the time of their incorporation

122. They determine their own local institutions and are governed by them. They elect their Governors, legislators, and other provincial officers, without intervention of the Federal Government.

123. Each province enacts its own Constitution as stated in section 5, ensuring municipal autonomy and ruling its scope and content regarding the institutional, political, administrative, economic and financial aspects

124. (1) The provinces are empowered to set up regions for the economic and social development and to establish entities for the fulfillment of their purposes, and they are also empowered, with the knowledge of Congress, to enter into international agreements provided they are consistent with the national foreign policy and do not affect the powers delegated to the Federal Government or the public credit of the Nation. The City of Buenos Aires shall have the regime which is to be established to that effect

(2) The provinces have the original dominion over the natural resources existing in their territory

125. (1) The provinces may enter into partial treaties for purposes of the administration of justice, of economic interests, and works of common benefit, with the knowledge of the Federal Congress, and may promote their industry, immigration, the construction of railways and navigable canals, the colonization of provincial-owned lands, the introduction and establishment of new industries, the imports of foreign capitals and the exploration of their rivers, by means of laws protecting these ends and with their own resources

(2) The provinces and the City of Buenos Aires may continue with their own social security entities for civil servants and professionals, and may promote economic progress, human development, creation of jobs, education, science, knowledge and culture

126. The provinces do not exercise the power delegated to the Nation. Provinces shall in no case enter into any partial treaty of political nature, enact laws dealing with commerce, inland or foreign navigation, establish provincial Customs, coin money, establish banks with power to issue money without authorization from the Federal Congress, enact civil, commercial, criminal, or mining codes after Congress had enacted them, enact special laws regarding citizenship and naturalization, bankruptcy, counterfeiting of currency or State documents, lay any duty on tonnage, supply ships of war or raise armies, except in the event of foreign invasion or in such imminent danger that shall not admit a delay, notifying immediately to the Federal Government, appoint or receive foreign agents

127. No province shall declare or make war against another province. Their claims must be submitted to the Supreme Court and settled by it. Their de facto hostilities are acts of civil war, considered as sedition or mutiny, which the Federal Government must suppress and punish in accordance with the law

128. The Governors of the provinces are the natural agents of the Federal Government for the enforcement of the Constitution and the laws of the Nation

129. (1) The City of Buenos Aires shall have an autonomous system of Government with power of legislation and jurisdiction, and the head of its Government shall be directly elected by the people of the City

(2) While the City of Buenos Aires is the Capital City of the Nation, a law shall guarantee the interests of the National State

(3) According to the aforementioned provisions of this section, the National Congress shall convoke the inhabitants of the City of Buenos Aires so that the representatives that are to be elected for that purpose issue the Organizing Statute of their institutions

Part III—Temporary Provisions

First

(1) The Argentine Nation ratifies its legitimate and non-prescribing sovereignty over the Malvinas, Georgias del Sur and Sandwich del Sur Islands and over the corresponding maritime and insular zones as they are an integral part of the National territory

(2) The recovery of said territories and the full exercise of sovereignty, respectful of the way of life of their inhabitants and according to the principles of international law, are a permanent and unrelinquished goal of the Argentine people

Second Referring to section 37

Positive actions referred to in the last paragraph of section 37 shall not comprise less guarantees than those in force at the time this Constitution was approved, and their duration shall be determined by law

Third Referring to section 39

The law regulating the exercise of the popular initiative shall be approved within eighteen months of this enactment

Fourth Referring to section 54

(1) The present members of the Senate of the Nation shall hold office until the expiration of their respective terms

(2) At the time of the renewal of one-third of the Senate in nineteen ninety-five, due to the expiration of the terms of all the senators elected in nineteen eighty-six, a third senator shall be designated for the constituency of each Legislature. The group of senators for each constituency shall be composed, as far as possible, in such a way that two seats belong to that political party or electoral alliance with the largest number of members in the Legislature, and the third seat to that political party or electoral alliance following in number of members. In case of equality of votes, that political party or electoral alliance having obtained the largest number of votes in the immediately previous election of the provincial legislature shall prevail

(3) The election of senators who replace those whose terms expire in nineteen ninety-eight, as well as the election of whoever replaces any one of the present senators in case of application of section 62, shall be carried out by these same rules of election. However, the political party or electoral alliance having the largest number of members in the Legislature at the time of the election of senator shall have the right to have its candidate elected, with the sole limitation that the three senators do not belong to the same political party or electoral alliance.

(4) These rules shall also be applicable to the election of senators for the City of Buenos Aires, in nineteen ninety-five by the electoral body, and in nineteen ninety-eight by the legislative organ of the City.

(5) The election of all the senators referred to in this provision shall be carried out within a period neither shorter than sixty nor longer than ninety days as from the date the senator must take office.

(6) In all cases, the candidates for senators shall be proposed by the political parties or electoral alliances. The fulfillment of the legal and statutory requirements to be declared candidate shall be certified by the National Electoral Court and reported to the Legislature.

(7) Whenever a national senator is elected a deputy senator shall be designated, who shall take office in the cases foreseen in section 62.

(8) The senators elected due to the application of this temporary provision shall hold office until December nine, two thousand and one.

Fifth Referring to section 56

All the members of the Senate shall be elected as indicated in section 54 within the term of two months previous to December ten, two thousand and one, drawing lots, after they have all met, to decide who shall leave in the first and second biennium.

Sixth Referring to section 75, sub-section 2

(1) A system of joint participation according to section 75, sub-section 2, and the regulations of the Federal Fiscal entity, shall be stated before the end of the year 1996, the distribution of jurisdiction, services and functions in force at the time of the enactment of this amendment, shall not be modified without the approval of the interested province, nor shall the distribution of resources in force at the time of the enactment of this amendment be modified to the detriment of the provinces, and in both cases until the aforementioned system of joint participation is stated.

(2) This provision shall not affect pending administrative or judicial claims originated in differences about the distribution of jurisdiction, services, functions or resources between the Nation and the provinces.

Seventh Referring to section 75, sub-section 30

Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act

[9th July 1900]

An Act to constitute the Commonwealth of Australia

Whereas the people of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania, humbly relying on the blessing of Almighty God, have agreed to unite in one indissoluble Federal Commonwealth under the Crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and under the Constitution hereby established.

And whereas it is expedient to provide for the admission into the Commonwealth of other Australasian Colonies and possessions of the Queen:

Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows

1 This Act may be cited as the Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act

2 The provisions of this Act referring to the Queen shall extend to Her Majesty's heirs and successors in the sovereignty of the United Kingdom

3 It shall be lawful for the Queen, with the advice of the Privy Council, to declare by proclamation that, on and after a day therein appointed, not being later than one year after the passing of this Act, the people of New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland and

Tasmania, and also, if Her Majesty is satisfied that the people of Western Australia have agreed thereto, of Western Australia, shall be united in a Federal Commonwealth under the name of the Commonwealth of Australia. But the Queen may, at any time after the proclamation, appoint a Governor-General for the Commonwealth.

4 The Commonwealth shall be established, and the Constitution of the Commonwealth shall take effect, on and after the day so appointed. But the Parliaments of the several colonies may at any time after the passing of this Act make any such laws, to come into operation on the day so appointed, as they might have made if the Constitution had taken effect at the passing of this Act.

5 This Act, and all laws made by the Parliament of the Commonwealth under the Constitution, shall be binding on the courts, Judges, and people of every State and of every part of the Commonwealth, notwithstanding anything in the laws of any State, and the laws of the Commonwealth shall be in force on all British ships, the Queen's ships of war excepted, whose first port of clearance and whose port of destination are in the Commonwealth.

6 "The Commonwealth" shall mean the Commonwealth of Australia as established under this Act.

"The States" shall mean such of the colonies of New South Wales, New Zealand, Queensland, Tasmania, Victoria, Western Australia, and South Australia, including the northern territory of South Australia, as for the time being are parts of the Commonwealth, and such colonies or territories as may be admitted into or established by the Commonwealth as States, and each of such parts of the Commonwealth shall be called "a State".

"Original States" shall mean such States as are parts of the Commonwealth at its establishment.

7 The Federal Council of Australasia Act, 1885, is hereby repealed, but so as not to affect any laws passed by the Federal Council of Australasia and in force at the establishment of the Commonwealth.

Any such law may be repealed as to any State by the Parliament of the Commonwealth, or as to any colony not being a State by the Parliament thereof.

8 After the passing of this Act the Colonial Boundaries Act, 1895, shall not apply to any colony which becomes a State of the Commonwealth, but the Commonwealth shall be taken to be a self-governing colony for the purposes of that Act.

9 The Constitution of the Commonwealth shall be as follows

THE CONSTITUTION

This Constitution is divided as follows:—

Chapter I - The Parliament.

Part I - General.

Part II - The Senate.

Part III - The House of Representatives.

Part IV - Both Houses of the Parliament.

Part V - Powers of the Government.

Chapter II - The Executive Government.

Chapter III - The Judicature.

Chapter IV - Finance and Trade.

Chapter V - The States.

Chapter VI - New States.

Chapter VII - Miscellaneous.

Chapter VIII - Alteration of the Constitution.

The Schedule.

THE PARLIAMENT

Part I—General

1. The legislative power of the Commonwealth shall be vested in a Federal Parliament, which shall consist of the Queen, a Senate, and a House of Representatives, and which is hereinafter called "The Parliament," or "The Parliament of the Commonwealth."

2. A Governor-General appointed by the Queen shall be Her Majesty's representative in the Commonwealth, and shall have and may exercise in the Commonwealth during the Queen's pleasure, but subject to this Constitution, such powers and functions of the Queen as Her Majesty may be pleased to assign to him.

3. There shall be payable to the Queen out of the Consolidated Revenue fund of the Commonwealth, for the salary of the Governor-General, an annual sum which, until the Parliament otherwise provides, shall be ten thousand pounds. The salary of the Governor-General shall not be altered during his continuance in office.

4. The provisions of this Constitution relating to the Governor-General extend and apply to the Governor-General for the time being, or such person as the Queen may appoint to administer the Government of the Commonwealth, but no such person shall be entitled to receive any salary from the Commonwealth in respect of any other office during his administration of the Government of the Commonwealth.

5. The Governor-General may appoint such times for holding the sessions of the Parliament as he thinks fit, and may also from time to time, by Proclamation or otherwise, prorogue the Parliament, and may in like manner dissolve the House of Representatives

After any general election the Parliament shall be summoned to meet not later than thirty days after the day appointed for the return of the writs. The Parliament shall be summoned to meet not later than six months after the establishment of the Commonwealth

6. There shall be a session of the Parliament once at least in every year, so that twelve months shall not intervene between the last sitting of the Parliament in one session and its first sitting in the next session

Part II—The Senate

7. The Senate shall be composed of senators for each State, directly chosen by the people of the State, voting, until the Parliament otherwise provides, as one electorate. But until the Parliament of the Commonwealth otherwise provides, the Parliament of the State of Queensland, if that State be an Original State, may make laws dividing the State into divisions and determining the number of senators to be chosen for each division, and in the absence of such provision the State shall be one electorate

Until the Parliament otherwise provides there shall be six senators for each Original State. The Parliament may make laws increasing or diminishing the number of senators for each State, but so that equal representation of the several Original States shall be maintained and that no Original State shall have less than six senators. The senators shall be chosen for a term of six years, and the names of the senators chosen for each State shall be certified by the Government to the Governor-General

8. The qualification of electors of senators shall be in each State that which is prescribed by this Constitution, or by the Parliament, as the qualification for electors of members of the House of Representatives, but in the choosing of senators each elector shall vote only once

9. The Parliament of the Commonwealth may make laws prescribing the method of choosing senators, but so that the method shall be uniform for all the States. Subject to any such law, the Parliament of each State may make laws prescribing the method of choosing the senators for that State

The Parliament of a State may make laws for determining the times and places of elections of senators for the State

10. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, but subject to this constitution, the laws in force in each State, for the time being, relating to elections for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State shall, as nearly as practicable, apply to elections of senators for the State

11. The Senate may proceed to despatch of business, notwithstanding the failure of any State to provide for its representation in the Senate

12. The Governor of any State may cause writs to be issued for elections of senators for the State. In case of the dissolution of the Senate the writs shall be issued within ten days from the proclamation of such dissolution.

13. As soon as may be after the Senate first meets, and after each first meeting of the Senate following a dissolution thereof, the Senate shall divide the senators chosen for each State into two classes, as nearly equal in number as practicable, and the places of the senators of the first class shall become vacant at the expiration of three years, and the places of those of the second class at the expiration of six years, from the beginning of their term of service, and afterwards the places of senators shall be vacant at the expiration of six years from the beginning of their term of service.

The election to fill vacant places shall be made within one year before the places are to become vacant.

For the purpose of this section the term of service of a senator shall be taken to begin on the first day of July following the day of his election, except in the cases of the first election and of the election next after any dissolution of the Senate, when it shall be taken to begin on the first day of July preceding the day of his election.

14. Whenever the number of senators for a State is increased or diminished, the Parliament of the Commonwealth may make such provision for the vacating of the places of senators for the State as it deems necessary to maintain regularity in the rotation.

15. If the place of a senator becomes vacant before the expiration of his term of service, the Houses of Parliament of the State for which he was chosen, sitting and voting together, or, if there is only one House of that Parliament, that House, shall choose a person to hold the place until the expiration of the term. But if the Parliament of the State is not in session when the vacancy is notified, the Governor of the State, with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, may appoint a person to hold the place until the expiration of fourteen days from the beginning of the next session of the Parliament of the State or the expiration of the term, whichever first happens.

Where a vacancy has at any time occurred in the place of a senator chosen by the people of a State and, at the time when he was so chosen, he was publicly recognised by a particular political party as being an endorsed candidate, a person chosen or appointed under this section in consequence of that vacancy, or in consequence of that vacancy and a subsequent vacancy or vacancies, shall, unless there is no member of that party available to be chosen or appointed, be a member of that party.

(a) in accordance with the last preceding paragraph, a member of a particular political party is chosen or appointed to hold the place of a senator whose place had become vacant, and

(b) before taking his seat he ceases to be a member of that party (otherwise than by reason of the party having ceased to exist), he shall be deemed not to have been so chosen or appointed and the vacancy shall be again notified in accordance with section twenty-one of this Constitution.

The name of a senator chosen or appointed under this section shall be certified by the Governor of the State to the Governor-General. If the place of a senator chosen by the people of a State at the election of senators last held before the commencement of the Constitution Alteration (Senate Casual Vacancies) 1977 became vacant before that commencement and, at that commencement, no person chosen by the House or Houses of Parliament of the State, or appointed by the Governor of the State, in consequence of that vacancy, or in consequence of that vacancy and a subsequent vacancy or vacancies, held office, this section applies as if the place of the senator chosen by the people of the State had become vacant after that commencement.

A senator holding office at the commencement of the Constitution Alteration (Senate Casual Vacancies) 1977, being a senator appointed by the Governor of a State in consequence of a vacancy that had at any time occurred in the place of a senator chosen by the people of the State, shall be deemed to have been appointed to hold the place until the expiration of fourteen days after the beginning of the next session of the Parliament of the State that commenced or commences after he was appointed and further action under this section shall be taken as if the vacancy in the place of the senator chosen by the people of the State had occurred after that commencement. Subject to the next succeeding paragraph, a senator holding office at the commencement of the Constitutional Alteration (Casual Senate Vacancies) 1977 who was chosen by the House or Houses of Parliament of a State in consequence of a vacancy that had at any time occurred in the place of a senator chosen by the people of the State shall be deemed to have been chosen to hold office until the expiration of the term of service of the senator elected by the people of the State.

If, at or before the commencement of the Constitution Alteration (Senate Casual Vacancies) 1977, a law to alter the Constitution entitled "Constitutional Alteration (Simultaneous Elections) 1977" came into operation, a senator holding office at the commencement of that law who was chosen by the House or Houses of Parliament of a State in consequence of a vacancy that had at any time occurred in the place of a senator chosen by the people of the State shall be deemed to have been chosen to hold office.

(a) if the senator elected by the people of the State had a term of service expiring on the thirtieth day of June, One thousand nine hundred and seventy-eight until the expiration or dissolution of the first House of Representatives to expire or be dissolved after that law came into operation, or

(b) if the senator elected by the people of the State had a term of service expiring on the thirtieth day of June, One thousand nine hundred and eighty-one until the expiration or dissolution of the first House of Representatives to expire or be dissolved after that law came into operation, or if there is an earlier dissolution of the Senate, until that dissolution.

16. The qualification of a senator shall be the same as those of a member of the House of Representatives.

17. The Senate shall, before proceeding to the despatch of any other business, choose a senator to be President of the Senate, and as often as the office of President becomes vacant the Senate shall again choose a senator to be the President. The President shall cease to hold his office if he ceases to be a senator. He may be removed from office by a vote of the Senate, or he may resign his office or his seat by writing addressed to the Governor-General.

18. Before or during any absence of the President, the Senate may choose a senator to perform his duties in his absence.

19. A senator may by writing addressed to the President or to the Governor-General if there is no President or if the President is absent from the Commonwealth, resign his place, which thereupon shall become vacant.

20. The place of a senator shall become vacant if for two consecutive months of any session of the Parliament he, without the permission of the Senate, fails to attend the Senate.

21. Whenever a vacancy happens in the Senate, the President, or if there is no President or if the President is absent from the Commonwealth the Governor-General, shall notify the same to the Governor of the State in the representation of which the vacancy has happened.

22. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the presence of at least one-third of the whole number of the senators shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Senate for the exercise of its powers.

23. Questions arising in the Senate shall be determined by a majority of votes, and each senator shall have one vote. The President shall in all cases be entitled to a vote, and when the votes are equal the question shall pass in the negative.

Part III—The House of Representatives

24. The House of Representatives shall be composed of members directly chosen by the people of the Commonwealth, and the number of such members shall be, as nearly as practicable, twice the number of senators. The number of members chosen in the several States shall be in proportion to the respective members of their people, and shall, until the Parliament otherwise provides, be determined whenever necessary, in the following manner.

(i) a quota shall be ascertained by dividing the number of the people of the Commonwealth, as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, by twice the number of senators,

(ii) the number of members to be chosen in each State shall be determined by dividing the number of people of the State, as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, by the quota; and if on such division there is a remainder greater than one-half of the quota, one more member shall be chosen in the State. But notwithstanding anything in this section, five members at least shall be chosen in each Original State.

25. For the purposes of the last section, if by the law of any State all persons of any race are disqualified from voting at elections for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State, then, in reckoning the number of the people of the State or of the Commonwealth, persons of the race resident in that State shall not be counted

26. Notwithstanding anything in section twenty-four, the number of members to be chosen in each State at the first election shall be as follows

New South Wales—twenty-three,

Victoria—twenty,

Queensland—eight,

South Australia—six,

Tasmania—five,

Provided that if Western Australia is an Original State, the numbers shall be as follows

New South Wales—twenty-six,

Victoria—twenty-three,

Queensland—nine,

South Australia—seven,

Western Australia—five,

Tasmania—five

27. Subject to this Constitution, the Parliament may make laws for increasing or diminishing the number of the members of the House of Representatives

28. Every House of Representatives shall continue for three years from the first meeting of the House, and no longer, but may be soon dissolved by the Governor-General

29. Until the Parliament of the Commonwealth otherwise provides, the Parliament of any State may make laws for determining the divisions in each State for which members of the House of Representatives may be chosen, and the number of members to be chosen for each division. A division shall not be formed out of parts of different States. In the absence of other provision each State shall be one electorate

30. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the qualification of electors of members of the House of Representatives shall be in each State that which is prescribed by the law of the State as the qualification of electors of the more numerous House of Parliament of the State, but in the choosing of members each elector shall vote only once

31. Until the parliament otherwise provides, but subject to this Constitution, the laws in force in each State for the time being relating to elections for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State shall, as nearly as practicable, apply to elections in the State of members of the House of Representatives

32. The Governor-General in Council may cause writs to be issued for general elections of members of the House of Representatives. After the first general election, the writs shall be issued within ten days from the expiry of a House of Representatives or from the proclamation of a dissolution thereof.

33. Whenever a vacancy happens in the House of Representatives, the Speaker shall issue his writ for the election of a new member, or if there is no Speaker or if he is absent from the Commonwealth for Governor-General in Council may issue the writ.

34. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the qualifications of a member of the House of Representatives shall be as follows:

(i) he must be of the full age of twenty-one years, and must be an elector entitled to vote at the election of members of the House of Representatives, or a person qualifies to become such elector, and must have been for three years at the least a resident within the limits of the Commonwealth as existing at the time when he was chosen,

(ii) he must be a subject of the Queen, either natural-born or for at least five years naturalised under a law of the United Kingdom, or of a Colony which has become or becomes a State, or of the Commonwealth, or of a State.

35. The House of Representatives shall, before proceeding to the despatch of any other business, choose a member to be the Speaker of the House, and as often as the office of Speaker becomes vacant the House shall again choose a member to be the Speaker. The Speaker shall cease to hold his office if he ceases to be a member. He may be removed from office by a vote of the House, or he may resign his office or his seat by writing addressed to the Governor-General.

36. Before or during any absence of the Speaker, the House of Representatives may choose a member to perform his duties in his absence.

37. A member may by writing addressed to the Speaker, or to the Governor-General if there is no Speaker or if the Speaker is absent from the Commonwealth, resign his place, which thereupon shall become vacant.

38. The place of a member shall become vacant if for two consecutive months of any session of the Parliament he, without the permission of the House, fails to attend the House.

39. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the presence of at least one-third of the whole number of the members of the House of Representatives shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the House for the exercise of its powers.

40. Questions arising in the House of Representatives shall be determined by a majority of votes other than that of the Speaker. The Speaker shall not vote unless the numbers are equal, and then he shall have a casting vote.

Part IV—Both Houses of the Parliament

41. No adult person who has or acquires a right to vote at elections for the more numerous House of the Parliament of a State shall, while the right continues, be prevented by any law of the Commonwealth from voting at elections for either House of the Parliament of the Commonwealth

42. Every senator and every member of the House of Representatives shall before taking his seat make and subscribe before the Governor-General, or some person authorised by him, an oath or affirmation of allegiance in the form set forth in the Schedule to this Constitution

43. A member of either House of Parliament shall be incapable of being chosen or of sitting as a member of the other House

44. Any person who

(i) is under any acknowledgement of allegiance, obedience, or adherence to a foreign power, or is a subject or a citizen or entitled to the rights and privileges of a subject or citizen of a foreign power, or

(ii) is attainted of treason, or has been convicted and is under sentence, or subject to be sentenced, for any offence punishable under the law of the Commonwealth or of a State by imprisonment for one year or longer, or

(iii) is an undischarged bankrupt or insolvent, or

(iv) holds any office of profit under the Crown, or any pension payable during the pleasure of the Crown out of any of the revenues of the Commonwealth, or

(v) has any direct or indirect pecuniary interest in any agreement with the Public Service of the Commonwealth otherwise than as a member and in common with the other members of an incorporated company consisting of more than twenty-five persons, shall be incapable of being chosen or of sitting as a senator or a member of the House of Representatives. But sub-section (iv) does not apply to the office of any of the Queen's Ministers of State for the Commonwealth, or of any of the Queen's Ministers for a State, or to the receipt of pay, half pay, or a pension, by any person as an officer or member of the Queen's navy or army, or to the receipt of pay as an officer or member of the naval or military forces of the Commonwealth by any person whose services are not wholly employed by the Commonwealth

45. If a senator or member of the House of Representatives

(i) becomes subject to any of the disabilities mentioned in the last preceding section, or

(ii) takes the benefit, whether by assignment, composition, or otherwise, of any law relating to bankrupt or insolvent debtors, or

(iii) directly or indirectly takes or agrees to take any fee or honorarium for services rendered to the Commonwealth, or for services rendered in the Parliament to any person or State, his place shall thereupon become vacant

46. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, any person declared by this Constitution to be incapable of sitting as a senator or as a member of the House of Representatives shall, for every day on which he so sits, be liable to pay the sum of one hundred pounds to any person who sues for it in any court of competent jurisdiction

47. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, any question respecting the qualification of a senator or member of the House of Representatives, or respecting a vacancy in either House of the Parliament, and any question of a disputed election to either House, shall be determined by the House in which the question arises.

48. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, each senator and each member of the House of Representatives shall receive an allowance of four hundred pounds a year, to be reckoned from the day on which he takes his seat

49. The powers, privileges, and immunities of the Senate and of the House of Representatives, and of the members and the committees of each House, shall be such as are declared by the Parliament, and until declared shall be those of the Commons House of Parliament of the United Kingdom, and of its members and committees, at the establishment of the Commonwealth

50. Each House of the Parliament may make rules and orders with respect to—

(i) The mode in which its powers, privileges, and immunities may be exercised and upheld,

(ii) The order and conduct of its business and proceedings either separately or jointly with the other House

Part V—Powers of the Parliament

51. The Parliament shall, subject to this Constitution, have power to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to,

(i) trade and commerce with other countries, and among the States;

(ii) taxation, but so as not to discriminate between States or parts of States,

(iii) bounties on the production or export of goods, but so that such bounties shall be uniform throughout the Commonwealth,

(iv) borrowing money on the public credit of the Commonwealth;

(v) postal, telegraphic, telephonic, and other like services;

(vi) the naval and military defence of the Commonwealth and of the several States, and the control of the forces to execute and maintain the laws of the Commonwealth;

(vii) lighthouses, lightships, beacons and buoys,

(viii) astronomical and meteorological observations,

- (ix) quarantine,
- (x) fisheries in Australian waters beyond territorial limits,
- (xi) census and statistics,
- (xii) currency, coinage, and legal tender,
- (xiii) banking, other than State banking, also State banking extending beyond the limits of the State concerned, the incorporation of banks, and the issue of paper money,
- (xiv) insurance, other than State insurance, also State insurance extending beyond the limits of the State concerned,
- (xv) weights and measures,
- (xvi) bills of exchange and promissory notes,
- (xvii) bankruptcy and insolvency,
- (xviii) copyrights, patents of inventions and designs, and trade marks,
- (xix) naturalisation and aliens,
- (xx) foreign corporations, and trading or financial corporations formed within the limits of the Commonwealth,
- (xxi) marriage,
- (xxii) divorce and matrimonial causes, and in relation thereto, parental rights, and the custody and guardianship of infants,
- (xxiii) invalid and old-age pensions,
- (xxiiiA) the provision of maternity allowances, widows' pensions, child endowment, unemployment, pharmaceutical, sickness and hospital benefits, medical and dental services (but not so as to authorise any form of civil conscription), benefits to students and family allowances,
- (xxiv) the service and execution throughout the Commonwealth of the civil and criminal process and the judgments of the courts of the States,
- (xxv) the recognition throughout the Commonwealth of the laws, the public Acts and records, and the judicial proceedings of the States,
- (xxvi) the people of any race, for whom it is deemed necessary to make special laws,
- (xxvii) immigration and emigration,
- (xxviii) the influx of criminals,
- (xxix) external affairs,
- (xxx) the relations of the Commonwealth with the islands of the Pacific,
- (xxxi) the acquisition of property on just terms from any State or person for any purpose in respect of which the Parliament has power to make laws,
- (xxxii) the control of railways with respect to transport for the naval and military purposes of the Commonwealth,
- (xxxiii) the acquisition, with the consent of a State, of any railways of the State on terms arranged between the Commonwealth and the State,

(xxxiv) railway construction and extension in any State with the consent of that State; (xxxv) conciliation and arbitration for the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State.

(xxxvi) matters in respect of which this Constitution makes provision until the Parliament otherwise provides,

(xxxvii) matters referred to the Parliament of the Commonwealth by the Parliament or Parliaments of any State or States, but so that the law shall extend only to States by whose Parliaments the matter is referred, or which afterwards adopt the law,

(xxxviii) the exercise within the Commonwealth, at the request or with the concurrence of the Parliaments of all the States directly concerned, of any power which can at the establishment of this Constitution be exercised only by the Parliament of the United Kingdom or by the Federal Council of Australasia;

(xxxix) matters incidental to the execution of any power vested by this Constitution in the Parliament or in either House thereof, or in the Government of the Commonwealth, or in the Federal Judicature, or in any department or officer of the Commonwealth

52. The Parliament shall, subject to this Constitution, have exclusive power to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to

(i) the seat of government of the Commonwealth, and all places acquired by the Commonwealth for public purposes;

(ii) matters relating to any department of the public service the control of which is by this Constitution transferred to the Executive Government or the Commonwealth,

(iii) other matters declared by this Constitution to be within the exclusive power of the Parliament

53. Proposed laws appropriating revenue or moneys, or imposing taxation, shall not originate in the Senate. But a proposed law shall not be taken to appropriate revenue or moneys, or to impose taxation, by reason only of its containing provisions for the imposition or appropriation of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment or appropriation of fees for licences, or fees for services under the proposed law

The Senate may not amend proposed laws imposing taxation, or proposed laws appropriating revenue or moneys for the ordinary annual services of the Government. The Senate may not amend any proposed law so as to increase any proposed charge or burden on the people.

The Senate may at any stage return to the House of Representatives any proposed law which the Senate may not amend, requesting, by message, the omission or amendment of any items or provisions therein. And the House of Representatives may, if it thinks fit, make any of such omissions or amendments, with or without modifications. Except as provided in this section, the Senate shall have equal power with the House of Representatives in respect of all proposed laws

54. The proposed law which appropriates revenue or moneys for the ordinary annual services of the Government shall deal only with such appropriation

55. Laws imposing taxation shall deal only with the imposition of taxation, and any provision therein dealing with any other matter shall be of no effect. Laws imposing taxation except laws imposing duties of customs or of excise, shall deal with one subject of taxation only, but laws imposing duties of customs shall deal with duties of customs only, and laws imposing duties of excise shall deal with duties of excise only

56. A vote, resolution, or proposed law for the appropriation of revenue or moneys shall not be passed unless the purpose of the appropriation has in the same session been recommended by message of the Governor-General to the House in which the proposal originated

57. If the House of Representatives passes any proposed law, and the Senate rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with amendments to which the House of Representatives will not agree, and if after an interval of three months the House of Representatives, in the same or the next session, again passes the proposed law with or without any amendments which have been made, suggested, or agreed to by the Senate, and the Senate rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with amendments to which the House of Representatives will not agree, the Governor-General may dissolve the Senate and the House of Representatives simultaneously. But such dissolution shall not take place within six months before the date of the expiry of the House of Representatives by effluxion of time

If after such dissolution the House of Representatives again passes the proposed law, with or without any amendments which have been made, suggested, or agreed to by the Senate, and the Senate rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with amendments to which the House of Representatives will not agree, the Governor-General may convene a joint sitting of the members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives

The members present at the joint sitting may deliberate and shall vote together upon the proposed law as last proposed by the House of Representatives, and upon amendments, if any, which have been made therein by one House and not agreed to by the other, and any such amendments which are affirmed by an absolute majority of the total number of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives shall be taken to have been carried, and if the proposed law, with the amendments, if any, so carried is affirmed by an absolute majority of the total number of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, it shall be taken to have been duly passed by Houses of the Parliament, and shall be presented to the Governor-General for the Queen's assent

58. When a proposed law passed by both Houses of the Parliament is presented to the Governor-General for the Queen's assent, he shall declare, according to his discretion, but subject to this Constitution, that he assents in the Queen's name, or that he withholds assent, or that he reserves the law for the Queen's pleasure. The Governor-General may return to the House in which it originated any proposed law so presented to him, and may transmit therewith any amendments which he may recommend, and the Houses may deal with the recommendation.

59. The Queen may disallow any law within one year from the Governor-General's assent, and such disallowance on being made known by the Governor-General by speech or message to each of the Houses of the Parliament, or by Proclamation, shall annul the law from the day when the disallowance is so made known.

60. A proposed law reserved for the Queen's pleasure shall not have any force unless and until within two years from the day on which it was presented to the Governor-General for the Queen's assent the Governor-General makes known, by speech or message to each of the Houses of the Parliament, or by Proclamation, that it has received the Queen's assent.

THE EXECUTIVE GOVERNMENT

61. The executive power of the Commonwealth is vested in the Queen and is exercisable by the Governor-General as the Queen's representative, and extends to the execution and maintenance of this Constitution, and of the laws of the Commonwealth.

62. There shall be a Federal Executive Council to advise the Governor-General in the government of the Commonwealth, and the members of the Council shall be chosen and summoned by the Governor-General and sworn as Executive Councillors, and shall hold office during his pleasure.

63. The provisions of this Constitution referring to the Governor-General in Council shall be construed as referring to the Governor-General acting with the advice of the Federal Executive Council.

64. The Governor-General may appoint officers to administer such departments of State of the Commonwealth as the Governor-General in Council may establish. Such officers shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor-General. They shall be members of the Federal Executive Council, and shall be the Queen's Ministers of State for the Commonwealth.

After the first general election no Minister of State shall hold office for a longer period than three months unless he is or becomes a senator or a member of the House of Representatives.

65. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the Ministers of the State shall not exceed seven in number, and shall hold such offices as the Parliament prescribes, or, in the absence of provision, as the Governor-General directs.

66. There shall be payable to the Queen, out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Commonwealth, for the salaries of the Ministers of State, an annual sum which, until the Parliament otherwise provides, shall not exceed twelve thousand pounds a year

67. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the appointment and removal of all other officers of the Executive Government of the Commonwealth shall be vested in the Governor-General in Council, unless the appointment is delegated by the Governor-General in Council or by a law of the Commonwealth to some other authority

68. The command in chief of the naval and military forces of the Commonwealth is vested in the Governor-General as the Queen's representative

69. On a date or dates to be proclaimed by the Governor-General after the establishment of the Commonwealth the following departments of the public service in each State shall become transferred to the Commonwealth

Posts, telegraphs, and telephones,

Naval and military defence,

Lighthouses, lightships, beacons, and buoys,

Quarantine

But the departments of customs and of excise in each State shall become transferred to the Commonwealth on its establishment

70. In respect of matters which, under this Constitution, pass to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth, all powers and functions which at the establishment of the Commonwealth are vested in the Governor of a Colony, or in the Governor of a Colony with the advice of his Executive Council, or in any authority of a Colony, shall vest in the Governor-General, or in the Governor-General in Council, or in the authority exercising similar powers under the Commonwealth, as the case requires

THE JUDICATURE

71. The judicial power of the Commonwealth shall be vested in a Federal Supreme Court, to be called the High Court of Australia, and in such other Federal courts as the Parliament creates, and in such other courts as it invests with Federal jurisdiction. The High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice, and so many other Justices, not less than two, as the Parliament prescribes

72. The Justices of the High Court and of the other courts created by the Parliament

(i) shall be appointed by the Governor-General in Council,

(ii) shall not be removed except by the Governor-General in Council, on an address from both Houses of the Parliament in the same session, praying for such removal on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity,

(iii) shall receive such remuneration as the Parliament may fix, but the remuneration shall not be diminished during their continuance in office

The appointment of a Justice of the High Court shall be for a term expiring upon his attaining the age of seventy years, and a person shall not be appointed as a Justice of the High Court if he has attained that age

The appointment of a Justice of a court created by the Parliament shall be for a term expiring upon his attaining the age that is, at the time of his appointment, the maximum age for Justices of that court and a person shall not be appointed as a Justice of such a court if he has attained the age that is for the time being the maximum age for Justices of that court. Subject to this section, the maximum age for Justices of any court created by the Parliament is seventy years.

The Parliament may make a law fixing an age that is less than seventy years as the maximum age for Justices of a court created by the Parliament and may at any time repeal or amend such a law, but any such repeal or amendment does not affect the term of office of a Justice under an appointment made before the repeal or amendment. A Justice of the High Court or of a court created by the Parliament may resign his office by writing under his hand delivered to the Governor-General.

Nothing in the provisions added to this section by the Constitution Alteration (Retirement of Judges) 1977 affects the continuance of a person in office as a Justice of a court under an appointment made before the commencement of those provisions.

A reference in this section to the appointment of a Justice of the High Court or of a court created by the Parliament shall be read as including a reference to the appointment of a person who holds office as a Justice of the High Court or of a court created by the Parliament to another office of Justice of the same court having a different status or designation.

73. The High Court shall have jurisdiction, with such exceptions and subject to such regulations as the Parliament prescribes, to hear and determine appeals from all judgments, decrees, orders, and sentences

(i) of any Justice or Justices exercising the original jurisdiction of the High Court,

(ii) of any other Federal court, or court exercising Federal jurisdiction; or of the Supreme Court of any State, or of any other court of any State from which at the establishment of the Commonwealth an appeal lies to the Queen in Council,

(iii) of the Inter-State Commission, but as to questions of law only and the judgment of the High Court in all such cases shall be final and conclusive.

But no exception or regulation prescribed by the Parliament shall prevent the High Court from hearing and determining any appeal from the Supreme Court of a State in any matter in which at the establishment of the Commonwealth an appeal lies from such Supreme Court to the Queen in Council. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the conditions of and restrictions on appeals to the Queen in Council from the Supreme Courts of the several States shall be applicable to appeals from them to the High Court.

74. No appeal shall be permitted to the Queen in Council from a decision of the High Court upon any question, howsoever arising, as to the limits inter se of the Constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of any State or States, or as to the limits inter se of the Constitutional powers of any two or more States, unless the High Court shall certify that the Question is one which ought to be determined by Her Majesty in Council

The High Court may so certify if satisfied that for any special reason the certificate should be granted, and thereupon an appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council on the question without further leave

Except as provided in this section, this Constitution shall not impair any right which the Queen may be please to exercise by virtue of Her Royal prerogative to grant special leave of appeal from the High Court to Her Majesty in Council The Parliament may make laws limiting the matters in which leave may be asked, but proposed laws containing any such limitations shall be reserved by the Governor-General for Her Majesty's pleasure

75. In all matters

- (i) arising under any treaty,
  - (ii) affecting consuls or other representatives of other countries,
  - (iii) in which the Commonwealth, or a person suing or being sued on behalf of the Commonwealth, is a party,
  - (iv) between States, or between residents of different States, or between a State and a resident of another State,
  - (v) in which a writ of Mandamus or prohibition or an injunction is sought against an officer of the Commonwealth,
- the High Court shall have original jurisdiction

76. The Parliament may make laws conferring original jurisdiction on the High Court in any matter

- (i) arising under this Constitution, or involving its interpretation,
- (ii) arising under any laws made by the Parliaments,
- (iii) of Admiralty and maritime jurisdiction,
- (iv) relating to the same subject-matter claimed under the laws of different States

77. With respect to any of the matters mentioned in the last two sections the Parliament may make laws

- (i) defining the jurisdiction of any Federal court other than the High Court,
- (ii) defining the extent to which the jurisdiction of any Federal court shall be exclusive of that which belongs to or is invested in the courts of the States,
- (iii) investing any court of a State with Federal jurisdiction

78. The Parliament may make laws conferring rights to proceed against the Commonwealth or a State in respect of matters within the limits of the judicial power

79. The Federal jurisdiction of any court may be exercised by such number of judges as the Parliament prescribes.

80. The trial on indictment of any offence against any law of the Commonwealth shall be by jury, and every such trial shall be held in the State where the offence was committed, and if the offence was not committed within any State the trial shall be held at such place or places as the Parliament prescribes.

CHAPTER IV FINANCE AND TRADE

81. All revenues or moneys raised or received by the Executive Government of the Commonwealth shall form one Consolidated Revenue Fund, to be appropriated for the purposes of the Commonwealth in the manner and subject to the charges and liabilities imposed by this Constitution.

82. The costs, charges, and expenses incident to the collection, management, and receipt of the Consolidated Revenue Fund shall form the first charge thereon, and the revenue of the Commonwealth shall in the first instance be applied to the payment of the expenditure of the Commonwealth.

83. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury of the Commonwealth except under appropriation made by law. But until the expiration of one month after the first meeting of the Parliament the Governor-General in Council may draw from the Treasury and expend such moneys as may be necessary for the maintenance of any department transferred to the Commonwealth and for the holding of the first elections for the Parliament.

84. When any department of the public service of a State becomes transferred to the Commonwealth, all officers of the department shall become subject to the control of the Executive Government of the Commonwealth.

Any such officer who is not retained in the service of the Commonwealth shall, unless he is appointed to some other office of equal emolument in the public service of the State, be entitled to receive from the State any pension, gratuity, or other compensation, payable under the law of the State on the abolition of his office.

Any such officer who is retained in the service of the Commonwealth shall preserve all his existing and accruing rights, and shall be entitled to retire from office at the time, and on the pension or retiring allowance, which would be permitted by the law of the State if his service with the Commonwealth were a continuation of his service with the State. Such pension or retiring allowance shall be paid to him by the Commonwealth, but the State shall pay to the Commonwealth a part thereof, to be calculated on the proportion which his term of service with the State bears to his whole term of service, and for the purpose of the calculation his salary shall be taken to be that paid to him by the State at the time of the transfer.

Any officer who is, at the establishment of the Commonwealth, in the public service of a State, and who is, by consent of the Governor of the State with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, transferred to the public service of the Commonwealth, shall have the same rights as if he had been an officer of a department transferred to the Commonwealth and were retained in the service of the Commonwealth

85. When any department of the public service of a State is transferred to the Commonwealth

(i) all property of the State of any kind, used exclusively in connection with the department, shall become vested in the Commonwealth, but, in the case of the departments controlling customs and excise and bounties, for such time only as the Governor-General in Council may declare to be necessary,

(ii) the Commonwealth may acquire any property of the State, of any kind used, but not exclusively used in connection with the department, the value thereof shall, if no agreement can be made, be ascertained in, as nearly as may be, the manner in which the value of land, or of an interest in land, taken by the State for public purposes is ascertained under the law of the State in force at the establishment of the Commonwealth,

(iii) the Commonwealth shall compensate the State for the value of any property passing to the Commonwealth under this section, if no agreement can be made as to the mode of compensation, it shall be determined under laws to be made by the Parliament,

(iv) the Commonwealth shall, at the date of the transfer, assume the current obligations of the State in respect of the department transferred

86. On the establishment of the Commonwealth, the collection and control of duties of customs and of excise, and the control of the payment of bounties, shall pass to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth

87. During a period of ten years after the establishment of the Commonwealth and thereafter until the Parliament otherwise provides, of the net revenue of the Commonwealth from duties of customs and of excise not more than one-fourth shall be applied annually by the Commonwealth towards its expenditure

The balance shall, in accordance with the Constitution, be paid to the several States, or applied towards the payment of interest on debts of the several States taken over by the Commonwealth

88. Uniform duties of customs shall be imposed within two years after the establishment of the Commonwealth

89. Until the imposition of uniform duties of custom

(i) the Commonwealth shall credit to each State the revenues collected therein by the Commonwealth,

(ii) the Commonwealth shall debit to each State

(a) the expenditure therein of the Commonwealth incurred solely for the maintenance or continuance, as at the time of transfer, of any department transferred from the State to the Commonwealth,

(b) the proportion of the State, according to the number of its people, in the other expenditure of the Commonwealth

(ii) the Commonwealth shall pay to each State month by month the balance (if any) in favour of the State

90. On the imposition of uniform duties of customs the power of the Parliament to impose duties of customs and of excise, and to grant bounties on the production or export of goods shall become exclusive

On the imposition of uniform duties of customs all laws of the several States imposing duties of customs or of excise, or offering bounties on the production or export of goods, shall cease to have effect, but any grant or agreement for any such bounty lawfully made by or under the authority of the Government of any State shall be taken to be good if made before the thirtieth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and ninety eight, and not otherwise

91. Nothing in this Constitution prohibits a State from granting any aid to or bounty on mining for gold, silver, or other metals, not from granting, with the consent of both Houses of the Parliament of the Commonwealth expressed by resolution, any aid to or bounty on the production or export of goods

92. On the imposition of uniform duties of customs, trade, commerce, and intercourse among the States, whether by means of internal carriage or ocean navigation, shall be absolutely free

But notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, goods imported before the imposition of uniform duties of customs into any State, or into any Colony which, whilst the goods remain therein, becomes a State, shall, on thence passing into another State within two years after the imposition of such duties, be liable to any duty chargeable on the importation of such goods into the Commonwealth, less any duty paid in respect of the goods on their importation

93. During the first five years after the imposition of uniform duties of customs, and thereafter until the Parliament otherwise provides

(i) the duties of customs chargeable on goods imported into a State and afterwards passing into another State for consumption, and the duties of excise paid on goods produced or manufactured in a State and afterwards passing into another State for consumption, shall be taken to have been collected not in the former but in the latter State,

(ii) subject to the last subsection, the Commonwealth shall credit revenue, debit expenditure, and pay balances to the several States as prescribed for the period preceding the imposition of uniform duties of customs

94. After five years from the imposition of uniform duties of customs, the Parliament may provide, on such basis as it deems fair, for the monthly payment to the several States of all surplus revenue of the Commonwealth

95. Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the Parliament of the State of Western Australia, if that State be an Original State, may, during the first five years after the imposition of uniform duties of customs, impose duties of customs on goods passing into that State and not originally imported from beyond the limits of the Commonwealth, and such duties shall be collected by the Commonwealth

But any duty so imposed on any goods shall not exceed during the first of such years the duty chargeable on the goods under the law of Western Australia in force at the imposition of uniform duties, and shall not exceed during the second, third, fourth, and fifth of such years respectively, four-fifths, two-fifth, and one-fifth of such latter duty, and all duties imposed under this section shall cease at the expiration of the fifth year after the imposition of uniform duties

If at any time during the five years the duty on any goods under this section is higher than the duty imposed by the Commonwealth on the importation of the like goods, then such higher duty shall be collected on the goods when imported into Western Australia from beyond the limits of the Commonwealth

96. During a period of ten years after the establishment of the Commonwealth and thereafter until the Parliament otherwise provides, the Parliament may grant financial assistance to any State on such terms and conditions as the Parliament thinks fit

97. Until the Parliament otherwise provides, the laws in force in any Colony which has become or becomes a State with respect to the receipt of revenue and the expenditure of money on account of the Government of the Colony, and the review and audit of such receipt and expenditure, shall apply to the receipt of revenue and the expenditure of money on account of the Commonwealth in the State in the same manner as if the Commonwealth, or the Government or an officer of the Commonwealth were mentioned whenever the Colony, or the Government or an officer of the Colony, is mentioned

98. The power of the Parliament to make laws with respect to trade and commerce extends to navigation and shipping, and to railways the property of any State

99. The Commonwealth shall not, by any law or regulation of trade, commerce, or revenue, give preference to one State or any part thereof over another State or any part thereof

100. The Commonwealth shall not, by any law or regulation of trade or commerce, abridge the right of a State or of the residents therein to the reasonable use of the waters of rivers for conservation or irrigation

101. There shall be an Inter-State Commission, with such powers of adjudication and administration as the Parliament deems necessary for the execution and maintenance, within the Commonwealth, of the provisions of this Constitution relating to trade and commerce, and of all laws made thereunder

102. The Parliament may by any law with respect to trade or commerce forbid, as to railways, any preference or discrimination by any State, or by any authority constituted under a State, if such preference or discrimination is undue and unreasonable, or unjust to any State; due regard being had to the financial responsibilities incurred by any State in connection with the construction and maintenance of its railways. But no preference or discrimination shall, within the meaning of this section, be taken to be undue and unreasonable, or unjust to any State, unless so adjudged by the Inter-State Commission

103. The members of the Inter-State Commission

(i) shall be appointed by the Governor-General in Council,

(ii) shall hold office for seven years, but may be removed within that time by the Governor-General in Council, on an address from both Houses of the Parliament in the same session praying for such removal on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity;

(iii) shall receive such remuneration as the Parliament may fix; but such remuneration shall not be diminished during their continuance in office

104. Nothing in this Constitution shall render unlawful any rate for the carriage of goods upon a railway, the property of a State, if the rate is deemed by the Inter-State Commission to be necessary for the development of the territory of the State, and if the rate applies equally to goods within the State and to goods passing into the State from other States

105. The Parliament may take over from the States their public debts, or a proportion thereof according to the respective numbers of their people as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, and may convert, renew, or consolidate such debts, or any part thereof, and the States shall indemnify the Commonwealth in respect of the debts taken over, and thereafter the interest payable in respect of the debts shall be deducted and retained from the portions of the surplus revenue of the Commonwealth payable to the several States, or if such surplus is insufficient, or if there is no surplus, then the deficiency or the whole amount shall be paid by the several States

105A. (1) The Commonwealth may make agreements with the States with respect to the public debts of the States, including

(a) the taking over of such debts by the Commonwealth,

(b) the management of such debts,

(c) the paying of interest and the provision and management of sinking funds in respect of such debts,

(d) the consolidation, renewal, conversion, and redemption of such debts,

(e) the indemnification of the Commonwealth by the States in respect of debts taken over by the Commonwealth, and

(f) the borrowing of money by the States or by the Commonwealth, or by the Commonwealth for the States

(2) The Parliament may make laws for validating any such agreement made before the commencement of this section

(3) The Parliament may make laws for the carrying out by the parties of any such agreement

(4) Any such agreement may be varied or rescinded by the parties therein

(5) Every such agreement and any such variation thereof shall be binding upon the Commonwealth and the States parties thereto notwithstanding anything contained in this Constitution or the Constitution of the several States or in any law of the Parliament of the Commonwealth or of any State

(6) The powers conferred by this section shall not be construed as being limited in any way by the provision of section one hundred and five of this Constitution

THE STATES

106 The Constitution of each State of the Commonwealth shall, subject to this Constitution, continue as at the establishment of the Commonwealth, or as at the admission or establishment of the State, as the case may be, until altered in accordance with the Constitution of the State

107. Every power of the Parliament of a Colony which has become or becomes a State, shall, unless it is by this Constitution exclusively vested in the Parliament of the Commonwealth or withdrawn from the Parliament of the State, continue as at the establishment of the Commonwealth, or as at the admission or establishment of the State, as the case may be

108. Every law in force in a Colony which has become or becomes a State, and relating to any matter within the powers of the Parliament of the Commonwealth shall, subject to this Constitution, continue in force in the State, and, until provision is made in that behalf by the Parliament of the Commonwealth, the Parliament of the State shall have such powers of alteration and of repeal in respect of any such law as the Parliament of the Colony had until the Colony became a State

109. When a law of a State is inconsistent with a law of the Commonwealth, the latter shall prevail, and the former shall, to the extent of the inconsistency, be invalid

110. The provisions of this Constitution relating to the Governor of a State extend and apply to the Governor for the time being of the State, or other chief executive officer or administrator of the government of the State

111. The Parliament of a State may surrender any part of the State to the Commonwealth, and upon such surrender, and the acceptance thereof by the Commonwealth, such part of the State shall become subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commonwealth

112. After uniform duties of customs have been imposed, a State may levy on imports, or on goods passing into or out of the State such charges as may be necessary for executing the inspection laws of the State, but the net produce of all charges so levied shall be for the use of the Commonwealth, and any such inspection laws may be annulled by the Parliament of the Commonwealth

113. All fermented, distilled, or other intoxicating liquids passing into any State or remaining therein for use, consumption, sale, or storage, shall be subject to the laws of the State as if such liquids had been produced in the State

114. A State shall not, without the consent of the Parliament of the Commonwealth, raise or maintain any naval or military force, or impose any tax on property of any kind belonging to the Commonwealth, nor shall the Commonwealth impose any tax on property of any kind belonging to a State

115. A State shall not coin money, nor make anything but gold and silver coin a legal tender in payment of debts

116. The Commonwealth shall not make any law for establishing any religion, or for imposing any religious observance, or for prohibiting the free exercise of any religion, and no religious test shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust under the Commonwealth

117. A subject of the Queen, resident in any State, shall not be subject to any other State to any disability or discrimination which would not be equally applicable to him if he were a subject of the Queen resident in such other State

118. Full faith and credit shall be given, throughout the Commonwealth to the laws, the public Acts and records, and the judicial proceeding of every State

119. The Commonwealth shall protect every State against the invasion and, on the application of the Executive Government of the State, against domestic violence

120. Every State shall make provisions for the detention in its prisons of persons accused or convicted of offences against the laws of the Commonwealth, and for the punishment of persons convicted of such offences, and the Parliament of the Commonwealth may make laws to give effects to this provision.

NEW STATES

121. The Parliament may admit to the Commonwealth or establish new States, and may upon such admission or establishment make or impose such terms and conditions, including the extent of representation in either House of the Parliament, as it thinks fit

122. The Parliament may make laws for the government of any territory surrendered by any State to and accepted by the Commonwealth, or of any territory placed by the Queen under the authority of an accepted by the Commonwealth, and may allow the representation of such territory in either House of the Parliament to the extent and on the terms which it thinks fit

123. The Parliament of the Commonwealth may, with the consent of the Parliament of a State, and the approval of the majority of the electors of the State voting upon the question, increase, diminish, or otherwise alter the limits of the State, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed on, and may, with the like consent, make provision respecting the effect and operation of any increase or diminution or alteration of territory in relation to any State affected

124. A new State may be formed by separation of territory from a State, but only with the consent of the Parliament thereof, and a new State may be formed by the union of two or more States or parts of States, but only with the consent of the Parliaments of the States affected

MISCELLANEOUS

125. The seat of Government of the Commonwealth shall be determined by the Parliament, and shall be within territory which shall have been granted to or acquired by the Commonwealth, and shall be vested in and belong to the Commonwealth, and shall be in the State of New South Wales, and be distant not less than one hundred miles from Sydney.

Such territory shall contain an area of not less than one hundred square miles, and such portion thereof as shall consist of Crown lands shall be granted to the Commonwealth without any payment therefor. The Parliament shall sit at Melbourne until it meet at the seat of Government

126. The Queen may authorise the Governor-General to appoint any person, or any persons jointly or severally, to be his deputy or deputies within any part of the Commonwealth, and in that capacity to exercise during the pleasure of the Governor-General as he thinks fit to assign to such deputy or deputies, subject to any limitations expressed or directions given by the Queen, but the appointment of such deputy or deputies shall not affect the exercise by the Governor-General himself of any power or function

ALTERATION OF THE CONSTITUTION

128. This Constitution shall not be altered except in the following manner

The proposed law for the alteration thereof must be passed by an absolute majority of each House of the Parliament, and not less than two nor more than six months after its passage through both Houses the proposed law shall be submitted in each State and Territory to the electors qualified to vote for the election of members of the House of Representatives

But if either House passes any such proposed law by an absolute majority, and the other House rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with any amendments to which the first-mentioned House will not agree, and if after an interval of three months the first-mentioned House in the same or the next session again passes the proposed law by an absolute majority with or without any amendment which has been made or agreed to by the other House, and such other House rejects or fails to pass it or passes it with any amendment to which the first-mentioned House will not agree, the Governor-General may submit the proposed law as last proposed by the first-mentioned House, and either with or without any amendments subsequently agreed to by both Houses, to the electors in each State and Territory qualified to vote for the election of the House of Representatives

When a proposed law is submitted to the electors the vote shall be taken in such manner as the Parliament prescribes. But until the qualification of electors of members of the House of Representatives becomes uniform throughout the Commonwealth, only one-half the electors voting for and against the proposed law shall be counted in any State in which adult suffrage prevails

And if in a majority of the States a majority of the electors voting approve the proposed law, and if a majority of all the electors voting also approve the proposed law, it shall be presented to the Governor-General for the Queen's assent

No alteration diminishing the proportionate representation of any State in either House of the Parliament, or the minimum number of representatives of a State in the House of Representatives, in increasing, diminishing, or otherwise altering the limits of the State, or in any manner affecting the provisions of the Constitution in relation thereto, shall become law unless the majority of the electors voting in that State approve the proposed law

In this section "Territory" means any territory referred to in section one hundred and twenty-two of this Constitution in respect of which there is in force a law allowing its representation in the House of Representatives

CONSTITUTION OF PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF BANGLADESH

BISMILLAH-AR-RAHIMAN-AR-RAHIM

(In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful)

PREAMBLE

We, the people of Bangladesh, having proclaimed our Independence on the 26th day of March, 1971 and through a historic war for national independence, established the independent, sovereign People's Republic of Bangladesh,

Pledging that the high ideals of absolute trust and faith in the Almighty Allah, nationalism, democracy and socialism meaning economic and social justice, which inspired our heroic people to dedicate themselves to, and our brave martyrs to sacrifice their lives in the war for national independence, shall be fundamental principles of the Constitution;

Further pledging that it shall be a fundamental aim of the State to realise through the democratic process to socialist society, free from exploitation—a society in which the rule of law, fundamental human rights and freedom, equality and justice, political, economic and social, will be secured for all citizens,

Affirming that it is our sacred duty to safeguard, protect and defend this Constitution and to maintain its supremacy as the embodiment of the will of the people of Bangladesh so that we may prosper in freedom and may make our full contribution towards international peace and co-operation in keeping with the progressive aspirations of mankind,

In our Constituent Assembly, this eighteenth day of Kartick, 1379 B S corresponding to the fourth day of November, 1972 A D, do hereby adopt, enact and give to ourselves this Constitution

THE REPUBLIC

1. The Republic

Bangladesh is a unitary, independent, sovereign Republic to be known as the People's Republic of Bangladesh

2. The territory of the Republic

The territory of the Republic shall comprise—

(e) any sums required to satisfy a judgment, decree or award against the Republic by any court or tribunal, and

(f) any other expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund by this Constitution or by Act of Parliament

89. Procedure relating to annual financial statement

(1) So much of the annual financial statement as relates to expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund may be discussed in, but shall not be submitted to the vote of, Parliament

(2) So much of the annual financial statement as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted to Parliament in the form of demands for grants, and Parliament shall have power to assent to or to refuse to assent to any demand, or to assent to it subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the President

90. Appropriation Act

(1) As soon as may be after the grants under article 89 have been made by Parliament there shall be introduced in Parliament a Bill to provide for appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of all moneys required to meet—

(a) the grants so made by Parliament, and

(b) the expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund but not exceeding in any case the amount shown in the annual financial statement laid before Parliament

(2) No amendment shall be proposed in Parliament to any such Bill which has the effect of varying the amount of any grant so made or altering the purpose to which it is to be applied, or of varying the amount of any expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution no money shall be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund except under appropriation made by law passed in accordance with the provisions of this article

91. Supplementary and excess grants

If in respect of any financial year it is found—

(a) that the amount authorised to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is insufficient or that a need has arisen for expenditure upon some new service not included in the annual financial statement for that year, or

(b) that any money has been spent on a service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service for that year The President shall have power to authorise expenditure from the Consolidated Fund whether or not it is charged by or under the Constitution upon that Fund and shall cause to be laid before Parliament a supplementary financial statement setting out the estimated amount of the expenditure or, as the case may be an excess financial statement setting out the amount of the excess, and the provisions of articles 87 to 90 shall (with the necessary adaptations) apply in relation to those statements as they apply in relation to the annual financial statement

92. Votes on account, votes of credit, etc.

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, Parliament shall have power—

(a) to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year pending the completion of the procedure prescribed in article 89 for the voting of such grant and the passing of a law in accordance with the provisions of article 90 in relation to that expenditure,

(b) to make a grant for meeting an unexpected demand upon the resources of the Republic when on account of the magnitude or the indefinite character of the service the demand cannot be specified with the details ordinarily given in an annual financial statement,

(c) to make an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current service of any financial year, and Parliament shall have power to authorise by law the withdrawal of moneys from the Consolidated Fund for the purposes for which such grants are made

(2) The provisions of articles 89 and 90 shall have effect in relation to the making of any grant under clause (1), and to any law to be made under that clause, as they have effect in relation to the making of a grant with regard to any expenditure mentioned in the annual financial statement and to the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund to meet such expenditure

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, if, in respect of a financial year, Parliament—

(a) has failed to make the grants under article 89 and pass the law under article 90 before the beginning of that year and has not also made any grant in advance under this article, or

(b) has failed to make the grants under article 89 and pass the law under article 90 before the expiration of the period for which the grants in advance, if any, were made under this article, the President may, upon the advice of the prime Minister, by order, authorise the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund moneys necessary to meet expenditure mentioned in the financial statement for that year for a period not exceeding sixty days in year, pending the making of the grants and passing of the law

CHAPTER III ORDINANCE MAKING POWER

93. Ordinance making power

(1) At any time when Parliament stands dissolved or is not in session, if the President is satisfied that circumstances exist which render immediate action necessary, he may make and promulgate such Ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require, and any Ordinance so made shall, as from its promulgation have the like force of law as an Act of Parliament

Provided that no Ordinance under this clause shall make any provision—

(i) which could not lawfully be made under this Constitution by Act of Parliament,

(ii) for altering or repealing any provision of this Constitution; or

(iii) continuing in force any provision of an Ordinance previously made

(2) An Ordinance made under clause (1) shall be laid before Parliament at its first meeting following the promulgation of the Ordinance and shall, unless it is earlier repealed, cease to have effect at the expiration of thirty days after it is so laid or, if a resolution disapproving of the Ordinance is passed by Parliament before such expiration, upon the passing of the resolution

(3) At any time when Parliament stands dissolved the President may, if he is satisfied that circumstances exist which render such action necessary, make and promulgate an Ordinance authorising expenditure from the Consolidated Fund, whether the expenditure is charged by the Constitution upon that fund or not, and any Ordinance so made shall, as from its promulgation, have the like force of law as an Act of Parliament

(4) Every Ordinance promulgated under clause (3) shall be laid before Parliament as soon as may be, and the provisions for articles 87, 89 and 90 shall, with necessary adaptations, be complied with in respect thereof within thirty days of the reconstitution of Parliament.

(4) The function of the Council shall be—

(a) to prescribe a Code of Conduct to be observed by the Judges, and

(b) to inquire into the capacity or conduct of a Judge or of any other functionary who is not removable from office except in like manner as a Judge

(5) Where, upon any information received from the Council or from any other source, the President has reason to apprehend that a Judge—

(a) may have ceased to be capable of properly performing the functions of his office by reason of physical or mental incapacity, or

(b) may have been guilty of gross misconduct, the President may direct the Council to inquire into the matter and report its finding

(6) If, after making the inquiry, the Council reports to the President that in its opinion the Judge has ceased to be capable of properly performing the functions of his office or has been guilty of gross misconduct, the President shall, by order, remove the Judge from office

(7) For the purpose of an inquiry under this article, the Council shall regulate its procedure and shall have, in respect of issue and execution of processes, the same power as the Supreme Court

(8) A Judge may resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President

97. Temporary appointment of Chief Justice

If the office of the Chief Justice becomes vacant, or if the President is satisfied that the Chief Justice is, on account of absence, illness, or any other cause, unable to perform the functions of his office, those functions shall, until some other person has entered upon that office, or until the Chief Justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be, be performed by the next most senior Judge of the Appellate Division

98. Additional Supreme Court Judges

Notwithstanding the provisions of article 94, if the President is satisfied that the number of the Judges of a division of the Supreme Court should be for the time being increased, the President may appoint one or more duly qualified person to be Additional Judges of that division for such period not exceeding two years as he may specify, or, if he thinks fit, may require a Judge of the High Court Division to sit in the Appellate Division for any temporary period as an ad hoc Judge and such Judge while so sitting shall exercise the same jurisdiction, powers and functions as a Judge of the Appellate Division

Provided that nothing in this article shall prevent a person appointed as an Additional Judge from being appointed as a Judge under article 95 or as an Additional Judge for a further period under this article

99. Disabilities of Judges

(1) Except as provided in clause (2), a person who has held office as a Judge otherwise than as an Additional Judge shall not, after his retirement or removal therefrom, plead or act before any court or authority or hold any office or profit in the service of the Republic not being a judicial or quasi-judicial office or the office of Chief Adviser or Adviser

(2) A person who has held office as a Judge of the High Court Division may, after his retirement or removal therefrom, plead or act before the Appellate Division

The permanent seat of the Supreme Court, shall be in the capital, but sessions of the High Court Division may be held at such other place or places as the Chief Justice may, with the approval of the President, from time to time appoint

101. Jurisdiction of High Court Division

The High Court Division shall have such original, appellate and other jurisdictions, powers and functions as are or may be conferred on it by this Constitution or any other law

102. Powers of High Court Division to issue certain orders and directions, etc.

(1) The High Court Division on the application of any person aggrieved, may give such directions or orders to any person or authority, including any person performing any function in connection with the affairs of the Republic, as may be appropriate for the enforcement of any the fundamental rights conferred by Part III of this Constitution

(2) The High Court Division may, if satisfied that no other equally efficacious remedy is provided by law—

(a) on the application of any person aggrieved, make an order—

(i) directing a person performing any functions in connection with the affairs of the Republic or of a local authority to refrain from doing that which he is not permitted by law to do or to do that which he is required by law to do, or

(ii) declaring that any act done or proceeding taken by a person performing functions in connection with the affairs of the Republic or of a local authority has been done or taken without lawful authority and is of no legal effect, or

(b) on the application of any person, make an order—

(i) directing that a person in custody be brought before it so that it may satisfy itself that he is not being held in custody without lawful authority or in an unlawful manner, or

(ii) requiring a person holding or purporting to hold a public office to show under what authority he claims to hold that office

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing clauses, the High Court Division shall have no power under this article to pass any interim or other order in relation to any law to which article 47 applies

(4) Whereon an application made under clause (1) or sub-clause (a) of clause (2), an interim order is prayed for and such interim order is likely to have the effect of—

(a) prejudicing or interfering with any measure designed to implement any development programme, or any development work, or

(b) being otherwise harmful to the public interest, the High Court Division shall not make an interim order unless the Attorney-General has been given reasonable notice of the application and he (or an advocate authorised by him in that behalf) has been given an opportunity of being heard, and the High Court Division is satisfied that the interim order would not have the effect referred to in sub-clause (a) or sub-clause (b)

(5) In this article, unless the context otherwise requires, "person" includes a statutory public authority and any court or tribunal, other than a court or tribunal established under a law relating to the defence services of Bangladesh or any disciplined force or a tribunal to which article 117 applies

103. Jurisdiction of Appellate Division

(1) The Appellate Division shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine appeals from judgments, decrees, orders or sentences of the High Court Division

(2) An appeal to the Appellate Division from a judgment, decree, order or sentence of the High Court Division shall lie as of right where the High Court Division—

(a) certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution, or

(b) has sentenced a person to death or to imprisonment for life, or

(c) has imposed punishment on a person for contempt of that division, and in such other cases as may be provided for by Act of Parliament

(3) An appeal to the Appellate Division for a judgment, decree, order or sentence of the High Court Division in a case to which clause (2) does not apply shall lie only if the Appellate Division grants leave to appeal

(4) Parliament may by law declare that the provisions of this Article shall apply in relation to any other court or tribunal as they apply in relation to the High Court Division

104. Issue and execution of processes of Appellate Division

The Appellate Division shall have power to issue such directions, orders, decrees or writs as may be necessary for doing complete justice in any cause or matter pending before it, including orders for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person or the discovery or production of any document

105. Review of Judgments or orders by Appellate Division

The Appellate Division shall have power, subject to the provisions of any Act of Parliament and of any rules made by that division to review any judgment pronounced or order made by it

106. Advisory jurisdiction of Supreme Court

If at any time it appears to the President that a question of law has arisen, or is likely to arise, which is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court upon it, he may refer the question to the Appellate Division for consideration and the division may, after such hearing as it thinks fit, report its opinion thereon to the President

107. Rule making power of the Supreme Court

(1) Subject to any law made by Parliament the Supreme Court may, with the approval of the President, make rules for regulating the practice and procedure of each division of the Supreme Court and of any court subordinate to it

(2) The Supreme Court may delegate any of its functions under clause (1) and article 113 to a division of that Court or to one or more Judges

(3) Subject to any rules made under this article the Chief Justice shall determine which Judges are to constitute any Bench of a division of the Supreme Court and which Judges are to sit for any purpose

(4) The Chief Justice may authorise the next most senior-Judge of either division of the Supreme Court to exercise in that division any of the powers conferred by clause (3) or by rules made under this article

108. Supreme Court as court of record

The Supreme Court shall be a court of record and shall have all the powers of such a court including the power subject to law to make an order for the investigation of or punishment for any contempt of itself

109. Superintendence and control over courts

The High Court shall have superintendence and control over all courts and tribunals subordinate to it

110. Transfer of cases from subordinate courts to High Court Division

If the High Court Division is satisfied that a case pending in a Court subordinate to it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution, or on a point of general public importance, the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case, it shall withdraw the case from that court and may—

(a) either dispose of the case itself, or

(b) determine the question of law and return the case to the court from which it has been so withdrawn (or transfer it to another subordinate court) together with a copy of the judgement of the division on such question, and the court to which the case is so returned or transferred shall, on receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with such judgement

111. Binding effect of Supreme Court judgments

The law declared by the Appellate Division shall be binding on the High Court Division and the law declared by either division of the Supreme Court shall be binding on all courts subordinate to it

112. Action in aid of Supreme Court

All authorities, executive and judicial, in the Republic shall act in aid of the Supreme Court

113. Staff of Supreme Court

(1) Appointments of the staff of the Supreme Court shall be made by the Chief Justice or such other judge or officer of that Court as he may direct, and shall be made in accordance with rules made with the previous approval of the President by the Supreme Court

(2) Subject to the provisions of any Act of Parliament the conditions of service of members of the staff of the Supreme Court shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by that Court

SUBORDINATE COURTS

114. Establishment of subordinate courts

There shall be in addition to the Supreme Court such courts subordinate thereto as may be established by law

115. Appointments to subordinate courts

Appointments of persons to offices in the judicial service or as magistrates exercising judicial functions shall be made by the President in accordance with rules made by him in that behalf

116. Control and discipline of subordinate courts

The control (including the power of posting, promotion and grant of leave) and discipline of persons employed in the judicial service and magistrates exercising judicial functions shall vest in the President and shall be exercised by him in consultation with the Supreme Court

116A. Judicial officers to be independent in the exercise of their functions

Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, all persons employed in the judicial service and all magistrates shall be independent in the exercise of their judicial functions

ADMINISTRATIVE TRIBUNALS

117. Administrative tribunals

(1) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, Parliament may by law establish one or more administrative tribunals to exercise jurisdiction in respect of matter relating to or arising out of—

(a) the terms and conditions of persons in the service of the Republic, including the matters provided for in Part IX and the award of penalties or punishment,

(b) the acquisition, administration, management and disposal of any property vested in or managed by the Government by or under any law, including the operation and management of, and service in any nationalised enterprise or statutory public authority,

(c) any law to which clause (3) of article 102 applies

(2) Where any administrative tribunal is established under this article, no court shall entertain any proceedings or make any order in respect of any matter falling within the jurisdiction of such tribunal

Provided that Parliament may, by law, provide for appeals from, or the review of, decisions of any such tribunal

118. Establishment of Election Commission

(1) There shall be an Election Commission for Bangladesh consisting of a Chief Election Commissioner and such number of other Election Commissioners, if any as the President may from time to time direct, and the appointment of the Chief Election Commissioner and other Election commissioners (if any) shall, subject to the provisions of any law made in that behalf, be made by the President

(2) When the Election Commission consists of more than one person, the Chief Election Commissioner shall act as the Chairman thereof

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution the term of office of an Election Commissioner shall be five years from the date on which he enters upon his office, and—

(a) a person who has held office as Chief Election Commissioner shall not be eligible for appointment in the service of the Republic,

(b) any other election Commissioner shall, on ceasing to hold office as such, be eligible for appointment as Chief Election Commissioner but shall not be otherwise eligible for appointment in the service of the Republic

(4) The Election Commission shall be independent in the exercise of its functions and subject only to this Constitution and any other law

(5) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service of Election Commissioners shall be such as the President may, by order, determine.

Provided that an Election Commissioner shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like grounds as a judge of the Supreme Court

(6) An Election Commissioner may resign his office by writing under his hand address to the President

119. Functions of Election Commission

(1) The superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of the election rolls for elections to the office of President and to Parliament and the conduct of such elections shall vest in the Election Commission which shall, in accordance with his Constitution and any other law—

- (a) hold elections to the office of President,
- (b) hold elections of members of Parliament,
- (c) delimit the constituencies for the purpose of elections to Parliament, and
- (d) prepare electoral roles for the purpose of elections to the office of President and to Parliament

(2) The Election Commission shall perform such functions, in addition to those specified in the foregoing clauses, as may be prescribed by this Constitution or by any other law

120. Staff of Election Commission

The President shall, when so requested by the Election Commission, make available to it such staff as may be necessary for the discharge of its functions under this Part

121. Single electoral roll for each constituency

There shall be one electoral roll for each constituency for the purposes of elections to Parliament, and no special electoral roll shall be prepared so as to classify electors according to religion, race caste or sex.

122. Qualifications for registration as voter

- (1) The elections to Parliament shall be on the basis of adult franchise
- (2) A person shall be entitled to be enrolled on the electoral roll for a constituency delimited the purpose of election to Parliament, if he—
  - (a) is a citizen of Bangladesh;
  - (b) is not less than eighteen years of age,
  - (c) does not stand declared by a competent court to be of unsound mind, and
  - (d) is or is deemed by law to be a resident of that constituency

123. Time for holding elections

(1) In the case of a vacancy in the office of President occurring by reason of the expiration of his term of office an election to fill the vacancy shall be held within the period of ninety to sixty days prior to the date of expiration of the term

Provided that if the term expires before the dissolution of the Parliament by members of which he was elected the election to fill the vacancy shall not be held until after the next general election of members of Parliament, but shall be held within thirty days after the first sitting of Parliament following such general election.

(2) In the case of a vacancy in the office of President occurring by reason of the death, resignation or removal of the President, an election to fill the vacancy shall be held within the period of ninety days after the occurrence of the vacancy

(3) A general election of members of Parliament shall be held within ninety days after Parliament is dissolved, whether by reason of the expiration of its term or otherwise than by reason of such expiration

(4) An election to fill the seat of a member of Parliament which falls vacant otherwise than by reason of the dissolution of Parliament shall be held within ninety days of the occurrence of the vacancy

Provided that in a case where, in the opinion of the Chief Election Commissioner, it is not possible, for reasons of an act of God, to hold such election within the period specified in this clause, such election shall be held within ninety days following next after the last day of such period

124. Parliament may make provision as to elections

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may by law make provision with respect to all matters relating to or in connection with election to Parliament, including the delimitation of constituencies, the preparation of electoral rolls, the holding of elections, and all other matters necessary for securing the due Constitution of Parliament

125. Validity of election law and elections

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution—

(a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies, or the allotment of seats to such constituencies, made or purporting to be made under article 124, shall not be called in question in any court,

(b) no election to the offices of President or to Parliament shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as may be provided for by or under any law made by Parliament

126. Executive authorities to assist Election Commission

PART VIII*THE COMPTROLLER AND AUDITOR-GENERAL*127. Establishment of office of Auditor-General

(1) There shall be a Comptroller and Auditor-General of Bangladesh (hereinafter referred to as the Auditor-General) who shall be appointed by the President

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service of the Auditor-General shall be such as the President may, by order, determine.

128. Functions of Auditor-General

(1) The public accounts of the Republic and of all courts of law and all authorities and officers of the Government shall be audited and reported on by the Auditor-General and for that purpose he or any person authorised by him in that behalf shall have access to all records, books, vouchers, documents, cash, stamps, securities, stores or other government property in the possession of any person in the service of the Republic

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of clause (1), if it is prescribed by law in the case of any body corporate directly established by law, the accounts of that body corporate shall be audited and reported on by such person as may be so prescribed

(3) Parliament may by law require the Auditor-General to exercise such functions, in addition to those specified in clause (1), as such law may prescribe, and until provision is made by law under this clause the President may, by order, make such provision

(4) The Auditor-General, in the exercise of this functions under clause (1), shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other person or authority

129. Term of office of Auditor-General

(1) The Auditor-General shall, subject to this article, hold office until he attains the age of sixty years

(2) The Auditor-General shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like ground as a judge of the Supreme Court

(3) The Auditor-General may resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President

(4) On ceasing to hold office the Auditor-General shall not be eligible for further office in the service of the Republic

130. Acting Auditor-General

At any time when the office of Auditor-General is vacant, or the President is satisfied that the Auditor-General is unable to perform his functions on account of absence, illness or any other cause, the President may appoint a person to act as Auditor-General and to perform the functions of that office until an appointment is made under article 127 or, as the case may be until the Auditor-General resumes the functions of his office

131. Form and manner of keeping public accounts

The public accounts of the Republic shall be kept in such form and in such manner as the Auditor-General may, with the approval of the President, prescribe.

132. Reports of Auditor-General to be laid before Parliament

The reports of the Auditor-General relating to the Reports of public accounts of the Republic shall be submitted to the President, who shall cause them to be laid before Parliament

PART IX*THE SERVICES OF BANGLADESH*CHAPTER 1*SERVICES*133. Appointment and conditions of service

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution Parliament may by law regulate the appointment and conditions of service of person in the service of the Republic

Provided that it shall be competent for the President to make rules regulating the appointment and the conditions of service such person until provision in that behalf is made by or under any law, and rules so made shall have effect subject to the provisions of any such law

134. Tenure of office

Except as otherwise provided by this Constitution every person in the service of the Republic shall hold office during the pleasure of the President

135. Dismissal, etc., of civilian public officers

(1) No person who holds any civil post in the service of the Republic shall be dismissed or removed or reduced in rank by an authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed

(2) No such person shall be dismissed or removed or reduced in rank until he has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause why that action should not be taken

Provided that this clause shall not apply—

(i) where a person is dismissed or removed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction of a criminal offence, or

(ii) where the authority empowered to dismiss or remove a person or to reduce him in rank is satisfied that, for a reason recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to give that person an opportunity of showing cause, or

(iii) where the President is satisfied that in the interests of the security of the State it is not expedient to give that person such an opportunity

(3) If in respect of such a person the question arises whether it is reasonably practicable to give him an opportunity to show cause in accordance with clause (2), the decision thereon of the authority empowered to dismiss or remove such person or to reduce him in rank shall be final

(4) Where a person is employed in the service of the Republic under a written contract and that contract is terminated by due notice in accordance with its terms, he shall not, by reason thereof, be regarded as removed from office for the purposes of this article

136. Reorganisation of service

Provision may be made by law for the reorganisation of the service of the Republic by the creation, amalgamation or unification of services and such law may vary or revoke any condition of service of a person employed in the service of the Republic

137. Establishment of Commissions

Provision shall be made by law for establishing one or more Public Service Commissions for Bangladesh, each of which shall consist of a Chairman and such other members as shall be prescribed by law

138. Appointment of members

(1) The chairman and other members of each Public Service Commission shall be appointed by the President

Provided that not less than one-half of the members of a commission shall be persons who have held office for twenty years or more in the service of any Government which has at any time functioned within the territory of Bangladesh

(2) Subject to any law made by Parliament the conditions of service of the Chairman and other members of a Public Service Commission shall be such as the President may, by order, determine

139. Term of office

(1) The term of office of the Chairman and other members of a Public Service Commission shall, subject to the provisions of this article, expire five years after the date on which he entered upon his office, or when he attains the age of sixty-two years, whichever is earlier,

(2) The Chairman and other members of such a commission shall be removed from office except in like manner and on the like grounds as a Judge of the Supreme Court

(3) A Chairman or other member of a Public Service Commission may resign his office by writing under his hand addressed to the President

(4) On ceasing to hold office a member of a Public Service Commission shall not be eligible for further employment in the service of the Republic, but, subject to the provisions of clause (1)—

(a) a Chairman so ceasing shall be eligible for re-appointment for one further term; and

(b) a member (other than the Chairman) so ceasing shall be eligible for re-appointment for one further term or for appointment as chairman of a Public Service Commission

140. Functions of Commissions

(1) The functions of a Public Service Commission shall be—

(a) to conduct tests examinations for the selection of suitable persons for appointment of the service of the Republic,

(b) to advise the President on any matter on which the Commission is consulted under clause (2) or on any matter connected with its functions which is referred to the Commission by the President, and

(c) such other functions as may be prescribed by law

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, and any regulation (not inconsistent with such law) which may be made by the President after consultation with a commission, the President shall consult a commission with respect to

(a) matters relating to qualifications for, and methods of recruitment to, the service of the Republic,

(b) the principles to be followed in making appointments to that service and promotions and transfers from one branch of the service to another, and the suitability of candidates for such appointment, promotions and transfers,

(c) matters affecting the terms and conditions (including person rights) of that service, and

(d) the discipline of the service

141. Annual report

(1) Each commission shall, not later than the first day of March each year, prepare and submit to the President a report of the performance of its functions during the period ended on the previous 31st day of December

(2) The report shall be accompanied by a memorandum setting out, so far as is known to the Commission—

(a) the cases, if any, in which its advice was not accepted and the reasons why it was not accepted,

(b) the cases where the Commission ought to have been consulted and was not consulted, and the reasons why it was not consulted

(3) The President shall cause the report and memorandum to be laid before Parliament at its first meeting held after 31st March in the year in which the report was submitted

PART IXA*EMERGENCY PROVISIONS*141A. Proclamation of Emergency

(1) If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists in which the security or economic life of Bangladesh, or any part thereof, is threatened by war or external aggression or internal disturbance, he may issue a Proclamation of Emergency

Provided that such Proclamation shall require for its validity the prior counter signature of the Prime Minister

(2) A Proclamation of Emergency—

(a) may be revoked by a subsequent Proclamation,

(b) shall be laid before Parliament,

(c) shall cease to operate at the expiration of one hundred and twenty days, unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by a resolution of Parliament.

Provided that if any such Proclamation is issued at a time when Parliament stands dissolved or the dissolution of Parliament takes place during the period of one hundred and twenty days referred to in sub-clause (c), the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which Parliament first meets after its re-constitution, unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by Parliament

(3) A Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of Bangladesh, or any part thereof, is threatened by war or external aggression or by internal disturbance may be made before the actual occurrence of war or any such aggression or disturbance if the President is satisfied that there is imminent danger thereof

141B. Suspension of provisions of certain articles during emergencies

While a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, nothing in articles 36, 37, 38, 39, 40 and 42 shall restrict the power of the State to make any law or to take any executive action which the State would, but for the provisions contained in Part III of this Constitution, be competent to make or to take, but any law so made shall, to the extent of the incompetence, cease to have effect as soon as the Proclamation ceases to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the law so ceases to have effect

141C. Suspension of enforcement of fundamental right during emergencies

(1) While a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, the President may, on the written advice of the Prime Minister, by order, declare that the right to move any court for the enforcement of such of the rights conferred by Part III of this Constitution as may be specified in the order, and all proceedings pending in any court for the enforcement of the right so specified, shall remain suspended for the period during which the Proclamation is in force or for such shorter period as may be specified in the order

(2) An order made under this article may extend to the whole of Bangladesh or any part thereof

(3) Every order made under this article shall, as soon as may be, be laid before Parliament

PART X

AMENDMENT OF THE CONSTITUTION

142. Power to amend any provision of the Constitution

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Constitution—

(a) any provision thereof may be amended by way of addition, alteration, substitution or repeal by Act of Parliament

Provided that—

(i) no Bill for such amendment shall be allowed to proceed unless the long title thereof expressly states that it will amend a provision of the Constitution,

(ii) no such Bill shall be presented to the President for assent unless it is passed by the votes of not less than two-thirds of the total number of members of Parliament,

(b) when a Bill passed as aforesaid is presented to the President for his assent he shall, within the period of seven days after the Bill is presented to him assent to the Bill, and if he fails so to do he shall be deemed to have assented to it on the expiration of that period

(1A) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (1), when a Bill, passed as aforesaid, which provides for the amendment of the Preamble or any provisions of articles 8, 48 or 56 or this article, is presented to the President for assent, the President, shall within the period of seven days, after the Bill is presented to him, cause to be referred to a referendum the question whether the Bill should or should not be assented to

(1B) A referendum under this article shall be conducted by the Election Commission, within such period and in such manner as may be provided by law, amongst the person enrolled on the electoral roll prepared for the purpose of election to Parliament

(1C) On the day on which the result of the referendum conducted in relation to a Bill under this article is declared, the President shall be deemed to have—

(a) assented to the Bill, if the majority of the total votes cast are in favour of the Bill being assented to, or

(b) Withheld assent therefrom, if the majority of the total votes cast are not in favour of the Bill being assented to

(1D) Nothing in clause (1C) shall be deemed to be an expression of confidence or no-confidence in the Cabinet or Parliament

(2) Nothing in article 26 shall apply to any amendment made under this article

PART XI MISCELLANEOUS

TITLE III POWERS

CHAPTER 0 GENERAL PROVISIONS

33. Sovereignty, Rule of Law

- (1) All power emanates from the Nation
- (2) The power is exerted in the manner established by the Constitution

34. Transfer of Sovereignty

The exercising of determined power can be attributed by a treaty or by a law to international public institutions

35. Authorities

(1) The federal authority only has power in the matters that are formally attributed to it by the Constitution and the laws carried in pursuance of the Constitution itself

(2) The Communities and the Regions, each in its own field of concern, have power for the other matters, under the conditions and in the terms stipulated by law. This law must be adopted by majority vote as provided for in Article 4, last paragraph

(3) The law referred to in paragraph (2) determines the date on which this Article comes into force. This date cannot precede the date of the implementation of the new Article to be inserted in Title III, which determines the exclusive powers of the federal authority

36. Legislative Power

The federal legislative power is exerted collectively by the King, the House of Representatives, and the Senate

37. Executive Power

The federal executive power, as stipulated by the Constitution, belongs to the King

38. Local Autonomy

Each Community has assignments which are recognized by the Constitution or by the laws carried in pursuance of it

39. Regional Autonomy

The law attributes to the Regional Bodies that it creates and that are made up of elected representatives, the power to manage the matters that it determines, with the exception of those referred to in Articles 30 and 127 to 129, within the jurisdiction and according to the manner established by the law. The latter must be adopted by majority vote as provided for in Article 4, last paragraph

40. Adjudicating Power

- (1) Judiciary power is exerted by the courts and tribunals

(2) Rulings and court decisions are carried out in the name of the King

41. Decentralization, Adjournment

Interests which are exclusively of a communal or provincial nature are ruled on by communal or provincial councils, according to the principles established by the Constitution. The King can adjourn the Houses. However, the adjournment cannot exceed the period of one month, nor be renewed in the same session without the consent of the Houses

CHAPTER I

THE FEDERAL HOUSES

[Section 0—General Provisions]

42. Representation

The members of the two Houses represent the Nation, and not only those who elected them

43. Linguistic Groups

(1) For cases determined by the Constitution, the elected members of each House are divided into a French linguistic group and a Dutch linguistic group, in the manner determined by law

(2) The senators referred to in Article 67 (1)(2,4,7) make up the French linguistic group of the Senate. The senators referred to in Article 67 (1)(1,3,6), make up the Dutch linguistic group of the Senate

44. Sessions

(1) The Houses meet by right each year on the second Tuesday of October, unless they have been called together prior to this by the King

(2) The Houses must meet each year for at least forty days

(3) The King pronounces the closing of the session

(4) The King has the right to convoke the Houses to an extraordinary meeting

45. Adjournment

The King can adjourn the Houses. However, the adjournment cannot exceed the period of one month, nor be renewed in the same session without the consent of the Houses

46. Reasons for Dissolution

(1) The King has only the right to dissolve the House of Representatives if the latter, with the absolute majority of its members

1) either rejects a motion of confidence in the federal Government and does not propose to the King, within three days from the day of the rejection of the motion, the nomination of a successor to the Prime Minister,

2) or adopts a motion of disapproval with regard to the federal Government and does not simultaneously propose to the King the nomination of a successor to the Prime Minister

(2) The motions of confidence and disapproval can only be voted on after a delay of forty-eight hours after the introduction of the motion

(3) Moreover, the King may, in the event of the resignation of the federal Government, dissolve the House of Representatives after having received its agreement expressed by the absolute majority of its members

(4) The dissolution of the House of Representatives entails the dissolution of the Senate

(5) The act of dissolution involves the convoking of the electorate within forty days and of the Houses within two months

47. Publicity

(1) The sessions of the Houses are public

(2) Nevertheless, each House can meet in a secret committee, at the request of its President or of ten members

(3) It can decide afterwards, by absolute majority, if a session on the same subject has to be held again in public

48. Self-Organization

Each House controls the powers of its members and judges any dispute that can be raised on this matter.

49. Horizontal Incompatibility

It is not possible to be a member of both Houses at the same time

50. Ministerial Incompatibility

Any member of one of the two Houses, appointed by the King as a minister and who accepts this nomination, ceases to sit in the House and takes up his mandate again when the King has put an end to his functions as a Minister. The law provides for the terms of his replacement in the House concerned

51. Governmental Incompatibility

Any member of either of the two Houses, appointed by the federal Government to any salaried function other than that of Minister and who accepts the appointment, immediately ceases to sit in the House and only takes his functions up again by virtue of a new election

52. President

At each session, each of the Houses appoints its President, its Vice-Presidents, and forms its committee

53. Majority, Quorum

(1) Any resolution is made by absolute majority of votes, except with regard to what is established by the regulations of the Houses with regard to elections and presentations

(2) If the votes are divided, the proposal submitted for discussion is rejected

(3) Neither of the two Houses can take a resolution until the majority of its members are in session

54. Group Veto, Alarm-Bell Procedure

(1) With the exception of budgets and laws requiring a special majority, a justified motion, signed by at least three-quarters of the members of one of the linguistic groups and introduced following the introduction of the report and prior to the final vote in a public session, can declare that the provisions of a draft bill or of a motion are of a nature to gravely damage relations between the Communities

(2) In this case, the parliamentary procedure is suspended and the motion referred to the Council of Ministers which, within thirty days, gives its justified recommendations on the motion and invites the implicated House to express its opinion on these recommendations or on the draft bill or motion that has been revised if need be

(3) This procedure can only be applied once by the members of a linguistic group with regard to the same bill or motion

55. Voting, Ballot

Votes are given by rising or remaining seated or by call-over, most of the laws are voted by call-over. The election and presentation of candidates are carried out by secret ballot

56. Enquiries

Each House has the right to hold an enquiry

57. Petitions

It is forbidden to present petitions to the Houses in person. Each House has the right to send back to the Ministers the petitions that are addressed to it. The Ministers are obliged to give explanations about their content, each time that the House so requires

58. Indemnity

No member of either of the two Houses can be prosecuted or pursued with regard to opinions and votes given by him in the exercise of his duties

59. Immunity

(1) No member of either of the two Houses can, during the duration of a session, be arrested or prosecuted for repression, except with the authorization of the House of which he is a member, except in cases of flagrante delicto

(2) No imprisonment for debt can be undertaken against a member of either of the two Houses during a session, except with the same authorization

(3) The detention of or a lawsuit against a member of either of the two Houses is suspended during a session and for its entire duration, if the House so requires

60. Regulations

Each House determines, by its regulations, the way in which it exercises its duties

Section I—The House of Representatives*61. Direct Elections, Electoral Rights

(1) The members of the House of Representatives are elected directly by citizens who have completed the age of eighteen and who do not fall within the categories of exclusion stipulated by law

62. Constituencies

(1) The establishing of the constituencies or electoral colleges is governed by law

(2) Elections are carried out by the system of proportional representation that the law determines

(3) The ballot is obligatory and secret. It takes place at the commune, except in the cases determined by law

63. Seats

(1) The House of Representatives is made up of one hundred and fifty members

(2 1) Each electoral circumscription has as many seats as the number of the members of its population contains a multiple of the federal divisor, obtained by dividing the number of the population of the Kingdom by one hundred and fifty

(2 2) The remaining seats are attributed to the electoral circumscriptions which have the greatest surplus of population not yet represented

(3 1) The sharing of the members of the House of Representatives among the electoral circumscriptions is allocated to the population by the King

(3 2) The size of the population of each electoral circumscription is determined every ten years by a census or by any other means defined by law. The King publishes the results within a period of six months

(3 3) During the three months of this publication, the King determines the number of seats attributed to each electoral circumscription

(3 4) The new distribution is applied as of the following general election

(4) The law determines the electoral circumscriptions, it also determines the conditions required to be an elector as well as those for the carrying out of electoral operations

64. Eligibility

- (1) To be eligible, one must:
  - 1) be Belgian,
  - 2) enjoy civil and political rights,
  - 3) have completed the age of twenty-one,

71. Compensation

(1) Senators do not receive a salary.

(2) They do, however, have the right to be compensated for any disbursement; this compensation is fixed at four thousand francs per year.

(3) They also have the right to free travel on all the means of communication operated or contracted out by the State.

(4) The law determines the means of transport that they can use free of charge apart from those mentioned above.

72. King's Descendants

The King's children or, in the absence of children, the Belgian descendants of the branch of the royal family called on to reign, are senators by right at the age of eighteen. They are only entitled to a seat and vote at the age of twenty-one. They are not taken into account for the determination of the quorum of attendance.

73. Sessions

Any assembly of the Senate that takes place outside the time of the session of the House of Representatives, is automatically void.

CHAPTER II*FEDERAL LEGISLATION*74. Competencies

Notwithstanding Article 36, federal legislative power is jointly exercised by the King and by the House of Representatives for

- 1) the granting of naturalization,
- 2) laws relative to the civil and penal responsibilities of the King's ministers,
- 3) State budgets and accounts, without prejudice to Article 174 (1), second sentence,

4) the establishment of the army quotas

75. Initiative

- (1) Each branch of the federal legislative power has the right of initiative
- (2) Except for those matters described in Article 77, draft bills submitted to the Houses at the King's initiative are brought to the House of Representatives, then forwarded to the Senate
- (3) Draft bills relating to the approval of treaties submitted to the Houses on the King's initiative, are introduced to the Senate and afterwards transmitted to the House of Representatives

76. Drafts

- (1) A draft bill may be adopted by a House only after having been voted on article by article
- (2) The Houses have the right to amend and to sub-divide those articles and amendments proposed

77 Competencies of Both Houses

(1) The House of Representatives and the Senate are equally competent with respect to

1) the declaration of constitutional revision and for constitutional revision,

2) matters requiring settlement by both legislative Houses by virtue of the Constitution,

3) laws described in Articles 5, 39, 43, 50, 68, 71, 77, 82, 115, 117, 118, 121, 123, 127 to 131, 135 to 137, 140 to 143, 145, 146, 163, 165, 166, 167 (1 3), (4), and (5), 169, 170 (2 2), (3 2), (3 3), and (4 2), and 175 to 177, in addition to those laws executed on the basis of the above-mentioned laws and articles,

4) laws to be adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, in addition to those laws executed on the basis of the latter,

5) laws described in Article 34,

6) laws relating to the approval of treaties,

7) laws adopted in keeping with Article 169, to ensure respect of international or supranational commitments,

8) laws relating to the Council of State,

9) the organization of courts and tribunals,

10) laws approving co-operation agreements between State, Communities, and Regions

(2) A law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, may designate other laws for which the House of Representatives and the Senate are competent on an equal basis

78. Draft Bills of the House of Representatives

- (1) Regarding matters other than those described in Articles 74 and 77, draft bills adopted by the House of Representatives are then forwarded to the Senate.

(2) At the request of fifteen Senate members at least, the Senate examines the draft bills. This request is made within fifteen days after receiving the draft bill

(3) The Senate may, within a time period not exceeding sixty days

— decide against amendment of the draft bill,

— adopt the bill following amendment

(4) Should the Senate fail to act within the established time frame, or should it have informed the House of Representatives of its decision not to amend the bill, the latter is forwarded to the King by the House of Representatives

(5) If the bill has been amended, the Senate forwards it to the House of Representatives, which then makes a final decision the draft bill is either adopted, or those amendments established by the Senate are either partially or entirely rejected

79. New Amendment

(1) Should, during the course of an examination as described in Article 78, last paragraph, the House of Representatives adopt a new amendment, the draft bill is returned to the Senate, which expresses its opinion on the amended bill. The Senate may, within a time period not exceeding fifteen days — decide to accept the bill as amended by the House of Representatives, — adopt the draft bill following further amendment

(2) Should the Senate fail to act within the established time frame, or should it inform the House of Representatives of its decision to support the draft bill as voted by the House of Representatives, the latter then forwards the bill to the King

(3) Should the bill once again be amended, the Senate forwards it to the House of Representatives which then makes a final decision by either adopting or by amending the draft bill

80. Urgent Bills

(1) Should, during the presentation of a draft bill as described in Article 78, the federal Government indicate urgency, the parliamentary consultation committee described in Article 82 must determine the time frame within which the Senate must make its decision

(2) Should the commission fail to reach agreement, the time frame granted to the Senate becomes seven days, while the examination period described in Article 78 (3) becomes thirty days

81. Draft Bills of the Senate

(1) Should the Senate, by virtue of its right of initiative, adopt a draft bill in the areas described in Article 78, the draft bill is then forwarded to the House of Representatives

(2) Within a time period not exceeding sixty days, the House must give its final decision, either by rejecting or by adopting the draft bill

(3) Should the House amend the draft bill, the latter is then returned to the Senate, which must debate the amendments in accordance with the rules in Article 79

(4) In the event of application of Article 79 (3), the House statutes in a final manner within fifteen days

(5) Should the House fail to reach agreement within the time frames established in paragraphs (2) and (4), the Parliamentary Consultation Commission described in Article 82 must meet within fifteen days and establish a time limit within which the House must make a decision

(6) Should the Commission fail to reach agreement, the House must make a decision within sixty days

82. Consultation Commission

(1) A Parliamentary Consultation Commission composed on an equal basis of members of the House of Representatives and of the Senate settles competency conflicts which may arise between the two Houses and may, with mutual agreement, extend the study periods described in Articles 78 to 81 at all times.

(2) Lacking majority representation by either of the two groups composing the commission, the latter must statute on a two-thirds majority basis

(3) A law determines the composition and functioning of the commission, in addition to a method of calculating the time periods described in Articles 78 to 81

83. Specification

All motions and all draft bills specify whether contents refer to those issues described in Article 74, 77, or 78

84. Interpretation of Laws

The authoritative interpretation of laws remains the sole competency of the law

KING AND FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

Section I—The King

85. Dynasty

(1) The King's constitutional powers are hereditary through the direct, natural, and legitimate descent from H M Leopold, Georges, Chretien, Frederic of Saxony-Coburg, by order of primogeniture

(2) The successor described in paragraph (1) shall be deprived of his rights to the crown, if he marries without the King's consent or, in the absence thereof, without the consent of those exercising the King's powers in cases provided for by the Constitution

(3) His lost right may nonetheless be re-established by the King, or, in the absence thereof, by those exercising the King's powers in cases provided for by the Constitution, in the event of agreement on the part of both Houses

86. Succession

(1) For lack of a descendant to H M Leopold, Georges, Chretien, Frederic of Saxony-Coburg, the King may name his successor, with the approval of the Houses, in such a manner as prescribed in Article 87

(2) In the absence of a nomination undertaken in the above-mentioned manner, the throne shall be vacant

87. Other Kingdom

(1) The King may not simultaneously act as head of another State without the consent of both Houses

(2) Neither of the two Houses may debate this matter unless two-thirds of their members are present, and the resolution may be adopted only with a two-thirds majority vote

88. Responsibility

The King's person is inviolable, his Ministers are responsible

89. Civil List

The civil list for the duration of each reign is established by law

90. King's Tasks

(1) Upon the King's death, the Houses meet without convocation, ten days following the decease at latest. Should the Houses have been previously dissolved, and should the convocation in the dissolution act have been made for a time later than the tenth day following the decease, then the former Houses are to return to their functions until the establishment of those destined to replace them

(2) From the moment of the King's death and until the taking of oath by his successor to the throne or by the Regent, the King's constitutional powers are exercised, in the name of the Belgian people, by the Council of Ministers, and under their responsibility

91. King's Majority, Oath

(1) The King attains his majority upon completion of his eighteenth year of age.

(2) The King may accede to the throne only after having taken the following oath before the united Houses

'I swear to observe the Constitution and the laws of the Belgian people, to preserve our national independence and our territorial integrity'

92. Minority Guardianship

Should, upon the King's death, his successor be under age, the two Houses meet as a single assembly, for the purpose of regency and guardianship.

93. Inability Guardianship

Should the King find himself unable to reign, the Ministers, having observed this inability, immediately summon the Houses. Regency and guardianship are to be provided by the United Houses

94. Conferring Regency

(1) Regency may be conferred on only one person

(2) The Regent may take office only after having taken the oath as specified in Article 91

95. Vacancy of the Throne

Should the throne be vacant, the Houses, debating as one assembly, temporarily ensure Regency, until the convening of the fully renewed Houses. This meeting must take place within two months. The new Houses, debating as one assembly, provide permanent cover for the vacancy

Section II—The Federal Government*96. Establishing Government

(1) The King appoints and dismisses his Ministers

(2) The Federal Government offers its resignation to the King if the House of Representatives, by an absolute majority of its members, adopts a motion of disapproval, proposing to the King the nomination of a successor to the Prime Minister, or proposes to the King the nomination of a successor to the Prime Minister within three days of the rejection of a motion of confidence. The King names the proposed successor as Prime Minister, who takes office the moment the new Federal Government is sworn in

97. Eligibility for Government

Belgians alone may be Ministers

98. Royal Incompatibility

No member of the royal family may be a Minister

99. Composition of Government

(1) The Council of Ministers includes fifteen members at most

(2) With the possible exception of the Prime Minister, the Council of Ministers includes as many French-speaking members as Dutch-speaking members

100. Government in Parliament

(1) Ministers have access to both Houses and must be heard whenever they so request

(2) The House of Representatives may demand the presence of Ministers. The Senate may request their presence for discussion of a motion or a draft bill as described in Article 77 or of a motion or a draft bill as described in Article 78, or for the exercise of its right to investigate as described in Article 56. For other matters, the Senate may request their presence.

101. Responsibility, Indemnity

(1) Ministers are responsible before the House of Representatives.

(2) No Minister may be prosecuted or pursued on account of opinions expressed in the line of his duties.

102. Exclusive Responsibility

Under no circumstances may a written or verbal order of the King diminish the responsibilities of a Minister.

103. Control

(1) The House of Representatives has the right to accuse Ministers and to confront them before the Supreme Court of Appeal, the latter alone having authority to judge them, Chambers assembled, except for that which is statuted by law, regarding the exercising of a civil suit by a victimized party and regarding crimes and misdeeds which Ministers may have committed outside their line of duty.

(2) Cases of responsibility are determined by law, as are the sentences and the manner of proceeding against them, either on the basis of the accusations introduced in the House of Representatives or on the basis of a civil suit emanating from a victimized part.

(3) Until being covered by the law described in paragraph (2), the House of Representatives holds discretionary powers to accuse a Minister, and the Supreme Court of Appeal to judge him, in those cases established by penal laws and by the application of those sentences foreseen.

104. Secretaries of State

(1) The King appoints and dismisses the Federal Secretaries of State.

(2) The latter are members of the Federal Government. They are not part of the Council of Ministers. They are deputies to a Minister.

(3) The King determines their attributions and the limits within which they may engage in countersigning.

(4) Constitutional provisions which apply to Ministers apply equally to federal Secretaries of State, with the exception of Articles 90 (2), 93, and 99.

Section III—Responsibilities

105. Limited Powers

The King has no powers other than those formally attributed to him by the Constitution and by specific laws established by virtue of the Constitution itself.

106. Countersignature

No actions of the King may take effect without the countersignature of a Minister, who, in doing so, takes responsibility upon himself

107. Army

(1) The King bestows ranks within the army

(2) He appoints individuals to general administrative functions and to foreign affairs, but for those exceptions established by law

(3) He appoints individuals to other functions only by virtue of specific provisions of a law

(1) Court Magistrates and court Judges are directly named by the King

(2) Appeal Judges and the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the High Courts of Justice to which they are attached are named by the King on two double lists. One is presented by the courts, the other by provincial Councils and by the Brussels Capital Regional Council, as the case may be

(3) Judges of the Court of Cassation are named by the King on two double lists. One is presented by the Court of Cassation, the other, alternately, by the House of Representatives and by the Senate. In both cases, candidates of one list may be placed on the other. All presentations are made public, at least fifteen days prior to nomination

(4) Courts choose within themselves their Presidents and Vice-Presidents

152. Status of Judges

(1) Judges are appointed for life. They retire at an age determined by law and benefit from the pension foreseen by law

(2) No Judge can be deprived of his post nor suspended except by court decision

(3) The transfer of a Judge can only take place with his consent and after a replacement has been appointed

153. Judicial Administration

The King appoints and dismisses officers of the public ministries working within courts and tribunals

154. Remuneration

Remuneration of members of the judiciary order is established by law

155. Incompatibility, Courts of Appeal

No Judge may accept a salaried role on behalf of a Government, unless this role is exercised free of charge and without the existence of incompatibility determined by law.

156. Courts of Appeal

There are five Courts of Appeal in Belgium

1) that of Brussels, with jurisdiction over the provinces of Walloon Brabant, of Flemish Brabant, and of the bilingual Region of Brussels-Capital,

2) that of Ghent, with jurisdiction over the provinces of West Flanders and of East Flanders,

3) that of Antwerp, with jurisdiction over the provinces of Antwerp and Limburg,

4) that of Lige, with jurisdiction over the provinces of Lige, of Namur, and of Luxemburg, and

5) that of Mons, with jurisdiction over the province of Hainaut

157. Military, Commercial, and Vocational Courts

(1) Specific laws cover the organization of military courts, their attributions, the rights and the obligations of the members of these courts, in addition to the duration of their assignments

(2) There are commercial courts, in locations determined by law. Their organization, attributions, and member nomination methods, in addition to the duration of assignment of their members, are described in the law

(3) The law also covers the organization of work jurisdictions, their attributions, the manner in which their members are nominated, and the duration of their assignments

158. Attribution Conflicts

The Court of Cassation makes decisions in attribution conflicts in the manner provided for by law

159. Rule of Law

Courts and tribunals may apply decisions and general, provincial, or local rulings only inasmuch as these are in conformity with the law

CHAPTER VII*COUNCIL OF STATE, ADMINISTRATIVE JURISDICTION*160. Council of State

(1) There is a Council of State for all of Belgium, the composition, responsibilities, and functioning of which are determined by law. However, the law may allow the King to establish the procedure in keeping with those principles it describes.

(2) The Council of State statutes by ruling as an administrative jurisdiction, and provides an opinion in those cases determined by the law.

161. Administrative Jurisdiction

Under no circumstance may administrative jurisdiction be established other than on the sole basis of a law.

PROVINCIAL AND COMMUNAL INSTITUTIONS

162. Principles

(1) Provincial and communal institutions are governed by the law.

(2) The law applies the following principles

1) the direct election of provincial and of communal Council members,

2) the attribution to provincial and communal Councils all that which is in the provincial or communal interest, without prejudice to the approval of their actions in cases and following that manner determined by law,

3) the decentralization of attributions in favor of provincial and communal institutions,

4) the publicizing of provincial and communal Council meetings within the limits established by law,

5) the publicizing of accounts and budgets

6) the intervention of overseeing authorities or of the federal legislative power, to prevent violations of the law or harm to public interests

(3) In application of a law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, the organization and application of administrative overseeing may be determined by Community or Regional Councils

(4) In application of a law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, the decree or the ruling described in Article 134 establishes the conditions and the manner in which several provinces or communes may associate themselves or co-operate. However, the convening of several provincial or communal Councils for joint deliberation may not be allowed

163. Shared Responsibility

(1) Those responsibilities exercised within the Walloon and Flemish Regions by elected provincial bodies are exercised, in the bilingual Region of Brussels-Capital, by the French and Flemish Communities, and by the common Community Commission, each with respect to matters within their jurisdictions and by virtue of Articles 127 and 128 and, with respect to other issues, by the Brussels-Capital Region

(2) However, a law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, establishes the conditions by which the Brussels-Capital Region or all institutions the members of which are designated by the latter exercise the responsibilities described in paragraph (1) which do not depend upon those matters described in Article 39. A law adopted by the same majority establishes the attributions to those institutions described in Article 136 of all or part of the responsibilities described in paragraph (1), subject to those matters described in Articles 127 and 128

164. Registers

The drafting of civil acts and maintenance of registers belong exclusively to the attributions of communal authorities

165. Urban Entities, Federations of Communes

(1) The law creates urban entities and federations of communes. It determines their organization and their responsibilities through application of those principles described in Article 162

(1.2) For each urban area and for each federation there exists a Council and an executive committee

(1.3) The president of the executive committee is elected by and within the Council, his election is ratified by the King, the law establishes his statute

(1.4) Articles 159 and 190 apply to the rulings and regulations of urban entities and federations of communes

(1.5) The geographical limits of urban entities and of federations of communes may only be changed or rectified on the sole basis of a law

(2) The law creates the body within which each urban entity and nearby federations of communes may meet, according to the conditions and manner which the law establishes, for the examination of common problems of a technical nature within their respective areas of competence

(3) Several federations of communes may cooperate or associate themselves with one or more urban entities in accordance with the conditions and in the manner prescribed by law, to jointly manage and regulate those issues within their respective areas of competence. Their Councils may not engage in joint deliberation

166. Brussels-Capital

(1) Article 165 applies to that urban entity to which the capital of the Kingdom belongs, with the exception of that which is established hereafter

(2) The responsibilities of the urban entity to which the Kingdom's capital belongs are, in the manner determined by a law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, exercised by those bodies of the Brussels-Capital Region created by virtue of Article 39

(3) The bodies described in Article 136-

1) possess, each for its Community, responsibilities identical to those of other organizing powers with respect to cultural, educational, and personal matters,

2) exercise, for their respective Communities, the responsibilities delegated to them by the French Community Council and by the Flemish Community Council,

3) jointly settle those matters described in 1) which are of common interest

TITLE IV

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

167. Shared Responsibility

(1 1) The King manages international relations, without prejudice to the ability of Communities and Regions to engage in international co-operation, including the signature of treaties, for those matters within their responsibilities as established by the Constitution and in virtue thereof

(1 2) The King commands the armed forces, and determines the state of war and the cessation of hostilities. He notifies the Houses as soon as State interests and security permit and he adds those messages deemed appropriate

(1 3) Territorial transfers, exchanges, and additions may take place only by virtue of a law

(2) The King concludes treaties, with the exception of those described in Paragraph (3). These treaties may take effect only following approval of the Houses

(3) Those Community and Regional Governments described in Article conclude, in matters that concern them, treaties regarding matters that are in the scope of the responsibilities of their Councils. These treaties may take effect only following approval by the council

(4) A law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, specifies the terms for conclusion of treaties described in Paragraph (3), and for those treaties not exclusively concerned with issues within the competence of Regions or Communities or by virtue of the Constitution

(5 1) The King may denounce treaties concluded before 18 May 1993 and covering matters described in paragraph (3) of common accord with those Community or Regional Governments concerned

(5 2) The King denounces these treaties if the Community or Regional Governments concerned invite him to do so. A law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, establishes the procedure in the event of disagreement between the Community or Regional Governments concerned

168. Parliament Information

The Houses are informed from the beginning of negotiations concerning any revision of the treaties establishing the European Community in addition to treaties and acts which may have modified or completed the latter. They are aware of the planned treaty prior to signature.

169. Representation of Powers

In order to ensure respect of international or supranational obligations, the authorities described in Articles 36 and 37 may, within the limits established by law, temporarily substitute themselves for those bodies described in Articles 115 and 121. This law must be adopted by majority vote as established in Article 4, last paragraph.

TITLE V FINANCE

170. Taxes

(1) Taxes to the benefit of the State may be imposed only by virtue of a law.

(2 1) Taxes to the benefit of Communities or Regions may be imposed only through a decree or ruling as described in Article 134.

(2 2) The law determines, with respect to those taxes described in paragraph (1) those exceptions of proven necessity.

(3 1) A fee or tax may be established by a province only following the decision of its Council.

(3 2) A law determines, with respect to the taxes described in paragraph (1), those exceptions of proven necessity.

(3 3) The law can suppress, either totally or partially, the taxes referred to in paragraph (1).

(4 1) No charge or tax can be established by the urban districts, by the federation of communes, nor by the communes except by a decision made by their Councils.

(4 2) The law determines, with respect to the taxes described in paragraph (1), those exceptions of proven necessity.

171. Annual Vote on Taxes

(1) Taxes to the benefit of the State, the Community, or the Region are voted on an annual basis.

(2) Rules which determine them remain valid for one year if they are not renewed.

172. No Privileges

(1) No privileges with regard to taxes can be established.

(2) No exemption or reduction of taxes can be established except by a law.

173. Purpose of Taxation

Except for the provinces, polders, and drainage systems, and those cases formally excepted by the laws, the decrees and rules described in Article 134, taxes may be imposed upon citizens only for the benefit of the State, the Community, the Region, the urban entity, the federation of communes or the commune

174. Budget

(1) Each year, the House of Representatives rules on the approval of State accounts and votes on the Budget. However, the House of Representatives and the Senate establish their respective allocations on an annual basis.

(2) All State receipts and expenditure must be included in the budget and included in the accounts.

175. Community Budget

(1) A law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, establishes the method of financing for the French Community and for the Flemish Community.

(2) The French and Flemish Community Councils decide upon the spending of their respective attributions by decree.

176. German-speaking Community

(1) The method of financing of the German-speaking Community is established by law.

(2) The German-speaking Community Council decides upon the spending of its financial attributions by decree.

177. Regional Budget

(1) A law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, fixes the methods of financing for Regions.

(2) Regional Councils determine, respectively, the uses to which financial means are applied, in keeping with the terms described in Article 134.

178. Financial Transfer

Within the conditions and terms described by law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4, last paragraph, the Brussels-Capital Regional Council transfers, by virtue of the rule described in Article 134, financial means to the Joint Community Commission and to the French and Flemish Community Commissions.

179. Pension Only by Law

Under no circumstance may a pension or other form of compensation be attributed other than by sole virtue of a law.

180. State Audit Office

(1) Members of the State Audit Office are nominated by the House of Representatives for a duration established by law.

(2) This Office is responsible for the examination and for the liquidation of general administration accounts and for the accounts of accountants working for the public treasury. It must see that no budgetary item is surpassed and that no transfers take place. The Office also oversees operations relative to the establishment and to the perception of State income, including tax collection. It establishes the accounts of the various State administrations, and is responsible, in this regard, for the collection of all required information and accounting items.

(3) General accounts of the State are submitted to the House of Representatives with State Audit Office observations.

(4) This Office is organized by law.

181. Remuneration of Religious and Moral Leaders

(1) The State awards remuneration and pensions to religious leaders; those amounts required are included in the budget on an annual basis.

(2) The State awards remuneration and pensions to representatives of organizations recognized by the law as providing moral assistance according to a non-religious philosophical concept; those amounts required are included in the budget on an annual basis.

TITLE VI

ARMY AND POLICE

182. Army Recruitment

Army recruitment methods are determined by law. The law also establishes matters of promotion, and the rights and obligations of military personnel.

183. Military Quotas

Military quotas are voted annually. The law establishing them remains valid for one year if it is not renewed.

184. State Police

The organization and the attributions of the State Police are the subject of a law.

185. No Foreign Troops

Under no circumstance may foreign troops be admitted within the service of the State, or occupy or cross through the territory other than on the sole basis of a law.

186. Deprivation of Rank

Military personnel may be deprived of rank, honors, and pensions only in the manner described by law.

TITLE VII*GENERAL DISPOSITIONS*187. No Suspension of Constitution

The Constitution may not be wholly or partially suspended

188. Old Law

From the day on which the Constitution becomes enforceable, all laws, decrees, rulings, rules, and other acts are annulled

189. Binding Texts

Constitutional texts are established in French, in Dutch, and in German

190. Mandatory Publication of Laws

No law, decree, or general administrative ruling, whether provincial or communal, may take effect until having been published in the manner described by law

191. Protection of Foreigners

All foreigners on Belgian soil benefit from that protection provided to persons and property, save for those exceptions provided for by law

192. Legal Oaths

No oath may be imposed other than by sole virtue of a law. The latter determines wording

193. Colors, Coat of Arms

The Belgian Nation adopts red, yellow, and black colors, while the Coat of Arms depicts the Lion of Belgium with the Motto Union Makes Strength

194. Capital

The city of Brussels is the capital of Belgium and the headquarters of the Federal Government

TITLE VIII*REVISION OF THE CONSTITUTION*195. Declaration, Dissolution, New Houses Debate

(1) The federal legislative power has the right to declare a warranted constitutional revision of those matters which it determines

(2) Following such a declaration, the two Houses are dissolved by full right

(3) Two new Houses are then convened, in keeping with the terms of Article 46

(4) These Houses statute, of common accord with the King, on those points submitted for revision

(5) In this case, the Houses may debate only provided that two-thirds of the members composing each House are present, and no change may be adopted unless voted upon by a two-thirds majority

196. Restrictions

No constitutional revision may be undertaken or pursued during times of war or when the Houses are prevented from meeting freely on federal territory

197. Permanent Regency

During a Regency, no changes may be brought to the Constitution regarding the constitutional powers of the King and Articles 85 to 88, 91 to 95, 106, and 197.

198. Editorial Changes

(1) In agreement with the King, the Constituting Chambers may adapt the numerical order of articles and of sub-articles of the Constitution, in addition to sub-divisions of the latter into titles, sections, and chapters, modify the terminology of dispositions not submitted for revision in order for them to be in keeping with the terminology of new dispositions, and ensure the concordance of French, Dutch, and German constitutional texts

(2) In this case, the Houses may debate only provided that two-thirds of the members composing each House are present, and no change may be adopted unless voted upon by a two-thirds majority

SUCCESSION, TRANSITION

[Part I—Rules of Succession]

(1) The dispositions of Article 85 shall for the first time be applicable to the descent from H R H Prince Albert, Felix, Humbert, Theodore, Christian, Eugene, Marie, Prince of Liege, Prince of Belgium, it being understood that the marriage of H R H Princess Astrid, Josephine, Charlotte, Fabrizia, Elisabeth, Paola, Marie, Princess of Belgium, with Lorenz, Archduke of East Austria, was meant to have obtained the consent described in Article 85 (2)

(2) Until such time, the following dispositions remain in effect

(3) The constitutional powers of the King are hereditary through the direct, natural, and legitimate descent from H M Leopold, George, Chretien, Frederic of Saxony-Coburg, from male to male, by order of primogeniture and with the permanent exclusion of women and of their descendants

(4) It shall be deprived of his rights to the crown any prince who marries without the consent of the King, or, in his absence, of those who exercise his authority as provided for by the Constitution

(5) He may, however, be relieved of this deprivation by the King, or, in his absence, by those who exercise his authority as provided for by the Constitution, provided the consent of the two Houses is obtained

The Article 32 takes effect on 1 Jan 1995

[Part III—Article 125]

The Article 125 is valid for events taking place after 8 May 1993

[Part IV—Transitional Council Elections]

(1) The next Council elections, in keeping with those dispositions of Articles 115 (2), 116 (2), 118, and 119, with the exclusion of Article 117, take place on the same day as the next general elections to the House of Representatives. The following Council elections, in keeping with Articles 115 (2), 116 (2), 118, and 119 take place on the same day as the second European Parliamentary elections following the taking of effect of Articles 115 (2), 118, 120, 121 (2), 123, and 124

(2) Prior to the next elections to the House of Representatives, Articles 116 (2), 117, and 119 are not applicable

[Part V—Transitional House of Representatives]

(1) Prior to the next complete renewal of the House of Representatives, notwithstanding the dispositions of Articles 43 (2), 46, 63, 67, 68, 69 (3), 70, 74, 100, 101, 111, 151 (3), 174 (1), and 180 (2), last sentence, the following dispositions remain in effect

a) Federal legislative power is collectively exercised by the King, by the House of Representatives, and by the Senate

b) The King has the right to dissolve both Houses simultaneously, and the dissolution act implies voter convocations for within forty days and House convocations for within two months

c) There are 212 members of the House of Representatives, and the federal divisor can be obtained by dividing the population of the Kingdom by 212

d) The Senate is composed

1) of 106 elected members, on the basis of the population of each province, in keeping with the terms of Article 61. The dispositions of Article 62 are applicable to the election of these Senators,

2) of members elected by provincial Councils, on the basis of one senator per 200,000 inhabitants. For each 125,000 surplus inhabitants, one additional senator is allowed. Nonetheless, each provincial Council appoints at least three senators. These members may not belong to the assembly which elects them, nor may they have been a part of the electing assembly for a period of two years prior to the election date,

3) of members elected by the Senate up to one-half of the number of senators elected by the provincial Councils. Should this number be odd, one unit is added. These members are designated by the senators elected by virtue of 1) and 2). The election of senators elected by virtue of 2) and 3) is carried out using the proportional representation system determined by law. Should it become necessary, following 31 Dec 1994, to replace a senator elected by the Brabant Provincial Council, the Senate elects a member in accordance with those conditions established by law. With respect to this law, the House of Representatives and the Senate are competent on an equal footing

e) In order to be elected senator one must, notwithstanding Article 69 1), 2), and 4), have completed forty years of age

f) Senators are elected for a period of four years

g) Ministers may have a participatory voice in debates only in that House of which they are members. They have access to both Houses, and must be heard upon their request. The Houses may demand the presence of ministers

h) The King may pardon a minister or the member of a Community or Regional Government condemned by the Court of Cassation only following the request of one of the two Houses or of that Council concerned.

i) Judges of the Court of Cassation are appointed by the King on two double lists, one being presented by the Senate, the other by the Court of Cassation

j) Every year, the Houses vote on the budget and rule on Government accounts

k) The State Audit Office submits the general State accounts, with observations, to the House of Representatives and to the Senate

(2) Articles 50, 75 (2) and (3), 77 to 83, 96 (2), and 99 (1) take effect from the moment the next complete renewal of the House of Representatives is effected.

[Part VI—Transition until 31 Dec 1994]

(1) Until 31 Dec 1994, and in derogation to Article 5 (1), the provinces are Antwerp, Brabant, West Flanders, East Flanders, Hainaut, Liege, Limburg, Luxembourg, and Namur

(2) The next provincial elections shall coincide with the next communal elections and shall take place on the second Sunday of Oct 1994. Inasmuch as the law described in paragraph (3), first part, has taken effect, electors shall be called upon on that same Sunday for the election of the Flemish Brabant and of the Walloon Brabant Provincial Councils

(3 1) The personnel and the assets of Brabant province shall be split between the province of Walloon Brabant, the province of Flemish Brabant, the Region of Brussels-Capital, the authorities and the institutions described in Articles 135 and 136, in addition to the federal authority, in keeping with the terms determined by a law adopted by majority vote as described in Article 4 last paragraph

(3 2) Following the next renewal of the Provincial Councils and until the moment of their repartition, personnel and assets remaining in common shall be jointly managed by the province of Walloon Brabant, that of Flemish Brabant, and by the competent authorities of the bilingual Region of Brussels-Capital

(4) Until 31 Dec 1994, appeal court Judges and the Presidents and the Vice-Presidents of the High Courts of Justice upon which they depend notwithstanding Article 151 (2), are named by the King on two double lists one being presented by these courts, the other by the Provincial Councils

(5) Until 31 Dec 1994, notwithstanding Article 156 (1), the province of Brabant remains within the jurisdiction of the Appeals Court of Brussels

CONSTITUTION OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

{Adopted on 1 Dec 1995}

PREAMBLE

Based on respect for human dignity, liberty, and equality, Dedicated to peace, justice, tolerance, and reconciliation, Convinced that democratic governmental institutions and fair procedures best produce peaceful relations within a pluralist society, Desiring to promote the general welfare and economic growth through the protection of private property and the promotion of a market economy, Guided by the Purposes and Principles of the Charter of the United Nations, Committed to the sovereignty, territorial integrity, and political independence of Bosnia and Herzegovina in accordance with international law, Determined to ensure full respect for international humanitarian law, Inspired by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Civil and Political Rights and on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, and the Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities, as well as other human rights instruments, Recalling the Basic Principles agreed in Geneva on 8 Sep 1995, and in New York on 26 Sep 1995, Bosniacs, Croats, and Serbs, as constituent peoples (along with Others), and citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina hereby determine that the Constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina is as follows

ARTICLE I
BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

1. Continuation

The Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the official name of which shall henceforth be "Bosnia and Herzegovina," shall continue its legal existence under international law as a State, with its internal structure modified as provided herein and with its present internationally recognized borders. It shall remain a Member State of the United Nations and may as Bosnia and Herzegovina maintain or apply for membership in organizations within the United Nations system and other international organizations.

2. Democratic Principles

Bosnia and Herzegovina shall be a democratic State, which shall operate under the rule of law and with free and democratic elections.

3. Composition

Bosnia and Herzegovina shall consist of the two Entities, the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Republika Srpska (hereinafter "the Entities").

4. Movement of Goods, Services, Capital, and Persons

There shall be freedom of movement throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina. Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Entities shall not impede full freedom of movement of persons, goods, services, and capital throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina. Neither Entity shall establish controls at the boundary between the Entities.

5. Capital

The capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina shall be Sarajevo.

6. Symbols

Bosnia and Herzegovina shall have such symbols as are decided by its Parliamentary Assembly and approved by the Presidency.

7. Citizenship

There shall be a citizenship of Bosnia and Herzegovina, to be regulated by the Parliamentary Assembly, and a citizenship of each Entity, to be regulated by each Entity, provided that

(a) All citizens of either Entity are thereby citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(b) No person shall be deprived of Bosnia and Herzegovina or Entity citizenship arbitrarily or so as to leave him or her stateless. No person shall be deprived of Bosnia and Herzegovina or Entity citizenship on any ground such as sex, race, color, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, association with a national minority, property, birth or other status.

(c) All persons who were citizens of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina immediately prior to the entry into force of this Constitution are citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The citizenship of persons who were naturalized after April 6, 1992 and before the entry into force of this Constitution will be regulated by the Parliamentary Assembly

(d) Citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina may hold the citizenship of another State, provided that there is a bilateral agreement, approved by the Parliamentary Assembly in accordance with Article IV (4)(d), between Bosnia and Herzegovina and that State governing this matter. Persons with dual citizenship may vote in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Entities only if Bosnia and Herzegovina is their country of residence.

(e) A citizen of Bosnia and Herzegovina abroad shall enjoy the protection of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Each Entity may issue passports of Bosnia and Herzegovina to its citizens as regulated by the Parliamentary Assembly. Bosnia and Herzegovina may issue passports to citizens not issued a passport by an Entity. There shall be a central register of all passports issued by the Entities and by Bosnia and Herzegovina

ARTICLE II

HUMAN RIGHTS AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS

1. Human Rights

Bosnia and Herzegovina and both Entities shall ensure the highest level of internationally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms. To that end, there shall be a Human Rights Commission for Bosnia and Herzegovina as provided for in Annex 6 to the General Framework Agreement

2. International Standards

The rights and freedoms set forth in the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms and its Protocols shall apply directly in Bosnia and Herzegovina. These shall have priority over all other law

3. Enumeration of Rights

All persons within the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina shall enjoy the human rights and fundamental freedoms referred to in paragraph 2 above, these include

- (a) The right to life
- (b) The right not to be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment
- (c) The right not to be held in slavery or servitude or to perform forced or compulsory labor
- (d) The rights to liberty and security of person

- (e) The right to a fair hearing in civil and criminal matters, and other rights relating to criminal proceedings
- (f) The right to private and family life, home, and correspondence

- (i) Freedom of peaceful assembly and freedom of association with others
- (j) The right to marry and to found a family
- (k) The right to property
- (l) The right to education
- (m) The right to liberty of movement and residence

4. Non-Discrimination

The enjoyment of the rights and freedoms provided for in this Article or in the international agreements listed in Annex I to this Constitution shall be secured to all persons in Bosnia and Herzegovina without discrimination on any ground such as sex, race, color, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, association with a national minority, property, birth or other status

5. Refugees and Displaced Persons

All refugees and displaced persons have the right freely to return to their homes of origin. They have the right, in accordance with Annex 7 to the General Framework Agreement, to have restored to them property of which they were deprived in the course of hostilities since 1991 and to be compensated for any such property that cannot be restored to them. Any commitments or statements relating to such property made under duress are null and void.

6. Implementation

Bosnia and Herzegovina, and all courts, agencies, governmental organs, and instrumentalities operated by or within the Entities, shall apply and conform to the human rights and fundamental freedoms referred to in paragraph 2 above.

7. International Agreements

Bosnia and Herzegovina shall remain or become party to the international agreements listed in Annex I to this Constitution.

8. Cooperation

All competent authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina shall cooperate with and provide unrestricted access to any international human rights monitoring mechanisms established for Bosnia and Herzegovina, the supervisory bodies established by any of the international agreements listed in Annex I to this Constitution, the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (and in particular shall comply with orders issued pursuant to Article 29 of the Statute of the Tribunal), and any other organization.

authorized by the United Nations Security Council with a mandate concerning human rights or humanitarian law

ARTICLE III
RESPONSIBILITIES OF AND RELATIONS
BETWEEN THE INSTITUTIONS OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA AND THE ENTITIES

1. Responsibilities of the Institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina

The following matters are the responsibility of the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina

- (a) Foreign policy
- (b) Foreign trade policy
- (c) Customs policy
- (d) Monetary policy as provided in Article VII
- (e) Finances of the institutions and for the international obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina

- (h) Establishment and operation of common and international communications facilities
- (i) Regulation of inter-Entity transportation
- (j) Air traffic control

2. Responsibilities of the Entities

(a) The Entities shall have the right to establish special parallel relationships with neighboring States consistent with the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina

(b) Each Entity shall provide all necessary assistance to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina in order to enable it to honor the international obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina, provided that financial obligations incurred by one Entity without the consent of the other prior to the election of the Parliamentary Assembly and Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina shall be the responsibility of that Entity, except insofar as the obligation is necessary for continuing the membership of Bosnia and Herzegovina in an international organization

(c) The Entities shall provide a safe and secure environment for all persons in their respective jurisdictions, by maintaining civilian law enforcement agencies operating in accordance with internationally recognized standards and with respect for the internationally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms referred to in Article II above, and by taking such other measures as appropriate.

(d) Each Entity may also enter into agreements with States and international organizations with the consent of the Parliamentary Assembly. The Parliamentary Assembly may provide by law that certain types of agreements do not require such consent.

3. Law and Responsibilities of the Entities and the Institutions

(a) All governmental functions and powers not expressly assigned in this Constitution to the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina shall be those of the Entities.

(b) The Entities and any subdivisions thereof shall comply fully with this Constitution, which supersedes inconsistent provisions of the law of Bosnia and Herzegovina and of the constitutions and law of the Entities, and with the decisions of the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The general principles of international law shall be an integral part of the law of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Entities.

4. Coordination

The Presidency may decide to facilitate inter-Entity coordination on matters not within the responsibilities of Bosnia and Herzegovina as provided in this Constitution, unless an Entity objects in any particular case.

5. Additional Responsibilities

(a) Bosnia and Herzegovina shall assume responsibility for such other matters as are agreed by the Entities, are provided for in Annexes 5 through 8 to the General Framework Agreement, or are necessary to preserve the sovereignty, territorial integrity, political independence, and international personality of Bosnia and Herzegovina, in accordance with the division of responsibilities between the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Additional institutions may be established as necessary to carry out such responsibilities.

(b) Within six months of the entry into force of this Constitution, the Entities shall begin negotiations with a view to including in the responsibilities of the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina other matters, including utilization of energy resources and cooperative economic projects.

ARTICLE IV

PARLIAMENTARY ASSEMBLY

The Parliamentary Assembly shall have two chambers: the House of Peoples and the House of Representatives.

1. House of Peoples

The House of Peoples shall comprise 15 Delegates, two-thirds from the Federation (including five Croats and five Bosniacs) and one-third from the Republika Srpska (five Serbs).

(a) The designated Croat and Bosniac Delegates from the Federation shall be selected, respectively, by the Croat and Bosniac Delegates to the House of Peoples of the Federation Delegates from the Republika Srpska shall be selected by the National Assembly of the Republika Srpska

(b) Nine members of the House of Peoples shall comprise a quorum, provided that at least three Bosniac, three Croat, and three Serb Delegates are present.

2. House of Representatives

The House of Representatives shall comprise 42 Members, two-thirds elected from the territory of the Federation, one-third from the territory of the Republika Srpska

(a) Members of the House of Representatives shall be directly elected from their Entity in accordance with an election law to be adopted by the Parliamentary Assembly. The first election, however, shall take place in accordance with Annex 3 to the General Framework Agreement

(b) A majority of all members elected to the House of Representatives shall comprise a quorum

3. Procedures

(a) Each chamber shall be convened in Sarajevo not more than 30 days after its selection or election

(b) Each chamber shall by majority vote adopt its internal rules and select from its members one Serb, one Bosniac, and one Croat to serve as its Chair and Deputy Chairs, with the position of Chair rotating among the three persons selected

(c) All legislation shall require the approval of both chambers

(d) All decisions in both chambers shall be by majority of those present and voting. The Delegates and Members shall make their best efforts to see that the majority includes at least one-third of the votes of Delegates or Members from the territory of each Entity. If a majority vote does not include one-third of the votes of Delegates or Members from the territory of each Entity, the Chair and Deputy Chairs shall meet as a commission and attempt to obtain approval within three days of the vote. If those efforts fail, decisions shall be taken by a majority of those present and voting, provided that the dissenting votes do not include two-thirds or more of the Delegates or Members elected from either Entity

(e) A proposed decision of the Parliamentary Assembly may be declared to be destructive of a vital interest of the Bosniac, Croat, or Serb people by a majority of, as appropriate, the Bosniac, Croat, or Serb Delegates selected in accordance with paragraph 1 (a) above. Such a proposed decision shall require for approval in the House of Peoples a majority of the Bosniac, of the Croat, and of the Serb Delegates present and voting

(f) When a majority of the Bosniac, of the Croat, or of the Serb Delegates objects to the invocation of paragraph (e), the Chair of the House of Peoples shall immediately convene a Joint Commission comprising three Delegates, one each selected by the Bosniac, by the Croat, and by the Serb Delegates, to resolve the issue. If the Commission fails to do so within five days, the matter will be referred to the Constitutional Court, which shall in an expedited process review it for procedural regularity

(g) The House of Peoples may be dissolved by the Presidency or by the House itself, provided that the House's decision to dissolve is approved by a majority that includes the majority of Delegates from at least two of the Bosniac, Croat, or Serb peoples. The House of Peoples elected in the first elections after the entry into force of this Constitution may not, however, be dissolved

(h) Decisions of the Parliamentary Assembly shall not take effect before publication

(i) Both chambers shall publish a complete record of their deliberations and shall, save in exceptional circumstances in accordance with their rules, deliberate publicly.

(j) Delegates and Members shall not be held criminally or civilly liable for any acts carried out within the scope of their duties in the Parliamentary Assembly

4. Powers

The Parliamentary Assembly shall have responsibility for

(a) Enacting legislation as necessary to implement decisions of the Presidency or to carry out the responsibilities of the Assembly under this Constitution

(b) Deciding upon the sources and amounts of revenues for the operations of the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina and international obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina

(c) Approving a budget for the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina

(d) Deciding whether to consent to the ratification of treaties

(e) Such other matters as are necessary to carry out its duties or as are assigned to it by mutual agreement of the Entities

(i) Performing such other functions as may be necessary to carry out its duties, as may be assigned to it by the Parliamentary Assembly, or as may be agreed by the Entities

4. Council of Ministers

The Presidency shall nominate the Chair of the Council of Ministers, who shall take office upon the approval of the House of Representatives. The Chair shall nominate a Foreign Minister, a Minister for Foreign Trade, and other Ministers as may be appropriate, who shall take office upon the approval of the House of Representatives.

(a) Together the Chair and the Ministers shall constitute the Council of Ministers, with responsibility for carrying out the policies and decisions of Bosnia and Herzegovina in the fields referred to in Article III (1), (4), and (5) and reporting to the Parliamentary Assembly (including, at least annually, on expenditures by Bosnia and Herzegovina).

(b) No more than two-thirds of all Ministers may be appointed from the territory of the Federation. The Chair shall also nominate Deputy Ministers (who shall not be of the same constituent people as their Ministers), who shall take office upon the approval of the House of Representatives.

(c) The Council of Ministers shall resign if at any time there is a vote of no-confidence by the Parliamentary Assembly.

5. Standing Committee

(a) Each member of the Presidency shall, by virtue of the office, have civilian command authority over armed forces. Neither Entity shall threaten or use force against the other Entity, and under no circumstances shall any armed forces of either Entity enter into or stay within the territory of the other Entity without the consent of the Government of the latter and of the Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina. All armed forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina shall operate consistently with the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(b) The members of the Presidency shall select a Standing Committee on Military Matters to coordinate the activities of armed forces in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Members of the Presidency shall be members of the Standing Committee.

ARTICLE VI

CONSTITUTION OF PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

PREAMBLE

China is one of the countries with the longest histories in the world. The people of all nationalities in China have jointly created a splendid culture and have a glorious revolutionary tradition.

Feudal China was gradually reduced after 1840 to a semi-colonial and semi-feudal country. The Chinese people waged wave upon wave of heroic struggles for national independence and liberation and for democracy and freedom. Great and earth-shaking historical changes have taken place in China in the 20th century. The Revolution of 1911, led by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, abolished the feudal monarchy and gave birth to the Republic of China. But the Chinese people had yet to fulfill their historical task of overthrowing imperialism and feudalism.

After waging hard, protracted and tortuous struggles, armed and otherwise, the Chinese people of all nationalities led by the Communist Party of China with Chairman Mao Zedong as its leader ultimately, in 1949, overthrew the rule of imperialism, feudalism, and bureaucrat-capitalism, won the great victory of the new democratic revolution and founded the People's Republic of China. Thereupon the Chinese people took state power into their own hands and became masters of the country.

After the founding of the People's Republic, the transition of Chinese society from a new democratic to a socialist society was effected step by step. The socialist transformation of the private ownership of the means of production was completed, the system of exploitation of man by man eliminated and the socialist system established. The people's democratic dictatorship led by the working class and based on the alliance of workers and peasants, which is in essence the dictatorship of the proletariat, has been consolidated and developed. The Chinese people and the Chinese People's Liberation Army have thwarted aggression, sabotage, and armed provocations by imperialists and hegemonists, safeguarded China's national independence and security and strengthened its national defence. Major successes have been achieved in economic development. An independent and fairly comprehensive socialist system of industry has in the main been established. There has been a marked increase in agricultural production. Significant progress has been made in educational, scientific, cultural, and other undertakings, and socialist ideological education has yielded noteworthy results. The living standards of the people have improved considerably.

Both the victory of China's new democratic revolution and the successes of its socialist cause have been achieved by the Chinese people of all nationalities under the leadership of the Communist Party of China and the guidance of Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought, and by upholding truth, correcting errors and overcoming numerous difficulties and hardships. The basic task of the nation in the years to come is to concentrate its effort on socialist modernization. Under the leadership of the Communist Party of China and the guidance of Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought, the Chinese people of all nationalities will continue to adhere to the people's democratic dictatorship and follow the socialist road, steadily improve socialist institutions, develop socialist democracy, improve the socialist legal system, and work hard and self-reliantly to modernize industry, agriculture, national defence, and science and technology step by step to turn China into a socialist country with a high level of culture and democracy.

The exploiting classes as such have been eliminated in our country. However, class struggle will continue to exist within certain limits for a long time to come. The Chinese people must fight against those forces and elements, both at home and abroad, that are hostile to China's socialist system and try to undermine it.

Taiwan is part of the sacred territory of the People's Republic of China. It is the lofty duty of the entire Chinese people, including our compatriots in Taiwan, to accomplish the great task of reunifying the motherland.

In building socialism it is imperative to rely on the workers, peasants and intellectuals and unite with all the forces that can be united. In the long years of revolution and construction, there has been formed under the leadership of the Communist Party of China a broad patriotic united front that is composed of democratic parties and people's organizations and embraces all socialist working people, all patriots who support socialism and all patriots who stand for reunification of the motherland. This united front will continue to be consolidated and developed. The Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference is a broadly representative organization of the united front, which has played a significant historical role and will continue to do so in the political and social life of the country, in promoting friendship with the people of other countries and in the struggle for socialist modernization and for the reunification and unity of the country

The People's Republic of China is a unitary multinational State built up jointly by the people of all its nationalities. Socialist relations of equality, unity and mutual assistance have been established among them and will continue to be strengthened. In the struggle to safeguard the unity of the nationalities, it is necessary to combat big-nation chauvinism, mainly Han chauvinism, and also necessary to combat local national chauvinism. The State does its utmost to promote the common prosperity of all nationalities in the country.

China's achievements in revolution and construction are inseparable from support by the people of the world. The future of China is closely linked with that of the whole world. China adheres to an independent foreign policy as well as to the five principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, mutual non-aggression, non-interference in each other's internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit, and peaceful coexistence in developing diplomatic relations and economic and cultural exchanges with other countries. China consistently opposes imperialism, hegemonism, and colonialism, works to strengthen unity with the people of other countries, supports the oppressed nations and the developing countries in their just struggle to win and preserve national independence and develop their national economies, and strives to safeguard world peace and promote the cause of human progress.

This Constitution affirms the achievements of the struggles of the Chinese people of all nationalities and defines the basic system and basic tasks of the State in legal form, it is the fundamental law of the State and has supreme legal authority. The people of all nationalities, all State organs, the armed forces, all political parties and public organizations and all enterprises and undertakings in the country must take the Constitution as the basic norm of conduct, and they have the duty to uphold the dignity of the Constitution and ensure its implementation.

CONSTITUTION OF ARAB REPUBLIC OF EGYPT

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE ARAB REPUBLIC OF EGYPT

After the Amendments Ratified on May 22, 1980 Referendum

CONSTITUTIONAL PROCLAMATION

We, the people of Egypt, who have been toiling on this great land since the dawn of history and the beginning of civilisation

We, the people working in Egypt's villages, cities, plants, centres of education, industry and in any field of work which contributes to create life on its soil or which plays a part in the honour of defending this land, We, the people who believe in our immortal and spiritual heritage, and who are confident in our profound faith, and cherish the honour of man and of humanity, We, the people, who in addition to shouldering the trust of history, carry the responsibility of great present and future objectives whose seeds are embedded in the long and arduous struggle, and which hosted the flags of freedom, socialism and unity along the path of the great march of the Arab nation, We, the Egyptian people, in the name of God and by His assistance, pledge indefinitely and unconditionally to exert every effort to realise

FIRST

Peace to our world being determined that peace should be based on justice, and that the political and social progress of all peoples can only be realised through the freedom of these peoples and their independent will, and that any civilisation is not worthy of its name unless it is free from exploitation whatever its form.

SECOND

Union the hope of our Arab Nation, being convinced that Arab Unity is a call of history and of the future, and a demand of destiny, and that it cannot materialise except through an Arab Nation, capable of warding off any threat, whatever the source or the pretexts for such a threat

THIRD

The constant development of life in our nation Being convinced that the true challenge confronting nations is the realization of progress and that such progress does not occur automatically, or through slogans, but that the driving force behind it is the release of the potentials of creativity and inspiration in our people, who have asserted at all times their contribution to civilization and to humanity through work alone

Our people have passed through successive experiences, meantime offering rich experiences on the national and international level and being guided by them, which ultimately took shape in the July 23 Revolution of 1952

This Revolution was brought about by the alliance of the working forces of our militant people who were able, through profound and refined consciousness, to retain their original character, but at the same time move forward in a bid to realise full integration between science and faith, between political and social freedom, between national independence and social affiliation, and to participate in the worldwide struggle for the liberation of man, on the political, economic, cultural and ideological levels, and in the struggle against the forces of regression, domination and exploitation

FOURTH

Freedom for the humanity of the Egyptian man Realising that man's humanity and dignity are the lights which guide and direct the course of the great development of mankind for the realisation of its supreme ideal

Man's dignity is a natural reflection of the nation's dignity, now that the individual is the cornerstone in the edifice of the homeland, the land that derives its strength and prestige from the value of man and his education

The sovereignty of law is not only a guarantee for the freedom of the individual alone, but is also at the same time the sole basis for the legality of authority

The alliance of the active popular powers is not a means for social strife leading towards historical development

In this modern age, it is a safety valve, protecting the unity of working powers in the country and eliminating, through democracy, and contradictions

We, the people of Egypt, out of determination, confidence and faith in all national and international responsibilities, and in acknowledgment of God's right and His Heavenly Messages, and in the right of the country and nation, as well as of the principle and responsibility of mankind, and in the name of the Almighty and His assistance, declare on the 11th of September, 1971 that we accept, and grant, to ourselves this Constitution, affirming our determination to defend and protect it, and asserting our respect for it in letter and spirit

PART ONE

THE STATE

1. The Arab Republic of Egypt is a democratic, socialist State based on the alliance of the working forces of the people

The Egyptian people are part of the Arab Nation and work for the realisation of its comprehensive unity

PART TWO

BASIC CONSTITUENTS OF THE SOCIETY

CHAPTER 1

SOCIAL AND MORAL CONSTITUENTS

7. Social solidarity is the basis of the society

8. The State shall guarantee equality of opportunity to all citizens

9. The family is the basis of the society founded on religion, morality and patriotism

The State is keen to preserve the genuine character of the Egyptian family—with what it embodies of values and traditions—while affirming and developing this character in the relations within the Egyptian society

10. The State shall guarantee the protection of motherhood and childhood, take care of children and youth and provide the suitable conditions for the development of their talents

11. The State shall guarantee the proper coordination between the duties of woman towards the family and her work in the society, considering her equal with man in the fields of political, social, cultural and economic life without violation of the rules of Islamic jurisprudence

12. The society shall be committed to safeguarding and protecting morals, promoting the genuine Egyptian traditions and abiding by the high standards of religious education, moral and national values, historical heritage of the people, scientific facts, socialist conduct and public morality within the limits of the law

The State is committed to abiding by these principles and promoting them

13. Work is right, a duty and an honour ensured by the State

Workers who excel in their field of work shall receive the appreciation of the State and the society

No work shall be imposed on the citizens, except by virtue of the law, for the performance of a public service and in return for a fair remuneration

14. Public offices are the right of all citizens and an assignment for their occupants in the service of the people

The State guarantees their (the occupants) protection and the performance of their duties in safeguarding the interests of the people

They may not be dismissed by other than the disciplinary way, except in the cases specified by the law

24. The people shall control all the means of production and direct their surplus in accordance with the development plan laid down by the State.

25. Every citizen shall have a share in the national revenue to be defined by the law in accordance with his work or his unexploiting ownership

26. The workers shall have a share in the management and profits of the projects. They are committed to the development of production and the implementation of the plan in their production units, in accordance with the law. Protecting the means of production is a national duty.

Workers shall be represented on the boards of directors of the public sector units by at least 50% of the number of members of these boards. The law shall guarantee for the small farmers and small craftsmen 80% of the membership on the boards of directors of the agricultural cooperatives and industrial cooperatives

27. Beneficiaries shall participate in the management of the services projects of public interest and their supervision in accordance with the law

28. The State shall look after the cooperative establishments in all their forms and encourage handicrafts with a view to developing production and raising income.

The State shall endeavour to consolidate the agricultural cooperatives according to modern scientific bases.

29. Ownership shall be under the supervision of the people and the protection of the State

There are three kinds: public ownership, cooperative ownership and private ownership

30. Public ownership is the ownership of the people and it is confirmed by the continuous consolidation of the public sector.

The Public sector shall be the vanguard of progress in all spheres and shall assume the main responsibility in the development plan

31. Cooperative ownership is the ownership of the cooperative societies. The law guarantees its protection and self-management

32. Private ownership shall be represented by the unexploiting capital. The law organises the performance of its social function in the service of national economy within the framework of the development plan without deviation or exploitation. It may not be in conflict, in the ways of its use, with the general welfare of the people.

33. Public ownership shall have its sanctity, and its protection and consolidation is the duty of every citizen in accordance with the law, as it is considered the mainstay of the strength of the homeland, a basis for the socialist system and a source of prosperity of the people

34. Private ownership shall be safeguarded and may not be put under sequestration except in the cases specified in the law and with a judicial decision. It may not be expropriated except for the general good and against a fair compensation in accordance with the law. The right of inheritance is guaranteed in it.

35. Nationalisation shall not be allowed except for considerations of public interest, in accordance with a law and against a compensation.

36. General sequestration of funds shall be prohibited.

Private sequestration shall not be allowed except with a judicial decision.

37. The law shall fix the maximum limit of land ownership with a view to protecting the farmer and the agricultural labourer from exploitation and asserting the authority of the alliance of the people's working powers at the level of the village.

38. The tax system shall be based on social justice.

39. Saving is a national duty protected, encouraged and organised by the State.

PART THREE

PUBLIC FREEDOMS, RIGHTS AND DUTIES

40. All citizens are equal before the law.

They have equal public rights and duties without discrimination between them due to race, ethnic origin, language, religion or creed.

41. Individual freedom is a natural right and shall not be touched.

Except in cases of a flagrant delict no person may be arrested, inspected, detained or his freedom restricted or prevented from free movement except by an order necessitated by investigations and preservation of the security of the society.

This order shall be given by the competent Judge or the Public Prosecution in accordance with the provisions of the law.

The law shall determine the period of custody.

55. Citizens shall have the right to form societies as defined in the law

The establishment of societies whose activities are hostile to the social system, clandestine or have a military character is prohibited

56. The creation of syndicates and unions on a democratic basis is a right guaranteed by law, and should have a moral entity

The law regulates the participation of syndicates and unions in carrying out the social programmes and plans, raising the standard of efficiency, consolidating the socialist behavior among their members, and safeguarding their funds

They are responsible for questioning their members about their behavior in exercising their activities according to certain codes of morals, and for defending the rights and liberties of their members as defined in the law

57. Any assault on individual freedom or on the inviolability of private life of citizens and any other public rights and liberties guaranteed by the Constitution and the law shall be considered a crime, whose criminal and civil lawsuit is not liable to prescription

The State shall grant a fair compensation to the victim of such an assault

58. The defense of the motherland is a sacred duty, and conscription is obligatory in accordance with the law

59. Safeguarding, consolidating and preserving the socialist gains is a national duty

60. Protecting national unity and keeping State secrets is the duty of every citizen

61. Payment of taxes and public imports is a duty, in accordance with the law

62. Citizens shall have the right to vote, nominate and express their opinions in referendums according to the provisions of the law

Their participation in public life is a national duty

63. Every individual has the right to address public authorities in writing and with his own signature

Addressing public authorities should not be in the name of groups, with the exception of disciplinary organs and moral personalities

PART FOUR

SOVEREIGNTY OF THE LAW

64. Sovereignty of the law shall be the basis of rule in the State

65. The State shall be subject to law

The independence and immunity of the judiciary are two basic guarantees to safeguard rights and liberties

66. Penalty shall be personal

There shall be no crime or penalty except by virtue of the law

No penalty shall be inflicted except by a judicial sentence

Penalty shall be inflicted only for acts committed subsequent to the promulgation of the law prescribing them

67. Any defendant is innocent until he is proved guilty before a legal court, in which he is granted the right to defend himself

Every person accused of a crime must be provided with counsel for his defense

68. The right to litigation is inalienable for all, and every citizen has the right to refer to his competent judge

The State shall guarantee the accessibility of the judicature organs to litigants, and the rapidity of statuting on cases

Any provision in the law stipulating the immunity of any act or administrative decision from the control of the judicature is prohibited

69. The right of defense in person or by mandate is guaranteed

The law shall grant the financially incapable citizens the means to resort to justice and defend their rights

70. No penal lawsuit shall be sued except by an order from a judicature organ and in cases defined by the law

71. Any person arrested or detained should be informed, forthwith with the reasons for his arrest or detention

He has the right to communicate, inform, and ask the help of anyone as prescribed in the law

He must be faced, as soon as possible, with the charges directed against him

Any person may lodge a complaint to the courts against any measure taken to restrict his individual freedom.

The law regulates the right of complaint in a manner ensuring a ruling regarding it within a definite period, or else release is imperative

72. Sentences shall be passed and executed in the name of the people.

Likewise, refraining to execute sentences or obstructing them on the part of the concerned civil servants is considered a crime punishable by law

In this case, those whom the sentence is in favour of, have the right to sue a direct penal lawsuit before the competent court

SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT

CHAPTER ONE

THE HEAD OF STATE

73. The Head of State is the President of the Republic

He shall assert the sovereignty of the people, respect the Constitution and the supremacy of the law, safeguard the national unity and the socialist gains, and maintain the boundaries between authorities in a manner to ensure that each shall perform its role in the national action

74. If any danger threatens the national unity or the safety of the motherland or obstructs the constitutional role of the State institutions, the President of the Republic shall take urgent measures to face this danger, direct a statement to the people and conduct a referendum on these measures within sixty days of its adoption

73. The person to be elected President of the Republic must be an Egyptian born to Egyptian parents and enjoy civil and political rights

His age must not be less than 40 Gregorian years

76. The People's Assembly shall nominate the President of the Republic

The nomination shall be referred to the people for a plebiscite

The nomination to the post of President of the Republic shall be made in the People's Assembly upon the proposal of at least one-third of its member

The candidate who wins two-thirds of the votes of the Assembly members shall be referred to the people for a plebiscite

If none of the candidates obtain the said majority the nomination process shall be repeated two days after the first vote

The candidate winning the votes with an absolute majority of the Assembly members shall be referred to the citizens for a plebiscite

The candidate shall be considered President of the Republic when he obtains an absolute majority of the votes cast in the plebiscite

If the candidate does not obtain this majority, the Assembly shall nominate another candidate and the same procedure shall be followed

77. The term of the Presidency is six Gregorian years starting from the date of the announcement of the result of the plebiscite

The President of the Republic may be re-elected for other successive terms

78. Procedures for the choice of a new President of the Republic shall begin sixty days before the expiration of the term of the President in office

The new President shall be selected at least one week before the expiration of the term. Should this term expire without the choice of the new President being made for any reason whatsoever, the former President shall continue to exercise his functions until his successor is elected

79. Before exercising his powers, the President shall take the following oath before the People's Assembly

"I swear by Almighty God to uphold the Republican system with loyalty, to respect the Constitution and the law, to look after the interests of the people fully and to safeguard the independence and territorial integrity of the motherland"

80. The salary of the President of the Republic shall be fixed by law

Any amendment in the salary shall not come into force during the Presidential term in which it is decided upon

The President of the Republic may not receive any other salary or remuneration

81. During his term the President of the Republic may not exercise any free profession or undertake any commercial, financial or industrial activity

Nor may he acquire or take on lease any State property, sell to or exchange with the State any property of his whatsoever

82. If on account of any temporary obstacle the President of the Republic is unable to carry out his functions, he shall delegate his powers to a Vice-President

83. In case of resignation, the President shall address the letter of resignation to the People's Assembly

84. In case of the vacancy of the Presidential Office or the permanent disability of the President of the Republic, the President of the People's Assembly shall temporarily assume the Presidency, and, if at that time, the People's Assembly is dissolved, the President of the Supreme Constitutional Court shall take over the Presidency, however, on condition that neither one shall nominate himself for the Presidency

The People's Assembly shall then proclaim the vacancy of the office of President

The President of the Republic shall be chosen within a maximum period of sixty days from the day of the vacancy of the Presidential Office

85. Any charge against the President of high treason or of committing a criminal act shall be made upon a proposal by at least one-third of the members of the People's Assembly

No impeachment shall be issued except upon the approval of a majority of two-thirds of the Assembly members

The President shall be suspended from the exercise of his duty as from the issuance of the impeachment

The Vice-President shall take over the Presidency temporarily until the decision concerning the impeachment is taken

The President of the Republic shall be tried by a special tribunal set up by law

The law shall also organise the trial procedures and define the penalty

If he is found guilty, he shall be relieved of his post, without prejudice to other penalties

THE LEGISLATURE

The People's Assembly

86. The People's Assembly shall exercise the legislative power and approve the general policy of the State, the general plan of economic and social development and the general budget of the State

It shall exercise control over the work of the executive authority in the manner prescribed by the Constitution

87. The law shall determine the constituencies into which the State shall be divided and the number of elected members of the People's Assembly must be at least 350 persons, of which one half at least must be workers and farmers elected by direct secret public balloting

The definition of the worker and the farmer shall be made by law

The President of the Republic may appoint a number of members not exceeding ten

88. The necessary conditions stipulated in the members of the People's Assembly shall be defined by law

The rules of election and referendum shall be determined by law, while the ballot shall be conducted under the supervision of members of a judiciary organ

89. Employees of the State and of the public sector nominate themselves for membership in the People's Assembly

The member of the People's Assembly shall devote himself to membership in the Assembly except in cases specified by law

His post or work shall be held over for him in accordance with the provisions of the law

90. The member of the People's Assembly shall take the following oath before the Assembly before entering upon his duties

"I swear by God Almighty, that I shall preserve the safety of the nation and the Republican regime, shall attend to the interests of the people and shall respect the Constitution and law"

91. Members of the People's Assembly shall receive a remuneration determined by the law

92. The duration of the People's Assembly term is five Gregorian years from the date of its first meeting

Elections for renewal of the Assembly shall take place within the sixty days preceding the termination of the term

93. The People's Assembly shall be the only authority competent to decide upon the validity of its members

A Court of Causation shall be competent to investigate the validity of contestation presented to the Assembly, on being referred to it by the President of the Assembly

The contestation shall be referred to the Court of Causation within fifteen days as from the date on which the Assembly was informed of it, while the investigation shall be completed within ninety days from the date on which the contestation is referred to the Court of Causation

The result of the investigation and the decision reached by the Court shall be submitted to the Assembly to decide upon the validity of the contestation within sixty days from the date of submission of the result of the investigation to the Assembly

The membership will not be deemed invalid except by a decision taken by a majority of two-thirds of the Assembly members

94. If the seat of a member becomes vacant before the end of his term, a successor shall be elected or appointed to it, within sixty days from the date of the communication to the Assembly of the occurrence of the vacancy

The term of the new member shall extend until the end of the term of his predecessor.

95. No member of the People's Assembly shall, during his mandate, purchase or rent any State property, or lease or sell to the State or barter with it regarding any part of his property, or conclude a contract with the State in his capacity as entrepreneur, importer or contractor

96. No membership in the People's Assembly shall be revoked except on the grounds of loss of confidence or status or of one of the conditions of membership, or the loss of the member's status as a worker or farmer upon which he was elected or the violation of the member's mandate

The membership shall be deemed invalid on the grounds of a decision taken by a majority of two-thirds of the Assembly members

97. The People's Assembly alone may accept the resignation of its members

98. Members of the People's Assembly shall not be censured for any opinions or thoughts expressed by them in the performance of their tasks in the Assembly or its committees

99. No member of the People's Assembly shall be subject to a criminal prosecution without the permission of the Assembly except in cases of flagrant delicto

If the Assembly is not in session, the permission of the President of the Assembly must be taken

The Assembly must be notified of the measures taken in its first subsequent session

100. The seat of the People's Assembly shall be Cairo

However, in exceptional circumstances, it may meet another city, at the request of the President of the Republic or the majority of the Assembly members

Any meeting of the Assembly in other than its designated seat is illicit and the resolutions passed in it shall be considered invalid

101. The President of the Republic shall convoke the People's Assembly for its ordinary annual session before the second Thursday of November

If it is not convoked, the Assembly shall meet, by force of the Constitution, on the said day

The session of the ordinary meeting shall continue for at least seven months

102. The President of the Republic may call the People's Assembly to an extraordinary meeting, in case of necessity, or upon a request signed by a majority of the Assembly members.

The President of the Republic shall announce the dismissal of the extraordinary meeting

103. The People's assembly shall elect, in the first meeting of its ordinary annual session, a President and a Vice-President for the term of the session

If the seat of anyone of them is vacated, the Assembly shall elect a replacement, whose term will last until the end of his predecessors term

104. The People's Assembly shall lay down its own rules of procedure organising the manner of the fulfilment of its tasks

105. The People's Assembly alone shall be entitled to preserve order inside it

The President of the Assembly shall be entrusted with this task

106. The meetings of the People's Assembly shall be public

However, a meeting in camera may be held at the request of the President of the Republic or of the Government or of its Prime Minister or at least twenty of its members

The Assembly shall then decide whether the debate on the question submitted to it shall take place in a public meeting or in a meeting in camera

107 The meeting of the Assembly shall be considered invalid if the majority of its members are not present

The resolution of the Assembly shall be adopted by an absolute majority of the attending members, in cases other than those for which a specific majority is required

Every Article of the draft laws shall be put to a vote

In case of a tie vote, the question on which the debate had taken place shall be rejected

108 The president of the Republic shall have the right, in case of necessity or in exceptional cases and on the authorisation of the People's Assembly upon the approval of a majority of two-thirds of its members, to issue resolutions having the force of law

The authorisation must be for a limited period of time during which the subjects of the resolutions and the grounds upon which they are based, must be determined

The resolutions must be submitted to the People's Assembly in the first meeting after the end of the authorisation period

If they are not submitted or if they are submitted and not approved by the Assembly, they shall cease to have the force of law

109 The President of the Republic and every member of the People's Assembly shall have the right to propose laws

110. Every draft law shall be referred to a Committee of the Assembly which will study it and submit a report concerning it

Draft laws presented by members of the People's Assembly shall not be referred to this Committee unless they are first referred to a Special Committee which will study them and give an opinion on the suitability of their consideration by the Assembly and after the Assembly decides to consider them

111. Every draft law proposed by a member and rejected by the Assembly cannot be presented again in the course of the same session.

112. The President of the Republic shall have the right to promulgate laws or object to them

113. If the President of the Republic objects to a draft law ratified by the People's Assembly he shall refer it back to the Assembly within thirty days from the Assembly's communication of it

If the draft law is not referred back within this period, it is considered a law shall be promulgated

If it is referred back to the Assembly on the said date and approved once again by a majority of two-thirds of the members, it shall be considered a law and shall be promulgated

114. The People's Assembly shall approve the general plan for economic and social development

The manner of the preparation of the plan and of its submission to the People's Assembly shall be determined by law

115. The draft general budget shall be submitted to the people's Assembly at least two months before the beginning of the fiscal year

It shall be considered in effect after approval

The draft budget shall be voted upon title by title and shall be promulgated by a law

The People's Assembly may not effect any modification in the draft budget except with the approval of the Government

In case the ratification of the new budget does not take place before the beginning of the fiscal year, the old budget shall be acted on pending such ratification

The manner of the preparation of the budget as well as the determination of the fiscal year shall be determined by law

116. The approval of the People's Assembly shall be considered necessary for the transfer of any funds one title of the budget to another title, as well as for any expenditure not included in it or excess of its estimates, and this shall be issued by a law

117. The provisions regulating the budgets and accounts of public organisations and organisms shall be prescribed by law

120. The basic rules for collection of public funds and the procedure for their disbursement shall be regulated

121. The Executive Authority shall not contract a loan or bind itself to a project entailing expenditure of funds from the State Treasury in the course of a subsequent period, except with the approval of the People's Assembly

122. The rules governing the granting of salaries, pensions, indemnities, subsidies and bonuses from the State Treasury shall be determined by law which shall also regulate the cases excepted from these rules, and the authorities charged with their application

123. The rules and procedures for granting concessions relating to investment of the sources of natural wealth and of public utilities shall be determined by law; disposal, free of charge, of real estate properties belonging to the State or the ceding of moveable properties of the State and the rules and problems relating to them shall also be determined by law

124. Every member of the People's Assembly shall be entitled to address questions to the Prime Minister or any of his deputies or the Ministers or their deputies concerning matters within their jurisdiction

The Prime Minister, his deputies, the Ministers and the persons they delegate on their behalf shall answer the questions put to them by members

The member may withdraw his question at any time, this same question may not be transformed into an interpellation in the same session

125. Every member of the People's Assembly shall be entitled to address interpellations to the Prime Minister or his deputies or the Ministers or their deputies concerning matters within their jurisdiction

Debate on an interpellation shall take place at least seven days after its submission, except in the cases of urgency as decided by the Assembly and with the Government's consent

126. The Ministers shall be responsible collectively for the general policy of the State before the People's Assembly, also every Minister shall be responsible for the acts of his Ministry

The People's Assembly may decide to withdraw its confidence from any of the Prime Minister's deputies or from many of the Ministers or their deputies

A motion of no confidence should not be submitted except after an interpellation

Such a motion should be proposed by one-tenth of the Assembly's members

The Assembly should not decide on such a motion until after at least three days from the date of its presentation

Withdrawal of confidence shall be pronounced by the majority of the members of the Assembly

127. The People's Assembly shall determine the responsibility of the Prime Minister, on a proposal by one-tenth of its members

Such a decision should be taken by the majority of the members of the Assembly

It may not be taken except after an interpellation addressed to the Government, and after at least three days from the date of its presentation

In the event that such responsibility is determined, the Assembly shall submit a report to the President of the Republic including the elements of the subject, the conclusions reached on the matter and the reasons behind it

The President of the Republic may return such a report to the Assembly within ten days

If the Assembly ratifies it once again, the President of the Republic may put the subject of discord to a referendum. Such a referendum shall take place within thirty days from the date of the last ratification of the Assembly, in which case the Assembly sessions shall be terminated

If the result of the referendum is in support of the Government, the Assembly shall be considered dissolved, otherwise the President of the Republic shall accept the resignation of the council of Ministers

128. If the Assembly withdraw its confidence from any of the Prime Minister's deputies or of the Ministers or of their deputies, they shall resign their office

The Prime Minister shall submit his resignation to the President of the Republic if he is found responsible before the People's Assembly

129. Any twenty members, at least, of the People's Assembly may ask for the discussion of a public question to ascertain the Government's policy regarding such a question

130. The members of the People's Assembly shall be entitled to express their opinions concerning public question before the Prime Minister or any of his deputies or of the Ministers

131. The People's Assembly shall form an Ad Hoc Committee or entrust any of its Committees with the inspection of the activities of any of the administrative departments or the general establishments or any administrative or executive organ or any of the public projects, for the purpose of finding facts and informing the Assembly as to the actual financial or administrative or economic positions or for conducting investigations into a subject related to one of the said activities

In the course of its work, such a Committee shall be entitled to collect whatever evidence it deems necessary and to subpoena all those it needs

All executive and administrative bodies shall answer the demands of the Committee and put under its disposal all the documents and evidence it asks for this purpose

132. At the inaugural meeting of the ordinary session of the People's Assembly, the President of the Republic shall give a statement of the general policy of the State

He shall also give other statements before the Assembly

The Assembly is entitled to discuss the statement of the President of the Republic

133. After the formation of the Cabinet and at the inaugural meeting of the ordinary session of the People's Assembly, the Prime Minister shall submit the programme of the Government

The People's Assembly is entitled to discuss such programme

134. The Prime Minister, his deputies, the Ministers and their deputies may become members of the People's Assembly

191. All the provisions of the laws and regulations prior to the proclamation of this Constitution shall remain valid and in force

However, they may be repealed or amended in this Constitution

192. The Supreme Court shall exercise its competencies prescribed in the law concerning its establishment until the formation of the Supreme Constitutional Court is completed

193. This Constitution shall be in force as from the date of announcing the approval of the people, in this respect, in the plebiscite

PART SEVEN NEW RULINGS

CHAPTER I THE SHOURA ASSEMBLY*

194. The Shoura Assembly is concerned with the study and proposal of what it deems necessary to preserve the principles of the July 23, 1952 Revolution and the May 15, 1971 Revolution, to consolidate national unity and social peace, to protect the alliance of the working forces of the people and the socialist gains as well as the basic components of society, its supreme values, its rights and liberties and its public duties, and to entrench the democratic socialist system and widen its scope

195. The Shoura Assembly shall be consulted in the following

- 1 Proposals for the amendment for one or more articles of the Constitution

- 2 Draft laws complementary to the Constitution

- 3 Draft of the general plan for social and economic development

- 4 Peace treaties, alliances and all treaties affecting the territorial integrity of the State or those concerning sovereignty rights

- 5 Draft laws referred to the Assembly by the President of the Republic

- 6 Whatever matters referred to the Assembly by the President of the Republic relative to the general policy of the State or its policy regarding Arab or foreign affairs

The Assembly shall submit to the President of the Republic and the People's Assembly its opinion such matters

196. The Shoura Assembly shall be composed of a number of members defined by the law, not less than 132 members

Two-thirds of the members shall be elected by direct secret public balloting, half of whom at least must be workers and farmers

The President of the Republic shall appoint the other third

197. The law shall determine the electoral constituencies of the Shoura Assembly, the number of members in every constituency, and the necessary conditions stipulated in the elected or appointed members of the Shoura Assembly

198. The term of membership of the Shoura Assembly is six years, whereas renewed election and appointment of 50% of the total number of members, whether elected or appointed, is every three years as defined by law

It is always possible to re-elect or re-appoint those membership has expired

199. The Shoura Assembly shall elect a President and two Vice-Presidents at its first ordinary annual session for a period of three years

If one of these offices becomes vacant, the Assembly shall elect a successor for the rest of the term.

200. No member can hold office in both People's Assembly and the Shoura Assembly at one and the same time

201. The Prime Minister and his deputies, the Ministers and Government officials shall not be held responsible to the Shoura Assembly

202. The President of the Republic has the right to make a statement upon the general policy of the State or upon any other matter before a joint meeting of the People's Assembly and the Shoura Assembly, headed by the Speaker of the People's Assembly

The President of the Republic has the right to make whatever statements he wishes before the Shoura Assembly

203. The Prime Minister and the Ministers and other Government officials may make statements before the Shoura Assembly or before one of its committees upon a subject that comes within his competence

The Prime Minister and his deputies and other Government officials shall be heard by the Shoura Assembly and its committees upon their request, and they may seek the assistance of any Government official, as they see fit

However, the vote of the Minister or Government official is not valid upon any count of votes unless he is a member

204. The President of the Republic may not dissolve the Shoura Assembly except when necessary, while such a decision should comprise a call to hold new elections for the Shoura Assembly within a period of sixty days from the date of its dissolution

The Assembly shall hold its first meeting ten days from the date of its election

205. The following Articles of the Constitution shall apply to the Shoura Assembly

(89, 90, 91, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 104, 105, 106, 107, 129, 130, 134), insofar as they are not incompatible with the stipulations cited in this Part

The Shoura Assembly and its President shall exercise the competencies specified in the aforementioned Articles

THE PRESS

206 The Press is a popular, independent authority exercising its revocation in accordance with the stipulations of the Constitution and the law

207. The Press shall exercise its true vocation freely and independently in the service of society through all means of expression

It shall thus interpret the trend of public opinion, while contributing to its formation and orientation within the framework of the basic components of society, the safeguard of the liberties, rights and public duties and respect of the sanctity of the private lives of citizens, as stipulated in the Constitution and defined by law

208. The freedom of the press is guaranteed and press censorship is forbidden

Also forbidden is to threaten, suppress, or foreclose a newspaper through administrative measures, as stipulated in the Constitution and defined by law

209. The freedom of body corporate, whether public or private, or political parties to publish or own newspapers is safeguarded in accordance with the law

The financing and ownership of newspapers come under the supervision of the people, as stipulated in the Constitution and defined by law

210. Journalists have the right to obtain news and information according to the regulations set by law

Their activities are not subject to any authority other than the law

211. A Supreme Press Council shall deal with matters concerning the press

The law shall define its composition, competencies and its relationship with the State authorities

The Supreme Press Council shall exercise its competencies with a view to consolidate the freedom of the press and its independence, to uphold the basic foundations of society, and to guarantee the soundness of national unity and social peace as stipulated in the constitution and defined by law

Note .

Amended 1962 - presidential elections
1992 - Maastricht Treaty
1993 - immigration law, not included
26 July 1995 - referendum, not included

(2) The Community shall be based on the equality and solidarity of the peoples composing it

TITLE I

SOVEREIGNTY

2 State Form and Symbols

(1) France is an indivisible, secular, democratic, and social Republic. It ensures the equality of all citizens before the law, without distinction as to origin, race, or religion. It respects all beliefs.

(2) The language of the Republic is French.

(3) The national emblem is the blue, white, and red tricolor flag.

(4) The national anthem is the "Marseillaise."

(5) The Motto of the Republic is "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

(6) Its principle is Government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

3 Electoral Rights

(1) National sovereignty belongs to the people, who exercise it through their representatives and by means of referendums.

(2) No section of the people, nor any individual, may abrogate to themselves or to him or herself the exercise thereof.

(3) Suffrage may be direct or indirect under the terms stipulated by the Constitution. It shall always be universal, equal, and secret.

(4) All French citizens of both sexes who have attained their majority and enjoy civil and political rights may vote under the conditions determined by law.

4. Political Parties

Political parties and groups shall be instrumental in the exercise of the suffrage. They shall be freely formed and shall freely carry on their activities. They must respect the principles of national sovereignty and democracy.

TITLE II

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC

5 Presidential Office

(1) The President of the Republic shall see that the Constitution is observed. He shall ensure, by his arbitration, both the proper functioning of the governmental authorities and the continuity of the State.

(2) He shall be the guarantor of national independence, the integrity of the territory and observance of Community agreements, and of treaties.

6 Term of Presidency

The President of the Republic shall be elected for seven years by direct universal suffrage. The procedures implementing this Article shall be laid down in an organic Act

7. Election of President

(1) The President of the Republic shall be elected by an absolute majority of the votes cast. If this is not obtained on the first ballot, there shall be a second ballot on the next Sunday but one. Only the two candidates who have won the greatest number of votes in the first ballot may stand in it, after taking into account, if applicable, any withdrawals of candidates who have received a higher vote.

(2) Voting shall begin at the formal summons of the Government.

(3) The election of the new President shall take place not less than twenty days and not more than thirty-five days before the expiry of the powers of the President in office.

(4) In the event of the Presidency of the Republic falling vacant for any cause whatsoever, or of an impediment being formally recorded by the Constitutional Council upon referral to it by the Government and ruling by an absolute majority of its members, the functions of the President of the Republic, with the exception of those laid down in Articles 11 and 12 below, shall be temporarily exercised by the President of the Senate, or, if the latter is in his turn impeded from exercising these functions, by the Government. In the event of a vacancy, or when the impediment is declared permanent by the Constitutional Council, polling for the election of a new President shall take place, except in cases of force majeure formally recognized by the Constitutional Council, not less than twenty days and not more than thirty-five days after the beginning of the vacancy or the declaration of the permanence of the impediment. If one of the persons who publicly announced their decision to stand for election less than thirty days before the final date for lodging the presentations of candidature dies or is otherwise prevented within seven days prior to that date, the Constitutional Council may decide to postpone the election.

(5) If one of the candidates dies or is otherwise prevented before the first ballot, the Constitutional Council shall pronounce the postponement of the election.

(6) Should one of the candidates heading the poll in the first ballot die or be otherwise prevented prior to any withdrawals, the Constitutional Council shall declare that the election procedure must be repeated in full, the same shall apply in the event of one of the candidates standing in the second ballot dying or being otherwise prevented.

(7) All cases shall be referred to the Constitutional Council in the manner set out in the second paragraph of Article 61 below or determined for the presentation of candidates in the organic Act provided for in Article 6 above.

(8) The Constitutional Council may extend the periods stipulated in the third and fifth paragraphs provided that polling takes place not later than thirty-five days after the Constitutional Council's decision. If implementation of the provisions of this paragraph results in the postponement of the election to a date after the expiry of the powers of the President in office, the latter shall remain in office until the proclamation of his successor

(9) Neither Articles 9 and 50 nor Article 89 of the Constitution may be applied while the Presidency of the Republic is vacant, nor during the period between the declaration of the permanence of the impediment preventing the President of the Republic from discharging his duties and the election of his successor

— the electoral systems of the parliamentary Assemblies and local Assemblies,

— the creation of categories of public establishments,

— the fundamental guarantees granted to civil and military personnel employed by the State,

— company nationalizations and transfers of company ownership from the public to the private sector

(4) Legislation shall determine the fundamental principles of — the general organization of national defence,

— free local Government and the powers and resources of local authorities,

— education,

— the rules governing property rights, chattels real, civil and commercial obligations,

— labour and trade-union law and social security

(5) Finance acts shall determine the financial resources and obligations of the State, subject to the conditions and reservations laid down in an organic Act

(6) Program Acts shall specify the objectives of State economic and social policy

(7) The provisions of this Article may be developed in detail and amplified by an organic Act

35. Declaration of War

A declaration of war must be authorized by Parliament

36. Declaration of Martial War

(1) Martial law shall be declared in a meeting of the Council of Ministers

(2) Parliament alone may authorize its extension beyond twelve days

37. Regulations

(1) Matters other than those that fall within the sphere of legislation shall be determined by regulation

(2) Legislation concerning these matters may be amended by orders issued after consultation with the Conseil d'Etat. Any such legislative texts introduced after this Constitution has entered into force shall be amended by order only if the Constitutional Council has pronounced that the matters they deal with fall within the field subject to regulation as defined in the preceding paragraph.

38. Ordinances

(1) The Government may, in order to carry out its program, ask Parliament to authorize it, for a limited period, to take by Ordinance measures normally within the legislative sphere.

(2) Ordinances shall be enacted in meetings of the Council of Ministers after consultation with the Conseil d'Etat. They shall come into force upon their publication, but shall become null and void if the Bill for their ratification is not submitted to Parliament before the date set by the enabling act.

(3) Upon expiry of the period referred to in the first paragraph of this Article, the Ordinances may be amended only by act of Parliament in respect of those matters which are within the legislative domain.

39. Right to Initiative

(1) The Prime Minister and the members of Parliament have concurrent rights to initiate legislation.

(2) Government bills shall be discussed in the Council of Ministers after consultation with the Conseil d'Etat and shall be tabled in one of the two Assemblies. Finance bills shall be submitted first to the National Assembly.

40. Private Members' Bills

Private Members' Bills and amendments shall be inadmissible if their adoption would have the effect of reducing public revenue or of creating or increasing an item of public expenditure.

41. Declaration of Inadmissibility

(1) If it is found in the course of the legislative procedure that a Private Member's Bill or amendment is not within the domain of law or is contrary to a delegation granted by virtue of Article 38, the Government may declare its inadmissibility.

(2) In the event of disagreement between the Government and the President of the Assembly concerned, the Constitutional Council, at the request of either party, shall rule within eight days.

42. Discussion of Bills

(1) In the first Assembly to which it is referred, a Government Bill shall be discussed on the basis of the text put forward by the Government.

(2) An Assembly which has before it a Bill passed by the other Assembly shall deliberate on the text transmitted to it.

43. Referral to Committees

(1) Government and Private Members' Bills shall, at the request of the Government or of the Assembly considering them, be referred for examination to Committees specially appointed for this purpose

(2) Government and Private Members' Bills for which such a request has not been made shall be referred to one of the Standing Committees, the number of which shall be limited to six in each Assembly

44. Altering Bills

(1) Members of Parliament and the Government shall have the right of amendment

(2) After the opening of the debate, the Government may object to any amendment being considered which has not previously been submitted to Committee

(3) If the Government so requests, the Assembly concerned shall decide, in a single vote, on all or part of the text under discussion, retaining only the amendments proposed or accepted by the Government

45. Legislative Conflicts

(1) If, owing to disagreement between the two Assemblies, it has proved impossible to adopt a Government or Private Member's bill after two readings by each Assembly, or, if the Government has declared the matter urgent, after a single reading by each of them, the Prime Minister shall have the right to call for a meeting of a joint committee composed of an equal number of members of each Assembly, to propose a text on the matters still under discussion

(2) The text drafted by the Joint Committee may be submitted by the Government to the two Assemblies for approval. No amendment shall be admissible except by agreement with the Government

(3) If the Joint Committee fails to agree on a common text, or if this text is not adopted under the conditions set forth in the preceding paragraph, the Government may, after a further reading by the National Assembly and Senate, ask the National Assembly to make a final decision. In this event, the National Assembly may return either to the text drafted by the joint committee, or to the last text passed by itself, modified, if applicable, by one or more of the amendments adopted by the Senate

46. Legislative Procedures

(1) Acts defined under the Constitution as organic shall be passed and amended as follows

(2) A Government or Private Member's Bill shall be submitted for discussion and to a vote in the first Assembly in which it has been tabled not less than fifteen days after that tabling

(3) The procedure of Article 45 shall be applicable. Nevertheless, in the absence of agreement between the two Assemblies, a bill may be adopted by the National Assembly on final reading only by an absolute majority of its members

(4) Organic Acts relating to the Senate must be passed in the same wording by the two Assemblies

(5) Organic Acts may be promulgated only after the Constitutional Council has declared them constitutional

47. Finance Bill Procedures

(1) Parliament shall pass Finance Bills under the conditions stipulated by an organic Act

(2) Should the National Assembly fail to reach a decision at the first reading within forty days of a Bill being tabled the Government shall refer it to the Senate which must come to a decision within fifteen days. The procedure set forth in Article 45 shall then apply.

(3) Should Parliament fail to reach a decision within seventy days, the provisions of the Bill may be brought into force by Ordinance

(4) Should the Finance Bill establishing the revenue and expenditure of a fiscal year not be tabled in time for its promulgation before the beginning of that fiscal year, the Government shall, on an emergency basis, ask Parliament for authority to collect taxes and shall make available by order the funds needed to provide for services already approved.

(5) The time limits stipulated in this Article shall be suspended when Parliament is not sitting

(6) The Cour des Comptes shall assist Parliament and the Government in supervising the implementation of the Finance Acts

48. Order of Deliberation

(1) The discussion of bills tabled by the Government and of private Members' Bills agreed to by it shall have priority on the agendas of the Assemblies in the order decided by the Government.

(2) One meeting per week shall be reserved in priority for members' questions and the Government's replies

49. Policy Discussions, Motion of Censure

(1) The Prime Minister, after deliberation by the Council of Ministers may commit the Government's responsibility before the National Assembly with regard to its program or, should the occasion arise, to a statement of general policy.

(2) The National Assembly may challenge the responsibility of the Government by passing a motion of censure. Such a motion shall be admissible only if signed by at least one-tenth of the members of the National Assembly. The vote may not take place until forty-eight hours after the motion has been tabled. The only votes counted shall be those in favour of the motion of censure which may be adopted only by a majority of the membership of the Assembly. Should the motion of censure be rejected, its signatories may not introduce another such motion in the course of the same session, except in the case provided for in the following paragraph.

(3) The Prime Minister may, after deliberation by the Council of Ministers, commit the Government's responsibility to the National Assembly on the passing of a Bill. In this case, the text shall be regarded as carried unless a motion of censure, tabled within the succeeding twenty-four hours, is passed under the conditions laid down in the previous paragraph.

(4) The Prime Minister may ask the Senate to approve a general policy statement.

50. Resignation of Government

If the National Assembly adopts a motion of censure, or rejects the Government's program or a general policy statement by the latter, the Prime Minister must tender the Government's resignation to the President of the Republic.

51. Postponed Closure of Session

The closure of ordinary or extraordinary sessions shall be postponed ipso jure, should the occasion arise, in order to apply the provisions of Article 49.

TREATIES AND INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS

52. President's Powers

(1) The President of the Republic shall negotiate and ratify treaties.

(2) He shall be informed of all negotiations leading to the conclusion of an international agreement not subject to ratification.

53. Important Treaties

(1) Peace treaties, commercial treaties and treaties or agreements relating to international organization, or implying a financial commitment on the part of the State, or modifying provisions of a legislative nature, or relating to the status of persons, or entailing a cession, exchange or adjunction of territory, may be ratified or approved only by Act of Parliament.

(2) They shall take effect only after having been ratified or approved.

(3) No cession, exchange, or adjunction of territory shall be valid without the consent of the populations concerned.

54. Constitutional Revisions for Ratification

If, upon the demand of the President of the Republic, the Prime Minister or the President of one or other Assembly or sixty deputies or sixty senators, the Constitutional Council has ruled that an international agreement contains a clause contrary to the Constitution, the ratification or approval of this agreement shall not be authorized until the Constitution has been revised.

55. Force of Law, Principle of Reciprocity

Duly ratified or approved treaties or agreements shall, upon their publication, override laws, subject, for each agreement or treaty, to its application by the other party.

TITLE VII

THE CONSTITUTIONAL COUNCIL

56. Membership

(1) The Constitutional Council shall consist of nine members, whose term of office shall last nine years and shall not be renewable. (3) The Conseil Supérieur shall make proposals for appointments of Judges of the Cour de Cassation and of Presiding Judges of the Courts of Appeal. It shall give its opinion, under the conditions stipulated by the organic Act, on the proposals of the Minister of Justice relative to appointments of other Judges. It shall be consulted on questions of pardon under conditions determined by an organic Act.

(4) The Conseil Supérieur shall act as the disciplinary council for Judges. In such cases, it shall be presided over by the Presiding Judge of the Cour de Cassation.

66. Personal Freedom

(1) No one may be arbitrarily detained.

(2) The Judiciary, guardian of individual liberty, shall enforce this principle under the conditions stipulated by legislation

THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

67. Membership

(1) A High Court of Justice shall be instituted.

(2) It shall be composed of members elected in equal number by the National Assembly and the Senate from within their ranks after each general or partial election to these Assemblies. It shall elect its President from among its members.

(3) An organic law shall determine the composition of the High Court, its operating rules and the procedure to be followed before it.

68. Liability of President and Government

(1) The President of the Republic shall not be held accountable for actions performed in the exercise of his office except in the case of high treason. He may be indicted only by the two Assemblies ruling by identical vote in open balloting and by an absolute majority of their members. He shall be tried by the High Court of Justice.

(2) The members of the Government shall be criminally liable for actions performed in the exercise of their office and deemed to be felonies or misdemeanors at the time they were committed. The procedure defined above shall be applied to them and to their accomplices, in the case of a conspiracy against the security of the State. In the cases provided for by this paragraph, the High Court shall be bound by the definition of felonies and misdemeanors, as well as by the determination of penalties as laid down by the criminal law in force when the acts are committed.

TITLE X

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

69. Opinion on Bills

(1) The Economic and Social Council shall, upon referral to it by the Government, give its opinion on Government Bills, Draft Ordinances and orders, and Private Members' Bills submitted to it.

(2) A member of the Economic and Social Council may be designated by it to present before the parliamentary Assemblies the Council's opinion on the Government or Private Members' Bills submitted to it.

70. Consultation

The Economic and Social Council may likewise be consulted by the Government on any problem of an economic or social nature concerning the Republic or the Community. Any plan or program Bill of an economic or social nature shall be submitted to it for its advice.

86. Change of Status

(1) A change of status of a member State of the Community may be requested, either by the Republic, or by resolution of the Legislative Assembly of the State concerned, confirmed by a local referendum organized and supervised by the Community institutions. The terms and conditions of such a change shall be determined by agreement approved by the Parliament of the Republic and the Legislative Assembly concerned.

(2) In the same manner, a member State of the Community may become independent. It shall thereby cease to belong to the Community.

(3) A member State of the Community may also, by agreement, become independent without thereby ceasing to belong to the Community.

(4) An independent State outside the Community may, by agreement, join the Community without ceasing to be independent.

(5) The position of these States within the Community shall be determined by agreements concluded to that end, in particular those referred to in the preceding paragraphs and, where applicable, those provided for in the second paragraph of Article 85.

87. Parliamentary Approval

The special agreements concluded in implementation of this Title shall be approved by the Parliament of the Republic and the Legislative Assembly concerned.

TITLE XIII

AGREEMENTS OF ASSOCIATION

88. Association of Other States

The Republic or the Community may make agreements with States that wish to associate themselves with the Community in order to develop their civilizations.

TITLE XIV

AMENDMENT

89. Special Procedures

(1) The initiative for amending the Constitution shall belong both to the President of the Republic on the proposal of the Prime Minister and to the members of Parliament.

(2) A Government or Private Member's Bill for amendment must be passed by the two Assemblies in identical terms. The amendment shall become definitive after approval by referendum.

(3) Nevertheless, the proposed amendment shall not be submitted to a referendum when the President of the Republic decides to submit it to Parliament convened in Congress; in this case, the proposed amendment shall be approved only if it is accepted by a three-fifths majority of the votes cast. The Bureau of the Congress shall be that of the National Assembly.

(4) No amendment procedure may be undertaken or followed when the integrity of the territory is in jeopardy

(5) The republican form of Government shall not be subject to amendment

TITLE XV

TRANSITIONAL PROVISIONS

90. New Parliament

(1) The ordinary session of Parliament is suspended. The mandate of the members of the present National Assembly shall expire on the day that the Assembly elected under this Constitution convenes

(2) Until that day, the Government alone shall have the authority to convene Parliament

(3) The mandate of the members of the Assembly of the French Union shall expire at the same time as the mandate of the members of the present National Assembly

91. Other Institutions and Offices

(1) The institutions of the Republic provided for by this Constitution shall be established within four months after its promulgation

(2) This time limit shall be extended to six months for the Community institutions

(3) The powers of the President of the Republic now in office shall expire only when the results of the election provided for in Articles 6 and 7 of this Constitution are proclaimed

(4) The member States of the Community shall participate in this first election under the conditions deriving from their status on the date of promulgation of the Constitution

(5) The established authorities shall continue to perform their functions in these States in accordance with the legislation and regulations applicable at the time of entry into force of the Constitution, until the authorities provided for by their new regimes are set up

(6) Until it is definitively constituted, the Senate shall consist of the present members of the Conseil de la République. The organic Acts that will determine the definitive composition of the Senate must be passed before July 31, 1959

(7) The powers conferred on the Constitutional Council by Articles 58 and 59 of the Constitution shall be exercised, until this Council has been set up, by a committee composed of the Vice-President of the Conseil d'Etat, as Chairman, the Presiding Judge of the Cour de Cassation, and the Presiding Judge of the Cour des Comptes

(8) The peoples of the member States of the Community shall continue to be represented in Parliament until the measures required to implement Title XII have been put into effect

92. Establishment by Special Ordinances

(1) The legislative measures necessary for the setting up of the institutions and, until they are set up, for the functioning of the governmental authorities, shall be taken by the Council of Ministers, after consultation with the Conseil d'Etat, in the form of ordinances having legislative force

(2) During the period laid down in Article 91 (1), the Government shall be authorized to determine, by ordinances having legislative force and passed in the same way, the electoral system of the Assemblies provided for by the Constitution

(3) During the same period and under the same conditions, the Government may also, on all matters, take the measures it deems necessary for the life of the nation, the protection of citizens or the safeguarding of liberties

CONSTITUTION OF FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY

PREAMBLE

Conscious of their responsibility before God and men, animated by the purpose to serve world peace as an equal part in a unified Europe, the German People have adopted, by virtue of their constituent power, this Constitution

The Germans in the States of Baden-Wurtemberg, Bavaria, Berlin, Brandenburg, Bremen, Hamburg, Hesse, Lower Saxony, Mecklenburg-Western Pomerania, North Rhine-Westphalia, Rhineland-Palatinate, Saarland, Saxony, Saxony-Anhalt, Schleswig-Holstein and Thuringia have achieved the unity and freedom of Germany in free self-determination. This Constitution is thus valid for the entire German People.

CHAPTER I BASIC RIGHTS

1. Human Dignity

(1) Human dignity is inviolable. To respect and protect it is the duty of all State authority.

(2) The German People therefore acknowledge inviolable and inalienable human rights as the basis of every human community, of peace, and of justice in the world.

(3) The following basic rights are binding on legislature, executive, and judiciary as directly enforceable law.

Note — Amendments up to and including the 43rd Amendment on 3 Nov 1995 have been included.

2. Liberty

(1) Everyone has the right to free development of his personality insofar as he does not violate the rights of others or offend against the constitutional order or against morality

(2) Everyone has the right to life and to physical integrity. The freedom of the person is inviolable. Intrusion on these rights may only be made pursuant to a statute

3. Equality

(1) All humans are equal before the law

(2) Men and women are equal. The state supports the effective realization of equality of women and men and works towards abolishing present disadvantages

(3) No one may be disadvantaged or favored because of his sex, his parentage, his race, his language, his homeland and origin, his faith, or his religious or political opinions. No one may be disadvantaged because of his handicap

4. Freedom of Faith, of Conscience, and of Creed

(1) Freedom of creed, of conscience, and freedom to profess a religious or non-religious faith are inviolable

(2) The undisturbed practice of religion is guaranteed

(3) No one may be compelled against his conscience to render war service involving the use of arms. Details are regulated by a federal statute

5. Freedom of Expression

(1) Everyone has the right to freely express and disseminate his opinion in speech, writing, and pictures and to freely inform himself from generally accessible sources. Freedom of the press and freedom of reporting by means of broadcasts and films are guaranteed. There will be no censorship

(2) These rights are subject to limitations in the provisions of general statutes, in statutory provisions for the protection of the youth, and in the right to personal honor

(3) Art and science, research and teaching are free. The freedom of teaching does not release from allegiance to the Constitution

6. Marriage and Family, Illegitimate Children

(1) Marriage and family are under the special protection of the State

(2) Care and upbringing of children are the natural right of the parents and primarily their duty. The State supervises the exercise of the same

(3) Against the will of the persons entitled to their upbringing, children may only be separated from the family, pursuant to a statute, where those so entitled failed or where, for other reasons, the children are endangered to become seriously neglected

(4) Every mother is entitled to protection by and care of the community.

(5) Illegitimate children, by legislation have to be provided with the same conditions for their physical and mental development and for their place in society as are legitimate children

7. Education

(1) The entire schooling system stands under the supervision of the State

(2) The persons entitled to the upbringing of a child have the right to decide whether the child shall attend religion classes.

(3) Religion classes form part of the ordinary curriculum in State schools, except for secular schools. Without prejudice to the State's right of supervision, religious instruction is given in accordance with the tenets of the religious communities. No teacher may be obliged against his will to give religious instruction

(4) The right to establish private schools is guaranteed. Private schools, as a substitute for State schools, require the approval of the State and are subject to the statutes of the States. Such approval has to be given where private schools are not inferior to the State schools in their educational aims, their facilities, and the professional training of their teaching staff, and where segregation of pupils according to the means of their parents is not encouraged. Approval has to be withheld where the economic and legal position of the teaching staff is not sufficiently assured.

(5) A private elementary school has to be permitted only where the education authority finds that it serves a special pedagogic interest, or where, on the application of persons entitled to upbringing of children it is to be established as an interdenominational school or as a school based on a particular religious or non-religious faith and only if a State elementary school of this type does not exist in the commune.

(6) Preliminary schools remain abolished

8. Freedom of Assembly

(1) All Germans have the right, without prior notification or permission, to assemble peaceably and unarmed

(2) With regard to open-air assemblies, this right may be restricted by or pursuant to a statute.

9. Freedom of Association

(1) All Germans have the right to form clubs and societies

(2) Associations, the purposes or activities of which conflict with criminal statutes or which are directed against the constitutional order or the concept of international understanding, are prohibited

(3) The right to form associations to safeguard and improve working and economic conditions is guaranteed to everyone and for all professions. Agreements which restrict or seek to impair this right are null and void, measures directed to this end are illegal. Measures taken pursuant to Articles 12a, 35 (2) and (3), 87a (4), or 91 may not be directed against industrial conflicts engaged in by associations to safeguard and improve working and economic conditions in the sense of the first sentence of this paragraph.

10. Privacy of Letters, Posts and Telecommunications

(1) The privacy of letters as well as the secrecy of post and telecommunication is inviolable.

(2) Restrictions may only be ordered pursuant to a statute. Where a restriction serves the protection of the free democratic basic order or the existence or security of the Federation or a State, the statute may stipulate that the person affected shall not be informed and that recourse to the courts shall be replaced by a review of the case by bodies and auxiliary bodies appointed by Parliament.

11. Freedom of Movement

(1) All Germans enjoy freedom of movement throughout the Federal territory.

(2) This right may be restricted only by or pursuant to a statute and only in cases in which an adequate basis for personal existence is lacking and special burdens would result therefrom for the community, or in which such restriction is necessary to avert an imminent danger to the existence or the free democratic basic order of the Federation or a State, to combat the danger of epidemics, to deal with natural disasters or particularly grave accidents, to protect young people from neglect, or to prevent crime.

12. Right to Choose an Occupation, Prohibition of Forced Labour

(1) All Germans have the right to freely choose their occupation, their place of work, and their place of study or training. The practice of an occupation can be regulated by or pursuant to a statute.

(2) No person may be forced to perform work of a particular kind except within the framework of a traditional compulsory community service that applies generally and equally to all.

(3) Forced labour may be imposed only on persons deprived of their liberty by court sentence.

12a. Liability to Military and Other Service

(1) Men who have attained the age of eighteen years can be required to serve in the Armed Forces, in the Federal Border Guard, or in a civil defence organization.

(2) A person who refuses, on grounds of conscience, to render war service involving the use of arms can be required to render a substitute service. The duration of such substitute service may not exceed the duration of military service. Details are regulated by a statute which may not interfere with freedom to take a decision based on conscience and which must also provide for the possibility of a substitute service not connected with units of the Armed Forces or of the Federal Border Guard

(3) Persons liable to military service who are not required to render service pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) can, during a State of defence, be assigned by or pursuant to a statute to an employment involving civilian services for defence purposes, including the protection of the civilian population, assignments to employments subject to public law are only admissible for the purpose of discharging police functions or such other functions of public administration as can only be discharged by persons employed under public law. Employments according to the first sentence of this paragraph can also be established with the Armed Forces, in the area of their supply services, or with public administrative authorities, assignments to employment connected with supply services for the civilian population are only admissible to provide for their vital provisions or to guarantee their safety

(4) Where, during a State of defence, civilian service requirements in the civilian health system or in the stationary military hospital organization cannot be met on a voluntary basis, women between eighteen and fifty-five years of age can be assigned to such services by or pursuant to a statute. They may in no case render service involving the use of arms

(5) Prior to the existence of a State of defence, assignments under paragraph (3) may only be made where the requirements of Article 80a (1) are satisfied. To prepare services mentioned in paragraph (3) for which special knowledge or skills are required, persons can be obliged by or pursuant to a statute to attend training courses. Insofar, the first sentence of this paragraph does not apply

(6) Where, during a State of defence, staffing requirements for the purposes referred to in paragraph (3) 1 cannot be met on a voluntary basis, the freedom of Germans to quit the pursuit of his occupation or quit his place of work may be restricted by or pursuant to a statute in order to meet these requirements. Paragraph (5) 1 applies mutatis mutandis prior to the existence of a State of defence

13 Inviolability of the Home

(1) The home is inviolable

(2) Searches may be ordered only by a Judge or, in the event of danger resulting from any delay, by other organs legally specified, and they may be carried out only in the form prescribed by law

(3) Intrusions and restrictions may otherwise only be made to avert a general danger or a mortal danger to individuals, or, pursuant to a statute, to prevent present danger to public safety and order, particularly to relieve a housing shortage, to combat the danger of epidemics, or to protect endangered juveniles

14. Property, Right of Inheritance, Taking of Property

(1) Property and the right of inheritance are guaranteed. Their content and limits are determined by statute.

(2) Property imposes duties. Its use should also serve the public well.

(3) The taking of property is only permissible in the public well. It may be imposed only by or pursuant to a statute regulating the nature and extent of compensation. Such compensation has to be determined by establishing an equitable balance between the public interest and the interests of those affected. Regarding disputes about the amount of compensation, recourse in the courts of ordinary jurisdiction is available.

15. Socialization

State, natural resources and means of production can, for the purpose of socialization, be transferred to public ownership or other forms of collective enterprise by a statute regulating the nature and extent of compensation. Regarding such compensation, Article 14, § 3 and 4 applies mutatis mutandis.

16. Deprivation of Citizenship, Extradition, Right of Asylum

(1) German citizenship may not be taken away. The loss of citizenship may only be imposed pursuant to a statute and against the will of the person affected only where such person does not become stateless as a result thereof.

2. No German may be extradited to a foreign country.

16a. Right to Asylum

(1) Persons persecuted on political grounds enjoy the right of asylum.

(2) The right of paragraph 1 cannot claim - who enters from a European Communities country or from another country where the application of the Convention on the Legal Status of Refugees and the Convention to Protect Human Rights and Civil Liberties is ensured. States outside of the European Communities for which the prerequisites of the first sentence hold true are determined by a statute requiring the consent of the Senate. In the case of the first sentence, measures to end a stay can be effected independent of recourse to the course sought against these measures.

(3) By statute requiring the consent of the Senate, States can be determined in which, on the basis of law, law application or general political conditions it seems to be guaranteed that neither persecution on political grounds nor inhuman or degrading punishment and treatment takes place. A foreigner from such a State is presumed to not being persecuted unless he asserts facts supporting that contrary to this presumption, he is politically persecuted.

4. The effectuation of measures to end a stay will, in the case of paragraph 1, and in other cases where the claim to stay is obviously unfounded or is regarded as obviously unfounded, only be suspended if court order if serious doubts arise concerning the legality of the measure. The scope of scrutiny can be limited and delayed assessments ignored. Details are regulated by a statute.

(5) Paragraphs (1) to (4) are not contrary to public law contracts of European Communities member States among each other and with other States which, honoring the obligations arising from the Convention on the Legal Status of Refugees and the Convention to Protect Human Rights and Civil Liberties the application of which has to be ensured in the contracting States, regulate responsibilities to examine claims of asylum including mutual acknowledgement of asylum decisions.

17. Right of Petition

Everyone has the right, individually or jointly with others, to address written requests or complaints to the competent agencies and to parliaments.

17a. Defence and Substitute Service

(1) Statutes concerning military service and substitute service can, by provisions applying to members of the Armed Forces and of the substitute services during their period of military or substitute service, restrict the basic right to freely express and disseminate opinions in speech, writing and pictures (first half-sentence of Article 5 (1)), the basic right of assembly (Article 8), and the right of petition (Article 17) insofar as this right permits the submission of requests or complaints jointly with others.

(2) Statutes serving defence purposes including the protection of the civilian population can provide for the restriction of the basic rights of freedom of movement (Article 11) and inviolability of the home (Article 13).

18. Forfeiture of Basic Rights

Whoever abuses freedom of expression of opinion, in particular freedom of the press (Article 5 (1)), freedom of teaching (Article 5 (3)), freedom of assembly (Article 8), freedom of association (Article 9), privacy of letters and secrecy of post and telecommunication (Article 10), property (Article 14), or the right to asylum (Article 16a) in order to combat the free democratic basic order forfeit these basic rights. Such forfeiture and the extent thereof is determined by the Federal Constitutional Court.

19. Restriction of Basic Rights

(1) Insofar as a basic right may, under this Constitution, be restricted by or pursuant to a statute such statute must apply generally and not solely to an individual case. Furthermore, such statute must name the basic right, indicating the relevant Article

(2) In no case may the essence of a basic right be infringed.

(3) Basic rights also apply to domestic legal persons to the extent that the nature of such rights permits

(4) Should any person's rights be violated by public authority, recourse to the court is open to him. Insofar as no other jurisdiction has been established, recourse is available to the courts of ordinary jurisdiction. Article 10 (2) 2 is not affected by the provisions of this paragraph

THE FEDERATION AND THE STATES

20. Basic Principles of State Order, Right to Resist

(1) The Federal Republic of Germany is a democratic and social Federal State

(2) All State authority emanates from the people. It is being exercised by the people through elections and voting and by specific organs of the legislature, the executive power, and the judiciary

(3) Legislation is subject to the constitutional order, the executive and the judiciary are bound by law and justice

(4) All Germans have the right to resist any person seeking to abolish this constitutional order, should no other remedy be possible

20a. Protection of Natural Resources

The State, also in its responsibility for future generations, protects the natural foundations of life in the framework of the constitutional order, by legislation and, according to law and justice, by executive and judiciary

21. Political Parties

(1) The political parties participate in the forming of the political will of the people. They may be freely established. Their internal organization must conform to democratic principles. They have to publicly account for the sources and use of their funds and for their assets

(2) Parties which, by reason of their aims or the behavior of their adherents, seek to impair or abolish the free democratic basic order or to endanger the existence of the Federal Republic of Germany are unconstitutional. The Federal Constitutional Court decides on the question of unconstitutionality

(3) Details are regulated by Federal statutes

22. Federal Flag

The Federal flag is black, red, and gold

23. European Union

(1) To realize a unified Europe, Germany participates in the development of the European Union which is bound to democratic, rule of law, social, and Federal principles and provides a protection of fundamental rights essentially equivalent to that of this Constitution. The federation can, for this purpose and with the consent of the Senate, delegate sovereign powers. Article 79 (2) and (3) is applicable for the foundation of the European Union as well as for changes in its contractual bases and comparable regulations by which the content of this Constitution is changed or amended or by which such changes or amendments are authorized

(2) The House of Representatives and the States, by their representation in the Senate, participate in matters of the European Union. The Government has to thoroughly inform House of Representatives and Senate at the earliest possible time

(3) The Government allows for statements of the House of Representatives before it takes part in drafting European Union laws. The Government considers statements of the House of Representatives during deliberations. Detail are regulated by Federal statute.

(4) The Senate has to be included in the deliberations of the House of Representatives insofar as it would have to participate in a domestic measure or insofar as the States would be accountable domestically.

(5) Insofar as, in the area of exclusive legislative competence of the Federation, the interests of the States are affected or insofar as, in all other cases, the Federation has legislative competence, the Government considers the statement of the Senate. If legislative competencies of the States, the installation of their agencies, or their procedures are centrally affected, the opinion of the Senate has to be considered as decisive for the Federation's deliberation, the responsibility of the Federation for the whole State has to be maintained in the process. The consent of the Government is necessary in matters possibly resulting in higher expenses or lower revenues for the Federation.

(6) The Federation shall delegate the exercise of rights of the Federal Republic of Germany as a member of the European Union to a representative of the States nominated by the Senate if exclusive legislative competencies of the States are centrally affected. These rights are exercised with participation of and in coordination with the Government, the responsibility of the Federation for the whole State has to be maintained in the process.

(7) Details of paragraphs (4) to (6) are regulated by a statute requiring the consent of the Senate.

24. Entry into a Collective Security System

(1) The Federation may by legislation transfer sovereign powers to intergovernmental institutions.

(1a) Insofar as the States are responsible for the exercise of State rights and the discharge of State duties, they can, with consent of the Government, delegate sovereign powers to institutions for neighborhood at State borders.

(2) For the maintenance of peace, the Federation may join a system of mutual collective security, in doing so it will consent to such limitations upon its rights of sovereignty as will bring about and secure a peaceful and lasting order in Europe and among the nations of the world.

(3) For the settlement of disputes between States, the Federation will accede to agreements concerning international arbitration of a general, comprehensive, and obligatory nature.

25. Public International Law and Federal Law

The general rules of Public International law constitute an integral part of Federal law. They take precedence over statutes and directly create rights and duties for the inhabitants of the Federal territory.

26. Ban on Preparing a War of Aggression

(1) Acts tending to and undertaken with intent to disturb the peaceful relations between nations, especially to prepare war or aggression, are unconstitutional. They have to be made a criminal offence.

(2) Weapons designed for warfare may not be manufactured, transported, or marketed except with the permission of the Government. Details are regulated by a Federal statute.

27. Merchant Fleet

All German merchant vessels form one merchant fleet.

28. Guarantee of Self-government

(1) The constitutional order in the States must conform to the principles of the republican, democratic, and social State under the rule of law, within the meaning of this Constitution. In each of the States, counties, and communes, the people has to be represented by a body chosen in general, direct, free, equal, and secret elections. During elections in counties and communes, persons who possess the citizenship of a European Community country are eligible to vote and being elected according to the laws of the European Community. In communes, the communal assembly can take the place of an elected body.

(2) The communes must be guaranteed the right to regulate, on their own responsibility, all the affairs of the local community within the limits set by statute. Within the framework of their statutory functions, the associations of communes have such right of self-government as may be provided by statute. The right of self-government also encompasses the foundations of financial accountability.

(3) The Federation ensures that the constitutional order of the States conforms to the basic rights and to the provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2).

29. New Delimitation of States Boundaries

(1) A new delimitation of Federal territory may be made to ensure that the States by their size and capacity are able effectively to fulfill their functions. Due regard has to be given to regional, historical, and cultural ties, economic expediency, and the requirements of regional policy and planning.

(2) Measures for a new delimitation of Federal territory are effected by Federal statutes requiring confirmation by referendum. The States thus affected have to be consulted.

(3) A referendum is held in the States from whose territories or partial territories a new State or a State with redefined boundaries is to be formed (affected States). The referendum is held on the question whether the affected States are to remain within their existing boundaries or whether the new State or State with redefined boundaries should be formed. The referendum is deemed to be in favour of the formation of a new State or of a State with redefined boundaries where approval is given to the change by a majority in the future territory of such State and by a majority in all the territories or partial territories of an affected State whose assignment to a State is to be changed in the same sense. The referendum is deemed not to be in favour where in the territory of one of the affected States a majority reject the change, such rejection is, however, of no consequence where in one part of the territory whose assignment to the affected State is to be changed a majority of two-thirds approve of the change, unless in the entire territory of the affected State a majority of two-thirds reject the change.

(4) Where in a clearly definable area of interconnected population and economic settlement, the parts of which lie in several States and which has a population of at least one million, one-tenth of those of its population entitled to vote in House of Representatives elections petition by popular initiative for the assignment of that area to one State, provision is made within two years in a Federal statute determining whether the delimitation of the affected States is changed pursuant to paragraph (2) or determining that a plebiscite is held in the affected States.

(5) The plebiscite establishes whether approval is given to a change of States delimitation to be proposed in the statute. The statute may put forward different proposals, not exceeding two in number, for the plebiscite. Where approval is given by a majority to a proposed change of States delimitation, provision is made within two years in a Federal statute determining whether the delimitation of the States concerned is changed pursuant to paragraph (2). Where approval is given, in accordance with paragraph (3) 3 and 4, to a proposal put forward for the plebiscite, a Federal statute providing for the formation of the proposed State is enacted within two years of the plebiscite and no longer requires confirmation by referendum.

(6) A majority in a referendum or in a plebiscite consists of a majority of the votes cast, provided that they amount to at least one quarter of the population entitled to vote in House of Representatives elections. Other detailed provisions concerning referendums, popular petitions, and plebiscites is made in a Federal statute, such statute may also provide that popular petitions may not be repeated within a period of five years.

(7) Other changes concerning the territory of the States may be effected by State agreements between the States concerned or by a Federal statute with the approval of the Senate where the territory which is to be the subject of a new delimitation does not have more than 50,000 inhabitants. Detailed provision are made in a Federal statute requiring the approval of the Senate and the majority of the members of the House of Representatives. It shall make provision for the affected communes and districts to be consulted.

(8) The States can change the delimitation of their territory or parts thereof deviating from the provisions in Paragraphs (2) to (7) by State contract. Affected communes and counties have to be consulted. The State contract needs to be confirmed by public referendum in each participating State. If a State contract affects only parts of the territory of a State, the public referendum can be limited to these parts. Sentence 5 Half-Sentence 2 is not applicable. The public referendum requires a majority of votes cast if such majority contains at least one-fourth of the votes of all persons eligible for elections of the House of Representatives, details are regulated by a Federal Statute. The State contract requires the consent of the House of Representatives.

30. Competencies of Federation and States

Except as otherwise provided or permitted by this Constitution, the exercise of governmental powers and the discharge of governmental functions is incumbent on the States.

31. Precedence of Federal Law

Federal law takes precedence over State law.

32. Foreign Relations

(1) Relations with foreign States are a responsibility of the Federation.

(2) Before the conclusion of a treaty affecting the special circumstances of a State, that State has to be consulted in time.

(3) Insofar as the States have power to legislate, they may, with the consent of the Government conclude treaties with foreign States.

33. Equal Political Status of all Germans

(1) Every German has in every State the same political rights and duties.

(2) Every German is equally eligible for any public office according to his aptitude, qualifications, and professional achievements.

(3) Enjoyment of civil and political rights. Eligibility for public office, and rights acquired in the public service are independent of religious denomination. No one may suffer any disadvantage by reason of his adherence or non-adherence to a denomination or to a philosophical persuasion.

(4) The exercise of State authority as a permanent function is, as a rule, entrusted to members of the public service whose status, service and loyalty are governed by public law.

(5) The law of the public service is regulated with due regard to the traditional principles of the professional civil service.

34. Liability in the Event of a Breach of Official Duty

Where any person, in the exercise of a public office entrusted to him, violates his official obligations to a third party, liability rests in principle on the State or the public body which employs him. In the event of wilful intent or gross negligence, the right of recourse against the holder of a public office is reserved. In respect of the claim for compensation or the right of recourse, the jurisdiction of the ordinary courts may not be excluded.

35. Legal, Administrative, Emergency Assistance

(1) All Federal and State authorities render each other legal and administrative assistance.

(2) In order to maintain or to restore public security or order, a State may, in cases of particular importance, call upon forces and facilities of the Federal Border Guard to assist its police where without this assistance the police could not, or only with considerable difficulty, fulfil a task. In order to deal with a natural disaster or an especially grave accident, a State may request the assistance of the police forces of other States or of forces and facilities of other administrative authorities or of the Federal Border Guard or the Armed Forces.

(3) Where the natural disaster or the accident endangers a region larger than a State, the Government may, insofar as this is necessary to effectively deal with such danger, instruct the State Governments to place their police forces at the disposal of other States, and may use units of the Federal Border Guard or the Armed Forces to support the police forces. Measures taken by the Government pursuant to the first sentence of this paragraph have to be revoked at any time at the demand of the Senate, and otherwise immediately upon removal of the danger.

36. Personnel of the Federal Authorities

(1) Civil servants employed in the highest Federal authorities are drawn from all States in appropriate proportion. Persons employed in other Federal authorities should, as a rule, be drawn from the State in which they serve.

(2) Military laws also have to take into account the division of the Federation into States and the regional ties of their populations.

37. Federal Coercion

(1) Where a State fails to comply with its obligations of a Federal character imposed by this Constitution or another Federal statute, the Government may, with the consent of the Senate, take the necessary measures to enforce such compliance by the State by way of Federal coercion.

(2) For the purpose of exercising Federal coercion, the Government or its Commissioner has the right to give binding instructions to all States and their authorities.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

38. Elections

(1) The deputies to the German House of Representatives are elected in general, direct, free, equal, and secret elections. They are representatives of the whole people, not bound by orders and instructions, and subject only to their conscience.

(2) Anyone who has attained the age of eighteen years is entitled to vote, anyone who has attained majority is eligible for election.

(3) Details are regulated by a Federal statute.

39. Assembly and Legislative Term

(1) The House of Representatives is elected for a four-year term. Its legislative term ends with the assembly of a new House of Representatives.

The new election are held forty-five months at the earliest, and forty-seven months at the latest after the beginning of the legislative term Where the House of Representatives is dissolved, the new election is held within sixty days

(2) The House of Representatives assembles, at the latest, on the thirtieth day after the election

(3) The House of Representatives determines the termination and resumption of its meetings The President of the House of Representatives may convene it at an earlier date He does so where one-third of its members or the President or the Chancellor so demand

40. President, Rules of Procedure

(1) The House of Representatives elects its President, Vice-Presidents, and Secretaries It draws up its rules of procedure

Where the person elected has obtained the votes of the majority of the members of the House of Representatives, the President appoints him within seven days of the election. Where the person elected did not obtain such a majority, the President, within seven days, either appoints him or dissolves the House of Representatives.

64. Appointment of Ministers

(1) The Ministers are appointed and dismissed by the President upon the proposal of the Chancellor.

(2) The Chancellor and the Ministers, on assuming office, take before the House of Representatives the oath provided for in Article 56.

65. Powers exercised in the Government

The Chancellor determines and is responsible for the general policy guidelines. Within the limits set by these guidelines, each Minister conducts the affairs of his department independently and on his own responsibility. The Government decides on differences of opinion between Ministers. The Chancellor conducts the affairs of the Government in accordance with rules of procedure adopted by it and approved by the President.

65a Power of Command over the Armed Forces

Power of command in respect of the Armed Forces is vested in the Minister of Defence.

66 Incompatibilities

The Chancellor and the Ministers may not hold any other salaried office, nor engage in an occupation, nor belong to the management or, without the consent of the House of Representatives, to the board of directors of an enterprise carried on for profit.

67 Constructive Vote of No Confidence

(1) The House of Representatives can express its lack of confidence in the Chancellor only by electing a successor with the majority of its members and by requesting the President to dismiss the Chancellor. The President complies with the request and appoints the person elected.

(2) Forty-eight hours must elapse between the motion and the election.

68 Vote of Confidence, Dissolution of the House of Representatives

(1) Where a motion of the Chancellor for a vote of confidence is not carried by the majority of the members of the House of Representatives, the President may, upon the proposal of the Chancellor, dissolve the House of Representatives within twenty-one days. The right of dissolution shall lapse as soon as the House of Representatives elects another Chancellor with the majority of its members.

(2) Forty-eight hours must elapse between the motion and the vote thereon.

69. Members of the Government

26 artificial insemination of humans, research on manipulations of genes, and regulations for transplantation of organs and living matter

(2) The consent of the Senate is necessary for statutes according to Paragraph (1) number 25

74a Concurrent Legislative Power of the Federation

(1) Concurrent legislative power further extend to the remuneration and pensions of members of the public service whose service and loyalty are governed by public law, insofar as the Federation does not have exclusive power to legislate pursuant to Article 73 number 8

(2) Federal statutes enacted pursuant to paragraph (1) require the consent of the Senate

(3) Federal statutes enacted pursuant to Article 73 number 8 likewise require the consent of the Senate, insofar as for the structure and assessment of remuneration and pensions, including the rating of posts, provision is made for criteria or minimum or maximum rates other than those provided for in Federal statutes enacted pursuant to paragraph (1)

(4) Paragraphs (1) and (2) apply mutatis mutandis to the remuneration and pensions of Judges in the States Paragraph (3) applies mutatis mutandis to statutes enacted pursuant to Article 98 (1)

75. Power to pass Framework Legislation

(1) Subject to the conditions laid down in Article 72, the Federation has the right to enact framework legislation for the legislation of the States concerning

1 the legal status of persons in the public service of the States, communes or other corporate bodies under public law, insofar as Article 74a does not provide otherwise,

1a the general principles governing higher education,

2 the general legal status of the press,

3 hunting, nature conservation and landscape management,

4 State distribution, regional planning and the management of water resources,

5 matters relating to the registration of residence or domicile and to identity cards,

6 protection against transfer of items of German culture to foreign countries Article 72 (3) applies mutatis mutandis

(2) Framework legislation may contain detailed or directly applicable provisions only in exceptional cases

(3) If the Federation adopts framework legislation, the States are bound to adopt the necessary State statutes within an adequate time frame stipulated by the legislation

76. Bills

(1) Bills are introduced in the House of Representatives by the Government or by members of the House of Representatives or by the Senate

(2) Bills of the Government first have to be submitted to the Senate. The Senate is entitled to state its position on such Bills within six weeks. If, for important reasons and particularly with regard to the volume of the Bill, the Senate asks for deferral, the period is nine weeks. A Bill which, on submission to the Senate, is exceptionally specified by the Government to be particularly urgent may be submitted by the latter to the House of Representatives three weeks later, or, if the Senate asked for deferral according to sentence 3, six weeks later, even though the Government may not yet have received the statement of the Senate's position, upon receipt, such statement has to be transmitted to the House of Representatives by the Government without delay. The time limit for statements to Bills changing this Constitution or delegating sovereign powers according to Article 23 or 24 is nine weeks, sentence 4 is not applied.

(3) Bills of the Senate have to be submitted to the House of Representatives by the Government within six weeks. In doing so, the Government states its own view. If, for important reasons and particularly with regard to the volume of the Bill, the Government asks for deferral, the period is nine weeks. The time limit for a Bill which is exceptionally specified by the Senate to be particularly urgent is three weeks or, if the Government asked for deferral according to sentence 3, six weeks. The time limit for statements to Bills changing this Constitution or delegating sovereign powers according to Article 23 or 24 is nine weeks, sentence 4 is not applied. The House of Representatives has to debate about bills within adequate time and reach a decision.

77. Legislative Procedure

(1) Federal statutes are enacted by the House of Representatives. Upon their adoption they have to be transmitted, without delay, to the Senate by the President of the House of Representatives.

(2) The Senate may, within three weeks of the receipt of the adopted Bill, demand that a Committee for Joint Consideration of Bills, composed of members of the House of Representatives and members of the Senate, be convened. The composition and the procedure of this Committee is regulated by rules of procedure to be adopted by the House of Representatives and requiring the consent of the Senate. The members of the Senate on this Committee are not bound by instructions. Where the consent of the Senate is required for a Bill to become a statute, the House of Representatives and the Government may also demand that the Committee be convened. Should the Committee propose any amendment to the adopted Bill, the House of Representatives again votes on the Bill.

(2a) Insofar as a statute requires the consent of the Senate, the Senate, if no demand according to paragraph (2) 1 was issued or if the committee for joint consideration has concluded its procedures without suggesting changes, has to debate about its consent within adequate time and reach a decision.

(2) The consent of the Senate is required, unless otherwise provided by Federal legislation, for Ordinances of the Government or a Minister concerning basic rules or charges for the use of facilities of postal affairs and telecommunication, concerning the basic rules for charges and use of facilities of railroads of the Federation, or concerning the construction and operation of railroads, as well as for ordinances issued pursuant to Federal statutes that require the consent of the Senate or that are executed by the States as agents of the Federation or as matters of their own concern

(3) The Senate can submit such Bills for Ordinances to the Government that require its consent

(4) Insofar as, by or on the basis of Federal statutes, Governments of the States are empowered to adopt Ordinances, the States are also allowed to regulate the matter by statute

80a. Application of Legal Provisions in a State of Tension

(1) Where this Constitution or a Federal statute on defence, including the protection of the civilian population, stipulates that legal provisions may only be applied in accordance with this Article, their application is, except in a State of defence, admissible only after the House of Representatives has determined that a State of tension exists or where it has specifically approved such application. In respect of the cases mentioned in Article 12a (5) 1 and (6) 2, such determination of a State of tension and such specific approval requires a two-thirds majority of the votes cast

(2) Any measures taken by virtue of legal provisions enacted under paragraph (1) have to be revoked whenever the House of Representatives so demands

(3) In derogation of paragraph (1), the application of such legal provisions is also admissible by virtue of and in accordance with a decision taken with the consent of the Government by an international body within the framework of a treaty of alliance. Any measures taken pursuant to this paragraph have to be revoked whenever the House of Representatives so demands with the majority of its members

81. State of Legislative Emergency

(1) Should, in the circumstances of Article 68, the House of Representatives not be dissolved, the President may, at the request of the Government and with the consent of the Senate, declare a State of legislative emergency with respect to a Bill, where the House of Representatives rejects the Bill although the Government has declared it to be urgent. The same applies where a Bill has been rejected although the Chancellor had combined with it the motion under Article 68

(2) Where, after a State of legislative emergency has been declared, the House of Representatives again rejects the Bill or adopts it in a version stated to be unacceptable to the Government, the Bill is deemed to have become a statute to the extent that the Senate consents to it. The same applies where the Bill is not passed by the House of Representatives within four weeks of its reintroduction

(3) During the term of office of a Chancellor, any other Bill rejected by the House of Representatives may become a statute in accordance with paragraphs (1) and (2) within a period of six months after the first declaration of a State of legislative emergency. After the expiration of this period a further declaration of a State of legislative emergency is inadmissible during the term of office of the same Chancellor.

(4) This Constitution may not be amended nor repealed nor suspended in whole or in part by a statute enacted pursuant to paragraph (2).

82. Promulgation and Effective Date of Legal Provisions

(1) Statutes enacted in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution are, after countersignature, signed by the President and promulgated in the Federal Law Gazette. Ordinances are signed by the agency which issues them and, unless otherwise provided by statute, are promulgated in the Federal Law Gazette.

(2) Every statute or every Ordinance should specify its effective date. In the absence of such a provision, it takes effect on the fourteenth day after the end of the day on which the Federal Law Gazette containing it was published.

CHAPTER VIII

EXECUTION OF STATUTES AND FEDERAL ADMINISTRATION

83. Competencies of Federation and States

The States execute Federal statutes as matters of their own concern insofar as this Constitution does not otherwise provide or permit.

84. State Execution and Government Supervision

(1) Where the States execute Federal statutes as matters of their own concern, they provide for the establishment of the requisite authorities and the regulation of administrative procedures insofar as Federal statutes consented to by the Senate do not otherwise provide.

(2) The Government may, with the consent of the Senate, issue general administrative rules.

(3) The Government exercises supervision to ensure that the States execute the Federal statutes in accordance with applicable law. For this purpose the Government may send commissioners to the highest State authorities and, with their consent or, where such consent is refused, with the consent of the Senate, also to subordinate authorities.

(4) Should any shortcomings which the Government has found to exist in the execution of Federal statutes in the States not be corrected, the Senate decides, at the request of the Government or the State concerned whether such State has violated the law. The decision of the Senate may be challenged in the Federal Constitutional Court.

(5) With a view to the execution of Federal statutes, the Government may be authorized by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate to issue individual instructions for particular cases. They are addressed to the highest State authorities unless the Government considers the matter urgent.

85. Execution by the States as Agents of the Federation

(1) Where the States execute Federal statutes as agents of the Federation, the establishment of the requisite authorities remains the concern of the States, except insofar as Federal statutes consented to by the Senate otherwise provide.

(2) The Government may, with the consent of the Senate, issue general administrative rules. It may regulate the uniform training of civil servants and other salaried public employees. The heads of authorities at the intermediate level are appointed with its agreement.

(3) The State authorities are subject to the instructions of the competent highest Federal authorities. Such instructions are addressed to the highest State authorities unless the Government considers the matter urgent. Execution of the instructions is ensured by the highest State authorities.

(4) Federal supervision covers the lawfulness and appropriateness of execution. The Government may, for this purpose, require the submission of reports and documents and send commissioners to all authorities.

86. Direct Federal Administration

Where the Federation executes statutes by means of direct Federal Administration or by Federal corporate bodies or institutions under public law, the Government issues, insofar as the statute concerned contains no special provision, pertinent general administrative rules. The Government provides for the establishment of the requisite authorities insofar as the statute concerned does not otherwise provide.

87. Matters for Direct Federal Administration

(1) The foreign service, the Federal finance administration and, in accordance with the provisions of Article 89, the administration of Federal waterways and of shipping is conducted as matters of direct Federal administration with their own administrative substructures. Federal legislation may be enacted to establish Federal Border Guard authorities and central offices for police information and communications, for the criminal police and for the compilation of data for the purposes of protection of the constitution and of protection against activities on Federal territory which, through the use of force or acts preparatory to the use of force, endanger the foreign interests of the Federal Republic of Germany.

(2) Social insurance institutions whose sphere of competence extends beyond the territory of one State are administered as direct Federal corporate bodies under public law. Social insurance institutions whose sphere of competence extends beyond the territory of one State, but not beyond that of more than three States, are administered, differing from the first sentence, as direct State corporate bodies under public law if the supervising State is determined by the States involved.

(3) In addition, independent Federal higher authorities as well as new Federal corporate bodies and institutions under public law may be established by Federal legislation for matters on which the Federation has the power to legislate. Where new functions arise for the Federation in matters on which it has the power to legislate, Federal authorities at the intermediate and lower levels may be established, in case of urgent need, with the consent of the Senate and of the majority of the members of the House of Representatives.

87a Establishment and Powers of the Armed Forces

(1) The Federation establishes Armed Forces for defence purposes. Their numerical strength and general organizational structure must be shown in the budget.

(2) Apart from defence, the Armed Forces may only be used insofar as explicitly permitted by this Constitution.

(3) While a State of defence or a State of tension exists, the Armed Forces have the power to protect civilian property and discharge functions of traffic control insofar as this is necessary for the performance of their defence mission. Moreover, the Armed Forces may, when a State of defence or a State of tension exists, be entrusted with the protection of civilian property also in support of police measures, in this event the Armed Forces cooperate with the competent authorities.

(4) In order to avert any imminent danger to the existence or to the free democratic basic order of the Federation or a State, the Government may, should conditions as envisaged in Article 91 (2) obtain and the police forces and the Federal Border Guard be inadequate, use the Armed Forces to support the police and the Federal Border Guard in the protection of civilian property and in combatting organized and militarily armed insurgents. Any such use of the Armed Forces has to stop whenever the House of Representatives or the Senate so demands.

87b Administration of the Federal Armed Forces

(1) The Federal Armed Forces administration is conducted as a direct Federal administration with its own administrative substructure. Its functions are to administer personnel matters and directly to meet the material requirements of the Armed Forces. Tasks connected with benefits to disabled persons or with construction work are not assigned to the Federal Armed Forces administration except by Federal legislation requiring the consent of the Senate. Such consent is also required for any statutes to the extent that they empower the Federal Armed Forces administration to interfere with rights of third parties, this does not apply, however, in the case of statutes concerning personnel matters.

(2) Moreover, Federal statutes concerning defence, including recruitment for military service and protection of the civilian population, may, with the consent of the Senate, provide that they are executed, wholly or in part, either by means of direct Federal administration having its own administrative substructure or by the States acting as agents of the Federation.

Where such statutes are executed by the States acting as agents of the Federation, they may, with the consent of the Senate, provide that the powers vested in the Government or appropriate highest Federal authorities by virtue of Article 85 are transferred wholly or in part to higher Federal authorities; in such an event it may be enacted that these authorities do not require the consent of the Senate in issuing general administrative rules as referred to in Article 85 (2) 1

87c. Administration in the Field of Nuclear Energy

Statutes enacted under Article 74 number 11a may, with the consent of the Senate, provide that they are executed by the States acting as agents of the Federation

87d. Aviation Administration

(1) Aviation administration is conducted as a direct Federal administration. Federal law decides about public law and private law forms of organization.

(2) Through Federal legislation requiring the consent of the Senate functions of aviation administration may be transferred to the States acting as agents of the Federation

87e. Railroads

(1) The administration for traffic of railroads of the Federation is conducted as a direct Federal administration. By Federal statute, tasks of the administration for traffic of railroads can be delegated to the States as their own tasks

(2) The Federation undertakes the tasks to administer traffic of railroads of the Federation as are assigned to it by Federal statute

(3) Railroads of the Federation are managed in the form of private law businesses. They are owned by the Federation as far as the activities of the business encompass construction, maintenance, or operation of railways. The sale of shares of the Federation in the businesses mentioned in the second sentence is regulated on the basis of a statute, the Federation retains a majority of shares in those businesses. Details are regulated by a Federal statute

(4) The Federation guarantees that the public weal, particularly the interest in traffic, in the development and preservation of the railway network of railways of the Federation as far as it is used for local railway transport of persons is considered. Details are regulated by a Federal statute

(5) Statutes based on paragraphs (1) to (4) need the consent of the Senate. Furthermore, the consent of the Senate is necessary for statutes that dissolve, merge, or split railroads of the Federation, convey railways of railroads of the Federation to third parties as well as discontinue railways of railroads of the Federation, or affect the local railway transport of persons

87f. Postal Affairs and Telecommunication

(1) Regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate, the Federation guarantees a comprehensive and adequate coverage with services in the area of postal affairs and telecommunication

(2) Services in the sense of paragraph (1) are organized as private law activities by those businesses originating in the special property Deutsche Bundespost. Sovereign tasks in the area of postal affairs and telecommunication are organized as direct Federal administration.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2) 2, the Federation, in the public law form of a direct Federal agency, discharges certain duties regarding businesses originating in the special property Deutsche Bundespost, as are assigned to it by Federal statutes

88. Bundesbank

The Federation establishes a note-issuing and currency bank as the Bundesbank. Its tasks and powers can, in the context of the European Union, be transferred to the European Central Bank which is independent and primarily bound by the purpose of securing stability of prices

89. Federal Waterways

(1) The Federation is the owner of the former Reich waterways

(2) The Federation administers the Federal waterways through its own authorities. It exercises those governmental functions relating to inland shipping which extend beyond the territory of one State, and those governmental functions relating to maritime shipping which are conferred on it by statute. Upon request, the Federation may transfer the administration of Federal waterways, insofar as they lie within the territory of one State, to that State as its agent. Where a waterway touches the territories of several States, the Federation may delegate one State to be its agent where so requested by the States concerned.

(3) In the administration, development, and new construction of waterways, the needs of land improvement and of water economy are safeguarded in agreement with the States

90. Federal Highways

(1) The Federation is the owner of the former Reich streets and Reich highways

(2) The States, or such self-governing corporate bodies as are competent under State law, administer as agents of the Federation the Federal streets and other Federal highways used for long-distance traffic.

(3) At the request of a State, the Federation may place Federal streets and other Federal highways used for long-distance traffic under direct Federal administration insofar as they lie within the territory of that State.

91. Internal Emergency

(1) In order to avert any imminent danger to the existence or to the free democratic basic order of the Federation or a State, a State may request the services of the police forces of other States, or of the forces and facilities of other administrative authorities and of the Federal Border Guard

(2) If the State where such danger is imminent is not itself willing or able to combat the danger, the Government may place the police in that State and the police forces of other States under its own instructions and use units of the Federal Border Guard. The order for this has to be revoked after the removal of the danger or else at any time at the demand of the Senate. Where the danger extends to a region larger than a State, the Government may, insofar as is necessary for effectively combatting such danger, issue instructions to the State Governments, the first and second sentences of this paragraph are not affected by this provision.

JOINT TASKS

91a. Participation of the Federation

(1) The Federation participates, in the following sectors, in the discharge of responsibilities of the States, provided that such responsibilities are important to society as a whole and that Federal participation is necessary for the improvement of living conditions (joint tasks)

1 extension and construction of institutions of higher education, including university clinics,

2 improvement of regional economic structures,

3 improvement of the agrarian structure and of coast preservation

(2) Joint tasks are defined in detail by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate. Such legislation should include general principles governing the discharge of joint tasks.

(3) Such legislation provides for the procedure and the institutions required for joint overall planning. The inclusion of a project in the overall planning requires the consent of the State in which it is to be carried out.

(4) In cases to which paragraph (1) number 1 and 2 applies, the Federation pays for one-half of the expenditure in each State. In cases to which paragraph (1) number 3 applies, the Federation pays for at least one-half of the expenditure, and such proportion is the same for all the States. Details are regulated by statute. Provision of funds are subject to appropriation in the budgets of the Federation and the States.

(5) The Government and the Senate are informed about the execution of joint tasks, should they so demand.

91b. Cooperation of Federation and States

The Federation and the States may, pursuant to agreements, cooperate in educational planning and in the promotion of institutions and projects of scientific research of supra-regional importance. The apportionment of costs is regulated in the relevant agreements.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

92. Court Organization

Judicial power is vested in the Judges, it is exercised by the Federal Constitutional Court, by the Federal courts provided for in this Constitution, and by the courts of the States

93. Federal Constitutional Court

(1) The Federal Constitutional Court decides

1 on the interpretation of this Constitution in the event of disputes concerning the extent of the rights and duties of a highest Federal body or of other parties concerned who have been vested with rights of their own by this Constitution or by rules of procedure of a highest Federal body,

2 in case of differences of opinion or doubts on the formal and material compatibility of Federal law or State law with this Constitution, or on the compatibility of State law with other Federal law, at the request of the Government, of a State Government, or of one-third of the House of Representatives members,

2a in case of differences of opinion on the compatibility of Federal law with Article 72 (2), at the request of the Senate, of a State Government, or of a State Parliament,

3 in case of differences of opinion on the rights and duties of the Federation and the States, particularly in the execution of Federal law by the States and in the exercise of Federal supervision,

4 on other disputes involving public law, between the Federation and the States, between different States or within a State, unless recourse to another court exists,

4a on complaints of unconstitutionality, being filed by any person claiming that one of his basic rights or one of his rights under Article 20 (4) or under Article 33, 38, 101, 103 or 104 has been violated by public authority,

4b on complaints of unconstitutionality filed by communes or associations of communes on the ground that their right to self-government under Article 28 has been violated by a statute other than a State statute open to complaint to the respective State constitutional court,

5 in the other cases provided for in this Constitution

(2) The Federal Constitutional Court also acts in such other cases as are assigned to it by Federal legislation

94. Composition of the Federal Constitutional Court

(1) The Federal Constitutional Court consists of Federal Judges and other members Half of the members of the Federal Constitutional Court are elected by the House of Representatives and half by the Senate. They may not be members of the House of Representatives. The Senate, the Government, nor of any of the corresponding bodies of a State.

(2) The constitution and procedure of the Federal Constitutional Court are regulated by a Federal statute which specifies in what cases its decisions have the force of law. Such statute may require that all other legal remedies must have been exhausted before a complaint of unconstitutionality can be entered, and may make provision for a special procedure as to admissibility.

95. Highest Courts of Justice of the Federation, Joint Panel

(1) For the purposes of ordinary, administrative, fiscal, labour, and social jurisdiction, the Federation establishes as highest courts of justice the Federal Court of Justice, the Federal Administrative Court, the Federal Finance Court, the Federal Labour Court, and the Federal Social Court.

(2) The Judges of each of these Courts are selected jointly by the competent Minister and a committee for the selection of Judges consisting of the competent State Ministers and an equal number of members elected by the House of Representatives.

(3) In order to preserve uniformity of decisions, a Joint Panel of the courts specified in paragraph (1) is set up. Details are regulated by a Federal statute.

96. Other Federal Courts

(1) The Federation may establish a Federal court for matters concerning industrial property rights.

(2) The Federation may establish military criminal courts for the Armed Forces as Federal courts. They may only exercise criminal jurisdiction while a State of defence exists, and otherwise only over members of the Armed Forces serving abroad or on board warships. Details are regulated by a Federal statute. These courts are within the competence of the Minister of Justice. Their full-time Judges are persons qualified to hold judicial office.

(3) The highest court of justice for appeals from the courts mentioned in paragraphs (1) and (2) is the Federal Court of Justice.

(4) The Federation may establish Federal courts for disciplinary proceedings against, and for proceedings in pursuance of complaints by, persons in the Federal Public Service.

(5) In respect of criminal proceedings under Article 26 (1) or involving the protection of the State, a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate may provide that State courts exercise Federal jurisdiction.

96a. {...}

97. Independence of the Judges

(1) The Judges are independent and subject only to the law.

(2) Judges appointed permanently on a full-time basis in established positions cannot, against their will, be dismissed or permanently or temporarily suspended from office or given a different posting or retired.

before the expiration of their term of office except by virtue of a judicial decision and only on the grounds and in the form provided for by statute. Legislation may set age limits for the retirement of Judges appointed for life. In the event of changes in the structure of courts or in their districts, Judges may be transferred to another court or removed from office, provided they retain their full salary.

98. Legal status of Judges in the Federation and the States

(1) The legal status of the Federal Judges is regulated by a special Federal statute.

(2) Where a Federal Judge, in his official capacity or unofficially, infringes the principles of this Constitution or the constitutional order of a State, the Federal Constitutional Court may decide by a two-thirds majority, upon the request of the House of Representatives, that the Judge be given a different office or retired. In a case of intentional infringement, his dismissal may be ordered.

(3) The legal status of the Judges in the States is regulated by special State statutes. The Federation may enact outline provisions, insofar as Article 74a (4) does not provide otherwise.

(4) The States may provide that the State Minister of Justice together with a committee for the selection of Judges decides on the appointment of Judges in the States.

(5) The States may, in respect of State Judges, enact provisions corresponding to those of paragraph (1).

(2) Existing State constitutional law remains unaffected. The decision in a case of impeachment of a Judge rests with the Federal Constitutional Court.

99. Disputes Concerning State Law

The decision on constitutional disputes within a State may be assigned by State legislation to the Federal Constitutional Court, and the decision at last instance in matters involving the application of State law to the highest courts of justice referred to in Article 95 (1).

100. Compatibility of Statutory Law with the Constitution

(1) Where a court considers that a statute on whose validity the court's decision depends is unconstitutional, the proceedings have to be stayed, and a decision has to be obtained from the State court with jurisdiction over constitutional disputes where the constitution of a State is held to be violated, or from the Federal Constitutional Court where this Constitution is held to be violated. This also applies where this Constitution is held to be violated by State law or where a State statute is held to be incompatible with a Federal statute.

(2) Where, in the course of litigation, doubt exists whether a rule of public international law is an integral part of Federal law and whether such rule directly creates rights and duties for the individual (Article 25), the court obtains a decision from the Federal Constitutional Court.

(3) Where the Constitutional Court of a State, in interpreting this Constitution, intends to deviate from a decision of the Federal Constitutional Court or of the Constitutional Court of another State, it obtains a decision from the Federal Constitutional Court

101. Ban on extraordinary courts

(1) Extraordinary courts are inadmissible. No one may be removed from the jurisdiction of his lawful Judge

(2) Courts for special fields of law may be established only by Legislation

102. Abolishment of capital punishment

Capital punishment is abolished

103. Due Process

(1) In the courts, everyone is entitled to a hearing in accordance with the law

(2) An act can be punished only where it constituted a criminal offence under the law before the act was committed

(3) No one may be punished for the same act more than once under general criminal legislation

104. Legal Guarantees in the Event of Deprivation of liberty

(1) The liberty of the individual may be restricted only by virtue of a formal statute and only in compliance with the forms prescribed therein. Detained persons may not be subjected to mental or to physical ill-treatment

(2) Only Judges may decide on the admissibility or continuation of any deprivation of liberty. Where such deprivation is not based on the order of a Judge, a judicial decision has to be obtained without delay. The police may hold no one on their own authority in their own custody longer than the end of the day after the day of apprehension. Details are regulated by legislation

(3) Any person provisionally detained on suspicion of having committed an offence has to be brought, not later than the day following the day of apprehension, before a Judge who has to inform him of the reasons for the detention, examine him, and give him an opportunity to raise objections. The Judge, without delay, has to either issue a warrant of arrest setting forth the reasons therefor or order his release from detention

(4) A relative or a person enjoying the confidence of the person detained has to be notified without delay of any judicial decision imposing or ordering the continuation of his deprivation of liberty

CHAPTER X FINANCE

104a. Apportionment of Expenditure

(1) The Federation and the States separately meet the expenditure resulting from the discharge of their respective tasks insofar as this Constitution does not provide otherwise

(2) Where the States act as agents of the Federation, the Federation meets the resulting expenditure

(3) Federal statutes to be executed by the States and granting money payments may make provision for such payments to be met wholly or in part by the Federation Where any such statute provides that the Federation meets one-half of the expenditure or more, it is implemented by the States as agents of the Federation Where any such statute provides that the States meet one-quarter of the expenditure or more, it requires the consent of the Senate

(4) The Federation may grant the States financial assistance for particularly important investments by the States or communes or associations of communes, provided that such investments are necessary to avert a disturbance of the overall economic equilibrium or to equalize differences of economic capacities within the Federal territory or to promote economic growth Details, especially concerning the kinds of investments to be promoted, are regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate or by administrative arrangements under the Federal budget law

(5) The Federation and the States meet the administrative expenditure incurred by their respective authorities and are responsible to each other for ensuring proper administration Details are regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate

105. Legislative Powers

(1) The Federation has exclusive power to legislate on customs duties and fiscal monopolies

(2) The Federation has concurrent power to legislate on all other taxes the revenue from which accrues to it wholly or in part or where the conditions provided for in Article 72 (2) apply

(2a) The States have power to legislate on local excise taxes as long and insofar as they are not identical with taxes imposed by Federal legislation

(3) Federal laws relating to taxes the receipts from which accrue wholly or in part to the States or communes or associations of communes require the consent of the Senate

106 Apportionment of Tax Revenue

(1) The yield of fiscal monopolies and the revenue from the following taxes belongs to the Federation

1 customs duties,

2 excise taxes insofar as they do not accrue to the States pursuant to paragraph (2), or jointly to the Federation and the States in accordance with paragraph (3), or to the communes in accordance with paragraph (6), 3 road freight tax,

4 capital transaction taxes, the insurance tax, and the bill of exchange tax,

5 non-recurrent levies on property, and contributions imposed for the purpose of implementing the equalization of burdens legislation,

6 income and corporation surtaxes,
7 charges imposed within the framework of the European Communities

(2) Revenue from the following taxes belong to the States

- 1 wealth tax,
- 2 inheritance tax,
- 3 motor vehicle tax,
- 4 such taxes on transactions as do not accrue to the Federation pursuant to paragraph (1) or jointly to the Federation and the States pursuant to paragraph (3),
- 5 beer tax,
- 6 gaming casinos levy

(3) Revenue from income taxes, corporation taxes, and turnover taxes belong jointly to the Federation and the States (joint taxes) to the extent that the revenue from the income tax is not allocated to the communes pursuant to paragraph (5). The Federation and the States equally share the revenues from income taxes and corporation taxes. The respective shares of the Federation and the States in the revenue from the turnover tax are determined by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate.

Such determination is based on the following principles

1 The Federation and the States have an equal claim to coverage from current revenues of their respective necessary expenditures. The extent of such expenditures is determined giving due consideration to financial planning for several years ahead.

2 The coverage requirements of the Federation and of the States are coordinated in such a way that a fair balance is struck, any overburdening of taxpayers precluded, and uniformity of living conditions in the Federal territory ensured. In addition, for the apportionment of the value added tax to Federation and States it will be taken into account that after 1 Jan 1996 the States' income tax revenues will be reduced due to child benefits. Details are regulated by a Federal statute according to sentence 3.

(4) The respective shares of the Federation and the States to the revenue from the turnover tax are newly apportioned whenever the relation of revenues to expenditures in the Federation develops substantially differently from that of the States, this does not apply to reduced tax revenues which are included into the calculation of the apportionment of value added tax according to paragraph (3) sentence 5. Where Federal legislation imposes additional expenditures on or withdraws revenue from the States, the additional burden may be compensated for by allocation of Federal grants under a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate, provided such additional burden is limited to a short period of time. Such statute lays down the principles for calculating such grants and distributing them among the States.

(5) A share of the revenue from the income tax belongs to the communes, to be passed on by the States to their communes on the basis of income taxes paid by the inhabitants of the latter. Details are regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate. Such statute may provide that communes assess the rate which is applicable to this communal share.

(6) Revenue from taxes on real estate and on local industry and trade belongs to the communes, revenue from local excise taxes belongs to the communes or, as may be provided for by State legislation, to associations of communes. Communes are authorized to assess, within the framework of the relevant statutes, the rates at which the taxes on real estate and on local industry and trade are levied locally. Where there are no communes in a State, revenue from taxes on real estate and on local industry and trade as well as from local excise taxes belongs to the State. The Federation and the States may participate, by virtue of an apportionment, in the revenue from the tax on local industry and trade. Details regarding such apportionment are regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate. In accordance with State legislation, taxes on real estate and on local industry and trade as well as the communes' share of revenue from the income tax may be taken as a basis for calculating the amount of apportionment.

(7) An overall percentage, to be determined by State legislation, of the State share of total revenue from joint taxes belongs to the communes or associations of communes. In all other respects State legislation determines whether and to what extent revenue from State taxes belong to communes or associations of communes.

(8) Where in individual States or communes or associations of communes the Federation causes special facilities to be provided which directly result in an increase of expenditure or a loss of revenue (special burden) to these States or communes or associations of communes, the Federation grants the necessary compensation where and insofar as such States or communes or associations of communes cannot reasonably be expected to bear such special burden. In granting such compensation, due account is being taken of third-party indemnities and financial benefits accruing to the States or communes or associations of communes concerned as a result of provision for such facilities.

(9) For the purpose of this Article, revenues and expenditures of communes or associations of communes are deemed to be State revenues and expenditures.

106a Railroads

Starting 1 Jan., 1996, the States can claim a sum out of Federal tax revenues for public local transport of persons. Details are regulated by Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate. The sum mentioned in the first sentence is not included in the calculation of financial strength according to Article 107 (2).

107. Financial Equalization

(1) Revenue from State taxes and the State share of revenue from income and corporation taxes belongs to the individual States to the extent that such taxes are collected by revenue authorities within their respective territories (local revenue). A Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate may provide in detail for the delimitation as well as the manner and scope of allotment of local revenue from corporation and wage taxes. Such statute may also provide for the delimitation and allotment of local revenue from other taxes. The State share of revenue from the turnover tax belongs to the individual States on a per capita basis, a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate may provide for supplementary shares not exceeding one quarter of a State share to be granted to States whose per capita revenue from State taxes and from the income and corporation taxes is below the average of all the States combined.

(2) It has to be ensured by statute, that a reasonable equalization between financially strong and financially weak States is achieved, due consideration being given to financial capacity and financial requirements of communes or associations of communes. Such statute has to specify the conditions governing equalization claims of States entitled to equalization payments and equalization liabilities of States owing equalization payments as well as the criteria for determining the amounts of equalization payments. Such statute may also provide for grants to be made by the Federation from Federal funds to financially weak States in order to complement the coverage of their general financial requirements (supplementary grants).

108. Revenue Administration

(1) Customs duties, fiscal monopolies, excise taxes subject to Federal legislation, including the import turnover tax, and charges imposed within the framework of the European Communities are administered by Federal revenue authorities. The organization of these authorities is regulated by Federal statute. The heads of authorities at the intermediate level are appointed in consultation with the respective State Governments.

(2) All other taxes are administered by State revenue authorities. The organization of these authorities and the uniform training of their civil servants may be regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate. The heads of authorities at the intermediate level are appointed in agreement with the Government.

(3) To the extent that taxes accruing wholly or in part to the Federation are administered by State revenue authorities, those authorities act as agents of the Federation. Article 85 (3) and (4) applies with the Minister of Finance being substituted for the Government.

(4) In respect of the administration of taxes, a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate may provide for collaboration between Federal and State revenue authorities, or in the case of taxes under paragraph (1) for their administration by State revenue authorities, or in the case of other taxes for their administration by Federal revenue authorities where and to the extent that the execution of revenue statutes is substantially improved or facilitated thereby As regards taxes the revenue from which accrues exclusively to communes or associations of communes, their administration may wholly or in part be transferred by the States from the appropriate State revenue authorities to communes or associations of communes

(5) The procedure to be applied by Federal revenue authorities is laid down by Federal legislation The procedure to be applied by State revenue authorities or, as envisaged in paragraph (4) 2, by communes or associations of communes may be laid down by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate

(6) The jurisdiction of revenue courts is uniformly regulated by Federal legislation

(7) The Government may issue appropriate general administrative rules which, to the extent that administration is entrusted to State revenue authorities or communes or associations of communes, require the consent of the Senate

109. Budget Management in the Federation and the States

(1) The Federation and the States are autonomous and independent of each other in their budget management

(2) The Federation and the States give due regard in their budget management to the requirements of overall economic equilibrium

(3) Through Federal legislation requiring the consent of the Senate principles applicable to both the Federation and the States may be established governing budgetary law, responsiveness of budget management to economic trends, and financial planning to cover several years ahead

(4) With a view to averting disturbances of the overall economic equilibrium, Federal legislation requiring the consent of the Senate may be enacted providing for

1 maximum amounts, terms and timing of loans to be raised by territorial entities or special purpose associations, and

2 an obligation on the part of the Federation and the States to maintain interest-free deposits at the Bundesbank (reserves for counterbalancing economic trends) Authorizations to issue the relevant ordinances may be conferred on the Government only Such ordinances require the consent of the Senate They have to be repealed insofar as the House of Representatives so demands, details are regulated by Federal legislation

110. Budget and Budget Law of the Federation

(1) All revenues and expenditures of the Federation are included in the budget, in respect of Federal enterprises and special assets, only allocations thereto or remittances therefrom need be included The budget has to be balanced as regards revenue and expenditure

(2) The budget is laid down in a statute covering one year or several fiscal years separately before the beginning of the first of those fiscal years

Provision may be made for parts of the budget to apply to periods of different duration, but divided into fiscal years

(3) Bills within the meaning of paragraph (2) 1 as well as Bills to amend the budget statute and the budget are submitted simultaneously to the Senate and to the House of Representatives, the Senate is entitled to State its position on such Bills within six weeks or in the case of amending Bills, within three weeks

(4) The budget statute may contain only such provisions as apply to revenues and expenditures of the Federation and to the period for which the budget statute is being enacted. The budget statute may stipulate that these provisions cease to apply only upon the promulgation of the next budget statute or, in the event of an authorization pursuant to Article 115, at a later date

111a. Interim Budget Management

(1) Where, by the end of a fiscal year, the budget for the following year has not been laid down by statute, the Government may, until such statute comes into force, make all payments which are necessary

(a) to maintain statutory institutions and to carry out measures authorized by statute,

(b) to meet the Federation's legal obligations,

(c) to continue building projects, procurements, and other services, or to continue to grant subsidies for these purposes, provided that amounts have already been appropriated in the budget of a previous year

(2) To the extent that revenues provided by specific legislation and derived from taxes or duties or any other sources, or the working capital reserves, do not cover the expenditures referred to in paragraph (1), the Government may borrow the funds necessary for the conduct of current operations up to a maximum of one quarter of the total amount of the previous budget

112. Expenditures in Excess of Budgetary Estimates

Expenditures in excess of budgetary appropriations and extra budgetary expenditures require the consent of the Minister of Finance. Such consent may be given only in the case of an unforeseen and compelling necessity. Details may be regulated by Federal legislation

113. Consent to Change Expenditures / Revenues

(1) Statutes increasing the budget expenditures proposed by the Government or involving or likely in future to cause new expenditures requires the consent of the Government. This also applies to statutes involving or likely in future to cause decreases in revenue. The Government may demand that the House of Representatives postpone its vote on such Bills. In this case the Government states its position to the House of Representatives within six weeks

(2) Within four weeks after the House of Representatives has adopted such a Bill, the Government may demand that it votes on that Bill again

(3) Where the Bill has become a statute pursuant to Article 78, the Government may withhold its consent only within six weeks and only after having initiated the procedure provided for paragraph (1) 3 and 4 or in paragraph (2). Upon the expiry of this period such consent is deemed to have been given

114. Rendering and Auditing of Accounts

(1) The Minister of Finance on behalf of the Government has to submit annually to the House of Representatives and to the Senate for their approval an account, covering the preceding fiscal year, of all revenues and expenditures as well as of property and debt

(2) The Federal Audit Office, the members of which enjoy judicial independence, audits the account and examines the management of the budget and the conduct of business as to economy and correctness. The Federal Audit Office submits an annual report directly to the Government as well as to the House of Representatives and to the Senate. In all other respects the powers of the Federal Audit Office are regulated by Federal legislation.

115. Procurement of Credit

(1) The borrowing of funds and the assumption of pledges, guarantees or other commitments, as a result of which expenditure may be incurred in future fiscal years, requires Federal legislative authorization indicating or permitting computation of, the maximum amounts involved. Revenue obtained by borrowing may not exceed the total of expenditures for investments provided for in the budget, exceptions are permissible only to avert a disturbance of the overall economic equilibrium. Details are regulated by Federal legislation

(2) In respect of special assets of the Federation, exceptions to the provisions of paragraph (1) may be authorized by Federal legislation

CHAPTER XA STATE OF DEFENCE

115a. Concept and Determination of a State of Defence

(1) The determination that Federal territory is being attacked by armed force or that such an attack is directly imminent (state of defence) are made by the House of Representatives with the consent of the Senate. Such determination are made at the request of the Government and require a two-thirds majority of the votes cast, which include at least the majority of the members of the House of Representatives

(2) Where the situation imperatively calls for immediate action and where insurmountable obstacles prevent the timely assembly of the House of Representatives, or where there is no quorum in the House of Representatives, the Joint Committee makes this determination with a two-thirds majority of the votes cast, which includes at least the majority of its members

(3) The determination is promulgated in the Federal Law Gazette by the President pursuant to Article 82. Where this cannot be done in time, the promulgation is effected in another manner, subsequently, it has to be printed in the Federal Law Gazette as soon as circumstances permit

(4) Where the Federal territory is being attacked by armed force and where the competent bodies of the Federation are not in a position at once to make the determination provided for in paragraph (1) 1, such determination is deemed to have been made and promulgated at the time the attack began. The President announces such time as soon as circumstances permit

(5) Where the determination of the existence of a State of defence has been promulgated and where the Federal territory is being attacked by armed force, the President may, with the consent of the House of Representatives, issue declarations under international law regarding the existence of such State of defence. Where the conditions mentioned in paragraph (2) apply, the Joint Committee acts in substitution for the House of Representatives

115b. Transfer of Command to the Chancellor

Upon the promulgation of a State of defence, the power of command over the Armed Forces passes to the Chancellor

115c. Extension of Legislative Powers of the Federation

(1) The Federation has the right to legislate concurrently in respect of a State of defence even on matters within the legislative powers of the States. Such statutes require the consent of the Senate

(2) Federal legislation to be applicable upon the occurrence of a State of defence to the extent required by conditions obtaining while such State of defence exists may make

1 preliminary provision for compensation to be made in the event of property being taken, in derogation of Article 14 (3) 2,

2 provision for a time-limit other than that referred to in Article 104 (2) 3 and (3) 1 in respect of deprivations of liberty, but not exceeding four days at the most, in a case where no Judge has been able to act within the time limit applying in normal times

(3) Federal legislation to be applicable upon the occurrence of a State of defence to the extent required for averting an existing or directly imminent attack may, subject to the consent of the Senate, regulate the administration and the financial system of the Federation and the States in derogation of Sections VIII, VIIIa and X, provided that the viability of the States, communes and associations of communes is safeguarded, particularly in financial matters

(4) Federal statutes enacted pursuant to paragraph (1) or sub-paragraph 1 of paragraph (2) may, for the purpose of preparing for their enforcement, be applied even prior to the occurrence of a State of defence

115d. Legislative Process in the case of Urgent Bills

(1) While a State of defence exists, the provisions of Paragraphs (2) and (3) apply in respect of Federal legislation, in derogation of the provisions of Articles 76 (2), 77 (1) 2 and (2) to (4), 78, and 82 (1)

(2) Bills submitted as urgent by the Government are forwarded to the Senate at the same time as they are submitted to the House of Representatives. The House of Representatives and the Senate debate such bills together without delay. Insofar as the consent of the Senate is necessary, the majority of its votes is required for any such Bill to become a statute. Details are regulated by rules of procedure adopted by the House of Representatives and requiring the consent of the Senate.

(3) Article 115a (3) 2 applies mutatis mutandis in respect of the promulgation of such statutes.

115e. Powers of the Joint Committee

(1) Where, in a State of defence, the Joint Committee determines with a two-thirds majority of the votes cast, which includes at least the majority of its members, that insurmountable obstacles prevent the timely assembly of the House of Representatives or that there is no quorum in the House of Representatives, the Joint Committee has the status of both the House of Representatives and the Senate and exercises their rights as one body.

(2) The Joint Committee may not enact any statute to amend this Constitution or to deprive it of effect or application either in whole or in part. The Joint Committee is not authorized to enact statutes pursuant to Articles 23 (1) 2, 24 (1), or 29.

115f. Powers of the Government

(1) In a State of defence, the Government may, to the extent necessitated by circumstances

1 use the Federal Border Guard throughout the Federal territory,

2 issue instructions not only to Federal administrative authorities but also to State Governments and, where it deems the matter urgent, to State authorities, and may delegate this power to members of State Governments to be designated by it.

(2) The House of Representatives, the Senate and the Joint Committee is informed without delay of the measures taken in accordance with paragraph (1).

115g. Status and Functions of the Federal Constitutional Court

The constitutional status and the performance of the constitutional functions of the Federal Constitutional Court and its Judges may not be impaired. The Federal Constitutional Court Act may not be amended by a statute enacted by the Joint Committee except insofar as such amendment is required, also in the opinion of the Federal Constitutional Court, to maintain the capability of the Court to function. Pending the enactment of such a statute, the Federal Constitutional Court may take such measures as are necessary to maintain the capability of the Court to carry out its work. Any decisions by the Federal Constitutional Court in pursuance of the second and third sentence of this Article requires a two-thirds majority of the Judges present.

115h. Functioning Capability of Constitutional Organs

(1) Any legislative terms of the House of Representatives or of State parliaments due to end while a State of defence exists end six months after the termination of such State of defence. A term of office of the President due to expire while a State of defence exists, and the exercise of his functions by the President of the Senate in case of the premature vacancy of the President's office, ends nine months after the termination of such State of defence. The term of office of a member of the Federal Constitutional Court due to expire while a State of defence exists ends six months after the termination of such State of defence.

(2) Should the necessity arise for the Joint Committee to elect a new Chancellor, the Committee does so with the majority of its members, the President proposes a candidate to the Joint Committee. The Joint Committee can express its lack of confidence in the Chancellor only by electing a successor with a two-thirds majority of its members.

(3) The dissolution of the House of Representatives is impossible during a State of defence.

115i. Powers of the State Governments

(1) Where the competent Federal bodies are incapable of taking the measures necessary to avert the danger, and where the situation imperatively calls for immediate independent action in individual parts of the Federal territory, the State Governments or the authorities or commissioners designated by them are authorized to take, within their respective spheres of competence, the measures provided for in Article 115f (1).

(2) Any measures taken in accordance with paragraph (1) of the present Article may be revoked at any time by the Government, or, in relation to State authorities and subordinate Federal authorities, by State Minister-Presidents.

115k. Duration of Validity of Extraordinary Legal Provisions

(1) Statutes enacted in accordance with Articles 115c, 115e, and 115g, as well as Ordinances issued by virtue of such statutes, shall, for the duration of their applicability, suspend law which is inconsistent with such statutes or Ordinances. This provision does not apply to earlier legislation enacted by virtue of Articles 115c, 115e or 115g.

(2) Statutes adopted by the Joint Committee, as well as Ordinances issued by virtue of such statutes, cease to have effect not later than six months after the termination of a State of defence.

(3) Statutes containing provisions that diverge from Articles 91a, 91b, 104a, 106 and 107 applies no longer than the end of the second fiscal year following upon the termination of a State of defence. After such termination they may, with the consent of the Senate, be amended by Federal legislation so as to return to the provisions made in Sections VIIIa and X

1151. Repeal of Extraordinary Statutes and Measures

(1) The House of Representatives, with the consent of the Senate, may at any time repeal statutes enacted by the Joint Committee. The Senate may demand that the House of Representatives make a decision on such matter. Any measures taken by the Joint Committee or the Government to avert a danger has to be revoked where the House of Representatives and the Senate so decide.

(2) The House of Representatives, with the consent of the Senate, may at any time declare a State of defence terminated by a decision to be promulgated by the President. The Senate may demand that the House of Representatives make a decision on such matter. The State of defence has to be declared terminated without delay where the prerequisites for its declaration no longer exist.

(3) The conclusion of peace is subject to Federal statute.

CHAPTER XI

TRANSNATIONAL AND CONCLUDING PROVISIONS

116. Definition of "a German," Re-granting of Citizenship

(1) Unless otherwise provided by statute, a German within the meaning of this Constitution is a person who possesses German citizenship or who has been admitted to the territory of the German Reich within the frontiers of 31 December 1937 as a refugee or expellee of German ethnic origin or as the spouse or descendant of such a person.

(2) Former German citizens who, between 30 January 1933 and 8 May 1945, were deprived of their citizenship on political, racial or religious grounds, and their descendants, are re-granted German citizenship on application. They are considered as not having been deprived of their German citizenship where they have established their residence in Germany after 8 May 1945 and have not expressed a contrary intention.

117. Temporary Ruling for Article 3 (2) and Article 11

(1) Law which is inconsistent with Article 3 (2) remain in force until adapted to that provision of this Constitution, but not beyond 31 March, 1953.

(2) Statutes which restrict the right of freedom of movement in view of the present housing shortage remain in force until repealed by Federal legislation.

118. Baden, Wuerttemberg-Baden and Wuerttemberg-Hohenzollern

A new delimitation of the territory comprising the States of Baden, Wuerttemberg-Baden and Wuerttemberg-Hohenzollern may be effected, in derogation of the provisions of Article 29, by agreement between the States concerned. Where no agreement is reached, the reorganization is effected by Federal legislation which provides for a plebiscite.

118a. Berlin and Brandenburg

The new delimitation of boundaries between Berlin and Brandenburg can, differing from the provisions of Article 29, be constituted by agreement between both States under participation of their electorate.

119. Ordinances about Refugees and Expellees

In matters relating to refugees and expellees, in particular as regards their distribution among the States, the Government may, with the consent of the Senate, issue Ordinances having statutory effect, pending the settlement of the matter by Federal legislation. The Government may in this matter be authorized to issue individual instructions for particular cases. Except where there is danger resulting in any delay in taking action, such instructions are addressed to the highest State authorities.

120. Occupation Costs and Burdens Resulting from the War

(1) The Federation meets the expenditure for occupation costs and the other internal and external burdens caused by the war, as regulated in detail by Federal legislation. To the extent that these costs and other burdens have been regulated by Federal legislation on or before 1 October 1969, the Federation and the States meet such expenditure between them in accordance with such Federal legislation. Insofar as expenditures for such of these costs and burdens as neither have been nor will be regulated by Federal legislation have been met on or before 1 October 1965 by States, communes, associations of communes or other entities performing functions of the States or the communes, the Federation is not obliged to meet expenditure of that nature even where it arises after that date. The Federation pays the subsidies towards the burdens of social insurance institutions, including unemployment insurance and public assistance to the unemployed. The distribution between the Federation and the States of costs and other burdens caused by the war, as regulated in this paragraph, shall not affect any statutory regulation of claims for indemnification in respect of the consequences of the war.

(2) Revenues pass to the Federation at the same time as the latter assumes responsibility for the expenditure referred to in this Article.

120a. Implementation of Equalization of Burdens Legislation

(1) Statutes serving to implement the equalization of burdens may, with the consent of the Senate, stipulate that they are executed, as regards equalization benefits, partly by the Federation and partly by the States acting as agents of the Federation, and that the relevant powers vested in the Government and the competent highest Federal authorities by virtue of Article 85 are wholly or partly delegated to the Federal Equalization Office. In exercising these powers, the Federal Equalization Office does not require the consent of the Senate, with the exception of urgent cases, its instructions has to be given to the highest State authorities (State Equalization Offices).

(2) The provisions of Article 87 (3) 2 are not affected hereby.

121. Definition of "majority of the members"

Within the meaning of this Constitution, a majority of the members of the House of Representatives and a majority of the members of the Federal Convention are the majority of the respective statutory number of their members

122. Transfer of Legislative Powers hitherto Existing

(1) From the date of the assembly of the House of Representatives, statutes are enacted exclusively by the legislative bodies recognized in this Constitution

(2) Legislative bodies as well as those bodies participating in legislation in an advisory capacity, whose competence ends by virtue of paragraph (1), are dissolved with effect from that date

123. Continued Validity of Old Law and Previous Treaties

(1) Law in force before the first assembly of the House of Representatives remains in force insofar as it does not conflict with this Constitution

(2) Subject to all rights and objections of the interested parties, the treaties concluded by the German Reich concerning matters which, under this Constitution, are within the legislative competence of the States, remain in force, provided they are and continue to be valid in accordance with general principles of law, until new treaties are concluded by the agencies competent under this Constitution, or until they are in any other way terminated pursuant to their provisions

124. Sphere of Exclusive Legislative Power

Law affecting matters subject to the exclusive legislative power of the Federation becomes Federal law in the area in which it applies

125. "Inherited" Federal law

Law affecting matters subject to the concurrent legislative power of the Federation becomes Federal law in the area in which it applies

1 insofar as it applies uniformly within one or more zones of occupation,

2 insofar as it is law by which former Reich law has been amended after 8 May 1945

125a. Old Federal Law as State Law

(1) Law adopted as Federal law which, because of changes in Article 74 (1) or 75 (1), could no longer be adopted as Federal law continues to be Federal law. It can be replaced by State law

(2) Law adopted on the basis of Article 72 (2) in the version valid until 15 November 1994 continues to be Federal law. Federal statutes can stipulate its replaceability by State law. This provision applies mutatis mutandis for Federal law adopted on the basis of Article 75 (2) which could no longer be adopted

126. Differences about Applicability of Law as Federal Law

Differences of opinion regarding the applicability of law as Federal law are settled by the Federal Constitutional Court

127. Legislation of the Bi-zonal Economic Administration

Within one year of the promulgation of this Constitution the Government may, with the consent of the Governments of the States concerned, extend to the States of Baden, Greater Berlin, Rhineland-Palatinate and Wuerttemberg-Hohenzollern any legislation of the Bi-zonal Economic Administration, insofar as it continues to be in force as Federal law under Article 124 or 125

128. Continuance of Powers to give Instructions

Insofar as law continuing in force provides for powers to give instructions within the meaning of Article 84 (5), these powers remain in existence until otherwise provided by statute

129. Applicability of Authorizations

(1) Insofar as legal provisions which continue in force as Federal law contain authorizations to issue ordinances or to issue general administrative rules or to perform administrative acts, such authorizations pass to the agencies henceforth competent in the matter. In cases of doubt, the Government decides in agreement with the Senate, such decisions are published

(2) Insofar as legal provisions which continue in force as State law contain such authorizations, they are exercised by the agencies competent under State law

(3) Insofar as legal provisions within the meaning of paragraphs (1) and (2) authorize their amendment or supplementation or the issue of legal instead of statutory provisions, such authorizations are deemed to have expired

(4) The provisions of paragraphs (1) and (2) apply mutatis mutandis where legal provisions refer to regulations no longer valid or to institutions no longer in existence

130. Control over Existing Institutions

(1) Administrative agencies and other institutions which serve the public administration or the administration of justice and are not based on State law or treaties between States, as well as the Administrative Union of South West German Railroads and the Administrative Council for the Postal Services and Telecommunications of the French Zone of Occupation, are placed under the control of the Government. The Government provides, with the consent of the Senate, for their transfer, dissolution, or liquidation

(2) The highest disciplinary superior of the personnel of these administrative bodies and institutions is the appropriate Minister

(3) Corporate bodies and institutions under public law not directly subordinate to a State nor based on treaties between States are under the supervision of the competent highest Federal authority

131. Former Public Service Personnel

Federal legislation is passed to regulate the legal position of persons, including refugees and expellees, who, on 8 May, 1945, were employed in the public service, have left the service for reasons other than those arising from civil service regulations or collective agreement rules, and have not until now been reinstated or are employed in a position not corresponding to their former one. The same applies mutatis mutandis to persons, including refugees and expellees, who, on 8 May, 1945, were entitled to a pension and who no longer receive any such pension or any commensurate pension for reasons other than those arising from civil service regulations or collective agreement rules. Until the pertinent Federal statute comes into force, no legal claims can be made, unless otherwise provided by State legislation.

132. Temporary Revocation of Public Service Rights

(1) Civil servants and Judges who, when this Constitution comes into force are appointed for life, may, within six months after the first assembly of the House of Representatives, be retired or temporarily retired or be given a different office with lower remuneration where they lack the personal or professional aptitude for their present office. This provision applies mutatis mutandis also to salaried public employees, other than civil servants or Judges, whose service cannot be terminated by notice. Where, however, such service can be terminated by notice, periods of notice in excess of the periods fixed by collective agreement rules may be cancelled within the six months referred to above.

(2) The preceding provision does not apply to members of the public service who are not affected by the provisions regarding the "Liberation from National Socialism and Militarism" or who are recognized victims of National Socialism, except on important grounds relating to themselves as individuals.

(3) Those affected may have recourse to the courts in accordance with Article 19 (4).

(4) Details are specified by an Ordinance of the Government requiring the consent of the Senate.

133. Bi-zonal Economic Administration

The Federation succeeds to the rights and obligations of the Bi-zonal Economic Administration.

134. Reich Property to become Federal Property

(1) Reich property on principle becomes Federal property.

(2) Insofar as such property was originally intended to be used predominantly for administrative tasks which, under this Constitution, are not administrative tasks of the Federation, it is transferred without compensation to the agencies now charged with such tasks, and to the States insofar as it is being used at present, and not merely temporarily, for administrative tasks which under this Constitution are now within the administrative competence of the States. The Federation may also transfer other property to the States.

(3) Property which was placed at the disposal of the Reich by States or communes or associations of communes without compensation again becomes the property of such States or communes or associations of communes, insofar as it is not required by the Federation for its own administrative tasks

(4) Details are regulated by a Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate

135. Succession to Property of Old States and Corporate Bodies

(1) Where after 8 May 1945 and before the coming into force of this Constitution an area has passed from one State to another, the State to which the area now belongs is entitled to the property located therein of the State to which it belonged

(2) Property of States or corporate bodies or institutions under public law which no longer exist passes, insofar as it was originally intended to be used predominantly for administrative tasks or is being used at present, and not merely temporarily, predominantly for administrative tasks, to the State or the corporate body or institution under public law which now discharges these tasks

(3) Real estate of States which no longer exist, including appurtenances, passes to the State within which it is located, insofar as it is not included among property within the meaning of paragraph (1)

(4) Where an overriding interest of the Federation or the particular interest of an area so requires, a settlement other than in paragraphs (1) to (3) may be effected by Federal legislation

(5) In all other respects, the succession in title and the settlement of the property, insofar as it has not been effected before 1 January 1952 by agreement between the States or corporate bodies or institutions under public law concerned, is regulated by Federal legislation requiring the consent of the Senate

(6) Interests of the former State of Prussia in enterprises under private law passes to the Federation. A Federal statute, which may also diverge from this provision, regulates the details

(7) Insofar as property which on the coming into force of this Constitution would devolve upon a State or a corporate body or institution under public law pursuant to paragraphs (1) to (3) has been disposed of through or by virtue of a State law or in any other manner by the party thus entitled, the transfer of the property is deemed to have taken place before such disposition

135a. Old Liabilities

(1) The legislation reserved to the Federation in Article 134 (4) and in Article 135 (5) may also stipulate that the following liabilities are not discharged, or not to their full extent

1 Liabilities of the Reich or liabilities of the former State of Prussia or liabilities of such corporate bodies and institutions under public law as no longer exist,

2 such liabilities of the Federation or corporate bodies and institutions under public law as are connected with the transfer of properties pursuant to Articles 89, 90, 134 or 135, and such liabilities of these entities as arise from measures taken by the entities mentioned under number 1,

3 such liabilities of States or communes or associations of communes as have arisen from measures taken by these legal entities before 1 August 1945 within the framework of administrative functions incumbent upon or delegated by the Reich to comply with regulations of occupying powers or to put an end to a State of emergency due to the war

(2) Paragraph (1) above applies mutatis mutandis to liabilities of the German Democratic Republic or its legal entities as well as to liabilities of the Federation or other corporate bodies and institutions under public law which are connected with the transfer of properties of the German Democratic Republic to the Federation, States and communes, and to liabilities arising from measures taken by the German Democratic Republic or its legal entities

136. First assembly of the Senate

(1) The Senate assembles for the first time on the day of the first assembly of the House of Representatives

(2) Until the election of the first President, his powers are exercised by the President of the Senate. He does not have the right to dissolve the House of Representatives

137. Right of Civil Servants to stand for Election

(1) The right of civil servants, of other salaried public employees, of professional soldiers, of temporary volunteer soldiers or of Judges to stand for election in the Federation, in the States or in the communes may be restricted by legislation

(2) The electoral statute to be adopted by the Parliamentary Council applies to the election of the first House of Representatives, of the first Federal Convention and of the first President of the Federal Republic

(3) The function of the Federal Constitutional Court pursuant to Article 41 (2), pending its establishment, is exercised by the German High Court for the Combined Economic Area, which decides in accordance with its rules of procedure

138. Southern German Notaries

Changes in notarial institutions as presently existing in the States of Baden, Bavaria, Wuerttemberg-Baden and Wuerttemberg-Hohenzollern require the consent of the Governments of these States

139. Continued Validity of Denazification Provisions

The legislation enacted for the "Liberation of the German People from National Socialism and Militarism" is not affected by the provisions of this Constitution

140. Law of Religious Bodies

The provisions of Articles 136, 137, 138, 139 and 141 of the German Constitution of 11 August 1919 are integral parts of this Constitution

141. "Bremen Clause"

Article 7 (3) 1 does not be applied in any State in which different provisions of State law were in force on 1 January 1949

142. Basic Rights in State Constitutions

Notwithstanding the provision of Article 31, such provisions of State Constitutions also remain in force as guarantee basic rights in conformity with Articles 1 to 18 of this Constitution

142a. {...}*143. Limitation of Deviations

(1) Law in the territory specified in Article 3 of the Unification Treaty may deviate from provisions of this Constitution for a period not extending beyond 31 December 1992 in so far as and as long as no complete adjustment to the order of the Constitution can be achieved as a consequence of the different conditions. Deviations must not violate Article 19 (2) and must be compatible with the principles set out in Article 79 (3)

(2) Deviations from sections II, VIII, VIIIa, IX, X and XI are permissible for a period not extending beyond 31 December 1995

(3) Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2) above, Article 41 of the Unification Treaty and the rules for its implementation remain valid in so far as they provide for the irreversibility of intrusion on property in the territory specified in Article 3 of the said Treaty

143a. Changes of Railroad Administration

(1) The Federation has exclusive legislation in all matters arising from the transformation of railroads of the Federation from direct Federal administration to businesses. Article 87e (5) is applicable mutatis mutandis. Officials of railroads of the Federation can, by statute preserving their legal position and the responsibility of their former employer, be assigned to work at railroads of the Federation organized under private law

(2) Statutes according to paragraph (2) are administered by the Federation

(3) The discharge of all duties in the area of local railway transport of persons by former railroads of the Federation is a responsibility of the Federation until 31 December 1995. This provision applies mutatis mutandis for tasks of railway traffic administration. Details are regulated by Federal statute requiring the consent of the Senate

143b. Businesses of the Former Deutsche Bundespost

(1) The special property Deutsche Bundespost will be transformed into private law businesses according to a Federal statute. The Federation has exclusive legislation over all related matters

(2) Exclusive rights of the Federation prior to the transformation can be delegated preliminarily to businesses originating in the Deutsche Bundespost POSTDIENST and Deutsche Bundespost TELEKOM. The Federation may acquire the majority of shares in the business originating in the Deutsche Bundespost POSTDIENST no earlier than five years after enacting the statute. For this measure, a Federal statute with consent of the Senate is required.

(3) Federal officers of the Deutsche Bundespost are being employed by the businesses preserving their legal position and the responsibility of their former employer. These businesses exercise the rights of the former employer. Details are regulated by Federal statute.

144. Ratification of the Constitution

(1) This Constitution requires ratification by the parliaments of two thirds of the German States in which it is for the time being to apply.

(2) Insofar as the applications of this Constitution is subject to restrictions in any State listed in Article 23 or in any part thereof, such State or part thereof has the right to send representatives to the House of Representatives in accordance with Article 38 and to the Senate in accordance with Article 50.

145. Promulgation of the Constitution

(1) The Parliamentary Council confirms in public session, with the participation of the deputies of Greater Berlin, the fact of ratification of this Constitution and signs and promulgates it.

(2) This Constitution comes into force at the end of the day of promulgation.

(3) It is published in the Federal Law Gazette.

146. Duration of validity of the Constitution

This Constitution, which is valid for the entire German people following the achievement of the unity and freedom of Germany, ceases to be in force on the day on which a constitution adopted by a free decision of the German people comes into force.

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

PREAMBLE

WE, THE PEOPLE OF INDIA, having solemnly resolved to constitute India into a SOVEREIGN, SOCIALIST, SECULAR, DEMOCRATIC, REPUBLIC and to secure to all its citizens

JUSTICE, social, economic and political,

LIBERTY of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship,

EQUALITY of status and of opportunity, and to promote among them all,

FRATERNITY assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity and integrity of the Nation,

IN OUR CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY this twenty-sixth day of November, 1949, do HEREBY ADOPT, ENACT AND GIVE TO OURSELVES THIS CONSTITUTION.

THE UNION AND ITS TERRITORY

1. Name and territory of the Union

- (1) India, that is Bharat, shall be a Union of States
- (2) The States and the territories thereof shall be as specified in the First Schedule
- (3) The territory of India shall comprise—
  - (a) The territories of the States,
  - (b) the Union territories specified in the First Schedule, and
  - (c) such other territories as may be acquired

2. Admission or establishment of new States

Parliament may by law admit into the Union, or establish, new States on such terms and conditions, as it thinks fit

2A. Sikkim to be associated with the Union

[Rep. by the Constitution (Thirty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1975, sect. 5 (w e f 26-4-1975) ]

3. Formation of new States and alteration of areas, boundaries or names of existing States

Parliament may by law —

(a) form a new State by separation of territory from any State or by uniting two or more States or parts of States or by uniting any territory to a part of any State,

(b) increase the area of any State,

(c) diminish the area of any State,

(d) alter the boundaries of any State,

(e) alter the name of any State

Provided that no Bill for the purpose shall be introduced in either House of Parliament except on the recommendation of the President and unless, where the proposal contained in the Bill affects the area, boundaries or name of any of the States, the Bill has been referred by the President to the Legislature of that State for expressing its views thereon within such period as may be specified in the reference or within such further period as the President may allow and the period so specified or allowed has expired

Explanation I—In this article, in clauses (a) to (e), "State" includes a Union territory, but in the proviso, "State" does not include a Union territory

Explanation II—The power conferred on Parliament by clause (a) includes the power to form a new State or Union territory by uniting a part of any State or Union territory to any other State or Union territory

4. Laws made under articles 2 and 3 to provide for the amendment of the First and the Fourth Schedules and supplemental, incidental and consequential matters

(1) Any law referred to in article 2 or article 3 shall contain such provisions for the amendment of the First Schedule and the Fourth Schedule as may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of the law and may also contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to representation in Parliament and in the Legislature or Legislatures of the State or States affected by such law) as Parliament may deem necessary

(2) No such law as aforesaid shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368

PART II

5. Citizenship at the commencement of the Constitution

At the commencement of this Constitution every person who has his domicile in the territory of India and

- (a) who was born in the territory of India, or
  - (b) either of whose parents was born in the territory of India, or
  - (c) who has been ordinarily resident in the territory of India for not less than five years preceding such commencement,
- shall be a citizen of India

6. Rights of citizenship of certain persons who have migrated to India from Pakistan

Notwithstanding anything in article 5, a person who has migrated to the territory of India from the territory now included in Pakistan shall be deemed to be a citizen of India at the commencement of this Constitution if—

(a) he or either of his parents or any of his grand-parents was born in India as defined in the Government of India Act, 1935 (as originally enacted), and

(b) (i) in the case where such person has so migrated before the nineteenth day of July, 1948, he has been ordinarily resident in the territory of India since the date of his migration, or

(ii) in the case where such person has so migrated on or after the nineteenth day of July, 1948, he has been registered as a citizen of India by an officer appointed in that behalf by the Government of the Dominion of India on an application made by him therefor to such officer before the commencement of this Constitution in the form and manner prescribed by that Government

Provided that no person shall be so registered unless he has been resident in the territory of India for at least six months immediately preceding the date of his application

7. Rights of citizenship of certain migrants to Pakistan

Notwithstanding anything in articles 5 and 6, a person who has after the first day of March, 1947, migrated from the territory of India to the territory now included in Pakistan shall not be deemed to be a citizen of India

Provided that nothing in this article shall apply to a person who, after having so migrated to the territory now included in Pakistan, has returned to the territory of India under a permit for resettlement or permanent return issued by or under the authority of any law and every such person shall for the purposes of clause (b) of article 6 be deemed to have migrated to the territory of India after the nineteenth day of July, 1948

8. Rights of citizenship of certain persons of Indian origin residing outside India

Notwithstanding anything in article 5, any person who or either of whose parents or any of whose grand-parents was born in India as defined in the Government of India Act, 1935 (as originally enacted), and who is ordinarily residing in any country outside India as so defined shall be deemed to be a citizen of India if he has been registered as a citizen of India by the diplomatic or consular representative of India in the country where he is for the time being residing on an application made by him therefor to such diplomatic or consular representative, whether before or after the commencement of this Constitution, in the form and manner prescribed by the Government of the Dominion of India or the Government of India

9. Persons voluntarily acquiring citizenship of a foreign State not to be citizens

No person shall be a citizen of India by virtue of article 5, or be deemed to be a citizen of India by virtue of article 6 or article 8, if he has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of any foreign State

10. Continuance of the rights of citizenship

Every person who is or is deemed to be a citizen of India under any of the foregoing provisions of this Part shall, subject to the provisions of any law that may be made by Parliament, continue to be such citizen

11. Parliament to regulate the right of citizenship by law

Nothing in the foregoing provisions of this Part shall derogate from the power of Parliament to make any provision with respect to the acquisition and termination of citizenship and all other matters relating to citizenship

PART V THE UNION

CHAPTER I THE EXECUTIVE

The President and Vice-President

52. The President of India

There shall be a President of India

53. Executive power of the Union

(1) The executive power of the Union shall be vested in the President and shall be exercised by him either directly or through officers subordinate to him in accordance with this Constitution

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the supreme command of the Defence Forces of the Union shall be vested in the President and the exercise thereof shall be regulated by law.

(3) Nothing in this article shall—

(a) be deemed to transfer to the President any functions conferred by any existing law on the Government of any State or other authority, or

(b) prevent Parliament from conferring by law functions on authorities other than the President.

54. Election of President

The President shall be elected by the members of an electoral college consisting of—

(a) the elected members of both Houses of Parliament; and

(b) the elected members of the Legislative Assemblies of the States

Explanation—In this article and in article 55, “State” includes the National Capital Territory of Delhi and the Union Territory of Pondicherry.

55. Manner of election of President

(1) As far as practicable, there shall be uniformity in the scale of representation of the different States at the election of the President

(2) For the purpose of securing such uniformity among the States inter se as well as parity between the States as a whole and the Union, the number of votes which each elected member of Parliament and of the Legislative Assembly of each State is entitled to cast at such election shall be determined in the following manner.—

(a) every elected member of the Legislative Assembly of a State shall have as many votes as there are multiples of one thousand in the quotient obtained by dividing the population of the State by the total number of the elected members of the Assembly,

(b) if, after taking the said multiples of one thousand, the remainder is not less than five hundred, then the vote of each member referred to in sub-clause (a) shall be further increased by one,

(c) each elected member of either House of Parliament shall have such number of votes as may be obtained by dividing the total number of votes assigned to the members of the Legislative Assemblies of the States under sub-clauses (a) and (b) by the total number of the elected members of both Houses of Parliament, fractions exceeding one-half being counted as one and other fractions being disregarded

(3) The election of the President shall be held in accordance with the system of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote and the voting at such election shall be by secret ballot

Explanation—In this article, the expression “population” means the population ascertained at the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published:

Provided that the reference in this Explanation to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published shall, until the relevant figures for the first census taken after the year 2000 have been published, be construed as a reference to the 1971 census

56. Term of office of President

(1) The President shall hold office for a term of five years from the date on which he enters upon his office

Provided that—

(a) the President may, by writing under his hand addressed to the Vice-President, resign his office,

(b) the President may, for violation of the Constitution, be removed from office by impeachment in the manner provided in article 61

(c) the President shall, notwithstanding the expiration of his term, continue to hold office until his successor enters upon his office

(2) Any resignation addressed to the Vice-President under clause (a) of the proviso to clause (1) shall forthwith be communicated by him to the Speaker of the House of the People

57. Eligibility for re-election

A person who holds, or who has held, office as President shall, subject to the other provisions of this Constitution, be eligible for re-election to that office.

58. Qualifications for election as President

(1) No person shall be eligible for election as President unless he—

(a) is a citizen of India,

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and the rules and standing orders regulating the procedure of Parliament, there shall be freedom of speech in Parliament

(2) No member of Parliament shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in Parliament or any committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of either House of Parliament of any report, paper, votes or proceedings

(3) In other respects, the powers, privileges and immunities of each House of Parliament, and of the members and the committees of each House, shall be such as may from time to time be defined by Parliament by law, and, until so defined, shall be those of that House and of its members and committees immediately before the coming into force of section 15 of the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act 1978

(4) The provisions of clauses (1), (2) and (3) shall apply in relation to persons who by virtue of this Constitution have the right to speak in, and otherwise to take part in the proceedings of, a House of Parliament or any committee thereof as they apply in relation to members of Parliament

106. Salaries and allowances of members

Members of either House of Parliament shall be entitled to receive such salaries and allowances as may from time to time be determined by Parliament by law and, until provision in that respect is so made, allowances at such rates and upon such conditions as were immediately before the commencement of this Constitution applicable in the case of members of the Constituent Assembly of the Dominion of India

*Legislative Procedure107. Provisions as to introduction and passing of Bills

(1) Subject to the provisions of articles 109 and 117 with respect to Money Bills and other financial Bills, a Bill may originate in either House of Parliament

(2) Subject to the provisions of articles 108 and 109, a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the Houses of Parliament unless it has been agreed to by both Houses, either without amendment or with such amendments only as are agreed by both Houses

(3) A Bill pending in Parliament shall not lapse by reason of the prorogation of the Houses

(4) A Bill pending in the Council of States which has not been passed by the House of the People shall not lapse on a dissolution of the House of the People

(5) A Bill which is pending in the House of the People, or which having been passed by the House of the People is pending in the Council of States, shall subject to the provisions of article 108, lapse on a dissolution of the House of the People

108 Joint sitting of both Houses in certain cases

(1) If after a Bill has been passed by one House and transmitted to the other House—

(a) the Bill is rejected by the other House, or

(b) the Houses have finally disagreed as to the amendments to be made in the Bill, or

(c) more than six months elapse from the date of the reception of the Bill by the other House without the Bill being passed by it

The President may, unless the Bill has lapsed by reason of a dissolution of the House of the People, notify to the Houses by message if they are sitting or by public notification if they are not sitting, his intention to summon them to meet in a joint sitting for the purpose of deliberating and voting on the Bill

Provided that nothing in this clause shall apply to a Money Bill

(2) In reckoning any such period of six months as is referred to in clause (1), no account shall be taken of any period during which the House referred to in sub-clause (c) of that clause is prorogued or adjourned for more than four consecutive days

(3) Where the President has under clause (1) notified his intention of summoning the Houses to meet in a joint sitting, neither House shall proceed further with the Bill, but the President may at any time after the date of his notification summon the Houses to meet in a joint sitting for the purpose specified in the notification and, if he does so, the Houses shall meet accordingly

(4) If at the joint sitting of the two Houses the Bill, with such amendments, if any, as are agreed to in joint sitting, is passed by a majority of the total number of members of both Houses present and voting, it shall be deemed for the purposes of this Constitution to have been passed by both Houses

Provided that at a joint sitting—

(a) if the Bill, having been passed by one House, has not been passed by the other House with amendments and returned to the House in which it originated, no amendment shall be proposed to the Bill other than such amendments (if any) as are made necessary by the delay in the passage of the Bill,

(b) if the Bill has been so passed and returned, only such amendments as aforesaid shall be proposed to the Bill and such other amendments as are relevant to the matters with respect to which the Houses have not agreed, and the decision of the person presiding as to the amendments which are admissible under this clause shall be final

(5) A joint sitting may be held under this article and a Bill passed thereat, notwithstanding that a dissolution of the House of the People has intervened since the President notified his intention to summon the Houses to meet therein

109. Special procedure in respect of Money Bills

(1) A Money Bill shall not be introduced in the Council of States

(2) After a Money Bill has been passed by the House of the People it shall be transmitted to the Council of States for its recommendations and the Council of States shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the House of the People with its recommendations and the House of the People may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Council of States

(3) If the House of the People accepts any of the recommendations of the Council of States, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Council of States and accepted by the House of the People

(4) If the House of the People does not accept any of the recommendations of the Council of States, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses in the form in which it was passed by the House of the People without any of the amendments recommended by the Council of States

(5) If a Money Bill passed by the House of the People and transmitted to the Council of States for its recommendations is not returned to the House of the People within the said period of fourteen days, it shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses at the expiration of the said period in the form in which it was passed by the House of the People

110. Definition of "Money Bill"

(1) For the purposes of this Chapter, a Bill shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if it contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely —

(a) the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax,

(b) the regulation of the borrowing of money or the giving of any guarantee by the Government of India, or the amendment of the law with respect to any financial obligations undertaken or to be undertaken by the Government of India,

(c) the custody of the Consolidated Fund or the Contingency Fund of India, the payment of moneys into or the withdrawal of moneys from any such Fund,

(d) the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India,

(e) the declaring of any expenditure to be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or the increasing of the amount of any such expenditure,

(f) the receipt of money on account of the Consolidated Fund of India or the public account of India or the custody or issue of such money or the audit of the accounts of the Union or of a State, or

(g) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f)

(2) A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(3) If any question arises whether a Bill is a Money Bill or not, the decision of the Speaker of the House of the People thereon shall be final

(4) There shall be endorsed on every Money Bill when it is transmitted to the Council of States under article 109, and when it is presented to the President for assent under article 111, the certificate of the Speaker of the House of the People signed by him that it is a Money Bill

111. Assent to Bills

When a Bill has been passed by the Houses of Parliament, it shall be presented to the President, and the President shall declare either that he assents to the Bill, or that he withholds assent therefrom

Provided that the President may, as soon as possible after the presentation to him of a Bill for assent, return the Bill if it is not a Money Bill to the Houses with a message requesting that they will reconsider the Bill or any specified provisions thereof and, in particular, will consider the desirability of introducing any such amendments as he may recommend in his message, and when a Bill is so returned, the Houses shall reconsider the Bill accordingly, and if the Bill is passed again by the Houses with or without amendment and presented to the President for assent, the President shall not withhold assent therefrom

*Procedures in Financial Matters112. Annual financial statement

(1) The President shall in respect of every financial year cause to be laid before both the Houses of Parliament a statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Government of India for that year, in this Part referred to as the "annual financial statement"

(2) The estimates of expenditure embodied in the annual financial statement shall show separately

(a) the sums required to meet expenditure described by this Constitution as expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India, and

(b) the sums required to meet other expenditure proposed to be made from the Consolidated Fund of India, and shall distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure

(3) The following expenditure shall be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India —

(a) the emoluments and allowances of the President and other expenditure relating to his office,

(b) the salaries and allowances of the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman of the Council of States and the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker of the House of the People,

(c) debt charges for which the Government of India is liable including interest, sinking fund charges and redemption charges, and other expenditure relating to the raising of loans and the service and redemption of debt,

(d) (i) the salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of Judges of the Supreme Court,

(ii) the pensions payable to or in respect of Judges of the Federal Court,

(iii) the pensions payable to or in respect of Judges of any High Court which exercises jurisdiction in relation to any area included in the territory of India or which at any time before the commencement of this Constitution exercises jurisdiction in relation to any area included in a Governor's Province of the Dominion of India,

(e) the salary, allowances and pension payable to or in respect of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India,

(f) any sums required to satisfy any judgment, decree or award of any court or arbitral tribunal,

(g) any other expenditure declared by this Constitution or by Parliament by law to be so charged

113. Procedure in Parliament with respect to estimates

(1) So much of the estimates as relates to expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India shall not be submitted to the vote of Parliament, but nothing in this clause shall be construed as preventing the discussion in either House of Parliament of any of those estimates

(2) So much of the said estimates as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted in the form of demands for grants to the House of the People, and the House of the People shall have power to assent, or to refuse to assent, to any demand, or to assent to any demand subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the President

114. Appropriation Bills

(1) As soon as may be after the grants under article 113 have been made by the House of the People, there shall be introduced a Bill to provide for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of India of all moneys required to meet—

(a) the grants so made by the House of the People, and

(b) the expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India but not exceeding in any case the amount shown in the statement previously laid before Parliament

(2) No amendment shall be proposed to any such Bill in either House of Parliament which will have the effect of varying the amount or altering the destination of any grant so made or of varying the amount of any expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India, and the decision of the person presiding as to whether an amendment is inadmissible under this clause shall be final

(3) Subject to the provisions of articles 115 and 116, no money shall be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund of India except under appropriation made by law passed in accordance with the provisions of this article

115. Supplementary, additional or excess grants

(1) The President shall—

(a) If the amount authorised by any law made in accordance with the provisions of article 114 to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is found to be insufficient for the purposes of that year or when a need has arisen during the current financial year for supplementary or additional expenditure upon some new service not contemplated in the annual financial statement for that year, or

(b) if any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service and for that year, cause to be laid before both the Houses of Parliament another statement showing the estimated amount of that expenditure or cause to be presented to the House of the People a demand for such excess, as the case may be

(2) The provisions of articles 112, 113 and 114 shall have effect in relation to any such statement and expenditure or demand and also to any law to be made authorising the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated

Fund of India to meet such expenditure or the grant in respect of such demand as they have effect in relation to the annual financial statement and the expenditure mentioned therein or to a demand for a grant and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India to meet such expenditure or grant

116. Votes on account, votes of credit and exceptional grants

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, the House of the People shall have power—

(a) to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year pending the completion of the procedure prescribed in article 113 for the voting of such grant and the passing of the law in accordance with the provisions of article 114 in relation to that expenditure,

(b) to make a grant for meeting an unexpected demand upon the resources of India when on account of the magnitude or the indefinite character of the service the demand cannot be stated with the details ordinarily given in an annual financial statement,

(c) to make an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current service of any financial year, and Parliament shall have power to authorise by law the withdrawal of moneys from the Consolidated Fund of India for the purposes for which the said grants are made

(2) The provisions of articles 113 and 114 shall have effect in relation to the making of any grant under clause (1) and to any law to be made under that clause as they have effect in relation to the making of a grant with regard to any expenditure mentioned in the annual financial statement and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India to meet such expenditure

117. Special provisions as to financial Bills

(1) A Bill or amendment making provision for any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f) of clause (1) of article 110 shall not be introduced or moved except on the recommendation of the President and a Bill making such provision shall not be introduced in the Council of States

Provided that no recommendation shall be required under this clause for the moving of an amendment making provision for the reduction or abolition of any tax

(2) A Bill or amendment shall not be deemed to make provision for any of the matters aforesaid by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(3) A Bill which, if enacted and brought into operation, would involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India shall not be passed by either House of Parliament unless the President has recommended to that House the consideration of the Bill

122. Courts not to inquire into proceedings of Parliament

(1) The validity of any proceedings in Parliament shall not be called in question on the ground of any alleged irregularity of procedure

(2) No officer or member of Parliament in whom powers are vested by or under this Constitution for regulating procedure or the conduct of business, or for maintaining order, in Parliament shall be subject to the jurisdiction of any court in respect of the exercise by him of those powers

CHAPTER III*LEGISLATIVE POWERS OF THE PRESIDENT*123. Power of President to promulgate Ordinances during recess of Parliament

(1) If at any time, except when both Houses of Parliament are in session, the President is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such Ordinance as the circumstances appear to him to require

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of Parliament, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of Parliament, or, if before the expiration of that period resolutions disapproving it are passed by both Houses, upon the passing of the second of those resolutions, and

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the President

Explanation—Where the Houses of Parliament are summoned to reassemble on different dates, the period of six weeks shall be reckoned from the later of those dates for the purposes of this clause

(3) If and so far as an Ordinance under this article makes any provision which Parliament would not under this Constitution be competent to enact, it shall be void

CHAPTER IV*THE UNION JUDICIARY*124. Establishment and Constitution of Supreme Court

(1) There shall be a Supreme Court of India consisting of a Chief Justice of India and, until Parliament by law prescribes a larger number, of not more than seven* other Judges

(2) Every Judge of the Supreme Court shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand and seal after consultation with such of the Judges of the Supreme Court and of the High Courts in the States as the President may deem necessary for the purpose and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-five years

Provided that in the case of appointment of a Judge other than the Chief Justice, the Chief Justice of India shall always be consulted

Provided further that—

(a) a Judge may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office,

(b) a Judge may be removed from his office in the manner provided in clause (4).

(2A) The age of a Judge of the Supreme Court shall be determined by such authority and in such manner as Parliament may by law provide

(3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court unless he is a citizen of India and—

(a) has been for at least five years a Judge of a High Court or of two or more such Courts in succession, or

(b) has been for at least ten years an advocate of a High Court or of two or more such courts in succession, or

(c) is, in the opinion of the President, a distinguished jurist

Explanation I —In this clause "High Court" means a High Court which exercises, or which at any time before the commencement of this Constitution exercised, jurisdiction in any part of the territory of India

Explanation II —In computing for the purpose of this clause the period during which a person has been an advocate, any period during which a person has held judicial office not inferior to that of a district Judge after he became an advocate shall be included

(4) A Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be removed from his office except by an order of the President passed after an address by each House of Parliament supported by a majority of the total membership of that House and by a majority of not less than two-third of the members of the House present and voting has been presented to the President in the same session for such removal on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity

(5) Parliament may by law regulate the procedure for the presentation of an address and for the investigation and proof of the misbehaviour or incapacity of a Judge under clause (4)

(6) Every person appointed to be a Judge of the Supreme Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the President, or some person appointed in that behalf by him, an oath or affirmation according to the form set out for the purpose in the Third Schedule

(7) No person who has held office as a Judge of the Supreme Court shall plead or act in any court or before any authority within the territory of India

125. Salaries, etc., of Judges

(1) There shall be paid to the Judges of the Supreme Court such salaries as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until provision in that behalf is so made, such salaries as are specified in the Second Schedule.

(2) Every Judge shall be entitled to such privileges and allowances and to such rights in respect of leave of absence and pension as may from time to time be determined by or under law made by Parliament and, until so determined, to such privileges, allowances and rights as are specified in the Second Schedule

Provided that neither the privileges nor the allowances of a Judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

126. Appointment of acting Chief Justice

When the office of Chief Justice of India is vacant or when the Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or otherwise, unable to perform the duties of his office, the duties of the office shall be performed by such one of the other Judges of the Court as the President may appoint for the purpose.

127. Appointment of ad hoc Judges

(1) If at any time there should not be a quorum of the Judges of the Supreme Court available to hold or continue any session of the Court, the Chief Justice of India may, with the previous consent of the President and after consultation with the Chief Justice of the High Court concerned, request in writing the attendance at the sittings of the Court, as an ad hoc Judge, for such period as may be necessary, of a Judge of a High Court duly qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court to be designated by the Chief Justice of India

(2) It shall be the duty of the Judge who has been so designated, in priority to other duties of his office, to attend the sittings of the Supreme Court at the time and for the period for which his attendance is required, and while so attending he shall have all the jurisdiction, powers and privileges, and shall discharge the duties, of a Judge of the Supreme Court

128. Attendance of retired Judges at sittings of the Supreme Court

Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, the Chief Justice of India may at any time, with the previous consent of the President, request any person who has held the office of a Judge of the Supreme Court or of the Federal Court or who has held the office of a Judge of a High Court and is duly qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court to sit and act as a Judge of the Supreme Court, and every such person so requested shall, while so sitting and acting, be entitled to such allowances as the President may by order determine and have all the jurisdiction, powers and privileges of, but shall not otherwise be deemed to be, a Judge of that Court

Provided that nothing in this article shall be deemed to require any such person as aforesaid to sit and act as a Judge of that Court unless he consents so to do

129. Supreme Court to be a court of record

The Supreme Court shall be a court of record and shall have all the powers of such a court including the power to punish for contempt of itself

The Supreme Court shall sit in Delhi or in such other place or places, as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the President, from time to time, appoint

131. Original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Supreme Court shall, to the exclusion of any other court, have original jurisdiction in any dispute—

- (a) between the Government of India and one or more States, or
- (b) between the Government of India and any State or States on one side and one or more other States on the other, or
- (c) between two or more States,

if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends

Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to a dispute arising out of any treaty, agreement, covenant, engagement, named or other similar instrument which, having been entered into or executed before the commencement of this Constitution, continues in operation after such commencement, or which provides that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to such a dispute

131A. Exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in regard to question as to constitutional validity of Central Laws

[Rep by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 4 (w e f 13 4 1978 )]

132. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in appeals from High Courts in certain cases

(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in the territory of India, whether in a civil, criminal or other proceeding, if the High Court certifies under article 134A that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution

(3) Where such a certificate is given, any party in the case may appeal to the Supreme Court on the ground that any such question as aforesaid has been wrongly decided

Explanation—For the purposes of this article, the expression “final order” includes an order deciding an issue which, if decided in favour of the appellant, would be sufficient for the final disposal of the case

133. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in appeals from High Courts in regard to civil matters

(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, decree or final order in a civil proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India if the High Court certifies under article 134A—

(a) that the case involves a substantial question of law of general importance, and

(b) that in the opinion of the High Court the said question needs to be decided by the Supreme Court

(2) Notwithstanding anything in article 132, any party appealing to the Supreme Court under clause (1) may urge as one of the grounds in such appeal that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution has been wrongly decided

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this article, no appeal shall, unless Parliament by law otherwise provides, lie to the Supreme Court from the judgment, decree or final order of one Judge of a High Court

134. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in regard to criminal matters

(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, final order or sentence in a criminal proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India if the High Court—

(a) has on appeal reversed an order of acquittal of an accused person and sentenced him to death, or

(b) has withdrawn for trial before itself any case from any court subordinate to its authority and has in such trial convicted the accused person and sentenced him to death, or

(c) certifies under article 134A that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Supreme Court

Provided that an appeal under sub-clause (c) shall lie subject to such provisions as may be made in that behalf under clause (1) of article 145 and to such conditions as the High Court may establish or require

(2) Parliament may by law confer on the Supreme Court any further powers to entertain and hear appeals from any judgment, final order or sentence in a criminal proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India subject to such conditions and limitations as may be specified in such law

134A. Certificate for appeal to the Supreme Court

Every High Court, passing or making a judgment, decree, final order, or sentence, referred to in clause (1) of article 132 or clause (1) of article 133, or clause (1) of article 134,—

(a) may, if it deems fit so to do, on its own motion, and

(b) shall, if an oral application is made, by or on behalf of the party aggrieved, immediately after the passing or making of such judgment, decree, final order or sentence, determine, as soon as may be after such passing or making, the question whether a certificate of the nature referred to in clause (1) of article 132, or clause (1) of article 133 or, as the case may be, sub-clause (c) of clause (1) of article 134, may be given in respect of that case

135. Jurisdiction and powers of the Federal Court under existing law to be exercisable by the Supreme Court

Until Parliament by law otherwise provides, the Supreme Court shall also have jurisdiction and powers with respect to any matter to which the provisions of article 133 or article 134 do not apply if jurisdiction and powers in relation to that matter were exercisable by the Federal Court immediately before the commencement of this Constitution under any existing law.

136. Special leave to appeal by the Supreme Court

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, the Supreme Court may, in its discretion, grant special leave to appeal from any judgment, decree, determination, sentence or order in any cause or matter passed or made by any court or tribunal in the territory of India

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply to any judgment, determination, sentence or order passed or made by any court or tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces.

137. Review of judgments or orders by the Supreme Court

Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament or any rules made under article 145, the Supreme Court shall have power to review any judgment pronounced or order made by it

138. Enlargement of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

(1) The Supreme Court shall have such further jurisdiction and powers with respect to any of the matters in the Union List as Parliament may by law confer

(2) The Supreme Court shall have such further jurisdiction, and powers with respect to any matter as the Government of India and the Government of any State may by special agreement confer, if Parliament by law provides for the exercise of such jurisdiction and powers by the Supreme Court.

139. Conferment on the Supreme Court of powers to issue certain writs

Parliament may by law confer on the Supreme Court power to issue directions, orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, *quo warrant*o and certiorari, or any of them, for any purposes other than those mentioned in clause (2) of article 32

139A. Transfer of certain cases

(1) Where cases involving the same or substantially the same questions of law are pending before the Supreme Court and one or more High Courts or before two or more High Courts and the Supreme Court is satisfied on its own motion or on an application made by the Attorney-General of India or by a party to any such case that such questions are substantial questions of general importance, the Supreme Court may withdraw the case or cases pending before the High Court or the High Courts and dispose of all the cases itself

Provided that the Supreme Court may after determining the said questions of law return any case so withdrawn together with a copy of its judgment on such questions to the High Court from which the case has been withdrawn, and the High Court shall on receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with such judgment

(2) The Supreme Court may, if it deems it expedient so to do for the ends of justice, transfer any case, appeal or other proceedings pending before any High Court to any other High Court

140. Ancillary powers of Supreme Court

Parliament may by law make provision for conferring upon the Supreme Court such supplemental powers not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Constitution as may appear to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of enabling the Court more effectively to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Constitution

141. Law declared by Supreme Court to be binding on all courts

The law declared by the Supreme Court shall be binding on all courts within the territory of India

142. Enforcement of decrees and orders of Supreme Court and orders as to discovery, etc.

(1) The Supreme Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction may pass such decree or make such order as is necessary for doing complete justice in any cause or matter pending before it, and any decree so passed or order so made shall be enforceable throughout the territory of India in such manner as may be prescribed by or under any law made by Parliament and, until provision in that behalf is so made, in such manner as the President may by order prescribe

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made in this behalf by Parliament, the Supreme Court shall, as respects the whole of the territory of India, have all and every power to make any order for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person, the discovery or production of any documents, or the investigation or punishment of any contempt of itself

143. Power of President to consult Supreme Court

(1) If at any time it appears to the President that a question of law or fact has arisen, or is likely to arise, which is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court upon it, he may refer the question to that Court for consideration and the Court may, after such hearing as it thinks fit, report to the President its opinion thereon

(2) The President may, notwithstanding anything in the proviso to article 131, refer a dispute of the kind mentioned in the said proviso to the Supreme Court for opinion and the Supreme Court shall, after such hearing as it thinks fit, report to the President its opinion thereon

144. Civil and judicial authorities to act in aid of the Supreme Court

All authorities, civil and judicial, in the territory of India shall act in aid of the Supreme Court

144A. Special provisions as to disposal of questions relating to constitutional validity of laws

[Rep by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 5 (w e f 13 4 1978) ]

145. Rules of Court, etc

(1) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the Supreme Court may from time to time, with the approval of the President, make rules for regulating generally the practice and procedure of the Court including—

(a) rules as to the persons practising before the Court,

(b) rules as to the procedure for hearing appeals and other matters pertaining to appeals including the time within which appeals to the Court are to be entered,

(c) rules as to the proceedings in the Court for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III,

(cc) rules as to the proceedings in the Court under article 139A,

(d) rules as to the entertainment of appeals under sub-clause (c) of clause (1) of article 134,

(e) rules as to conditions subject to which any judgment pronounced or order made by the Court may be received and rules as to the conditions the procedure for such review including the time within which applications to the Court for such review are to be entered,

(f) rules as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings in the Court and as to the fees to be charged in respect of proceedings therein,

(g) rules as to the granting of bail,

(h) rules as to stay of proceedings,

(i) rules providing for the summary determination of any appeal which appears to the Court to be frivolous or vexatious or brought for the purpose of delay,

(j) rules as to the procedure for inquiries referred to in clause (1) of article 317

(2) Subject to the provisions of clause (3), rules made under this article may fix the minimum number of Judges who are to sit for any purpose, and may provide for the powers of single Judges and Division Courts

(3) The minimum number of Judges who are to sit for the purpose of deciding any case involving a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution or for the purpose of hearing any reference under article 143 shall be five

Provided that, where the Court hearing an appeal under any of the provisions of this Chapter other than article 132 consists of less than five Judges and in the course of the hearing of the appeal the Court is satisfied that the appeal involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the appeal, such Court shall refer the question for opinion to a Court constituted as required by this clause for the purpose of deciding any case involving such a question and shall on receipt of the opinion dispose of the appeal in conformity with such opinion

(4) No judgment shall be delivered by the Supreme Court save in open court, and no report shall be made under article 143 save in accordance with an opinion also delivered in open court

(5) No judgment and no such opinion shall be delivered by the Supreme Court save with the concurrence of a majority of the Judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this clause shall be deemed to prevent a Judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting judgment or opinion

146. Officers and servants and the expenses of the Supreme Court

(1) Appointments of officers and servants of the Supreme Court shall be made by the Chief Justice of India or such other Judge or officer of the Court as he may direct

Provided that the President may by rule require that in such cases as may be specified in the rule, no person not already attached to the Court shall be appointed to any office connected with the Court, save after consultation with the Union Public Service Commission

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service of officers and servants of the Supreme Court shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by the Chief Justice of India or by some other Judge or officer of the Court authorised by the Chief Justice of India to make rules for the purpose

Provided that the rules made under this clause shall, so far as they relate to salaries, allowances, leave or pensions, require the approval of the President

(3) The administrative expenses of the Supreme Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the offices and servants of the Court, shall be charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India, and any fees or other moneys taken by the Court shall form part of that Fund

147 Interpretation

In this Chapter and in Chapter V of Part VI references to any substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution shall be construed as including references to any substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act, 1935 (including any enactment amending or supplementing that Act), or of any Order in Council or order made thereunder, or of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of any order made thereunder

CHAPTER III THE STATE LEGISLATURE

General

168. Constitution of Legislatures in States

(1) For every State there shall be a Legislature which shall consist of the Governor, and —

(a) in the States of Bihar,, Maharashtra, Karnataka and Uttar Pradesh, two houses

(b) in other States, one House

(2) Where there are two Houses of the Legislature of a State, one shall be known as the Legislative Council and the other as the Legislative Assembly, and where there is only one House, it shall be known as the Legislative Assembly

169. Abolition or creation of Legislative Councils in States

(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 168, Parliament may by law provide for the abolition of the Legislative Council of a State having such a Council or for the creation of such a Council in a State having no such Council, if the Legislative Assembly of the State passes a resolution to that effect by a majority of the total membership of the Assembly and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of the Assembly present and voting

(2) Any law referred to in clause (1) shall contain such provisions for the amendment of this Constitution as may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of the law and may also contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions as Parliament may deem necessary

(3) No such law as aforesaid shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368

170. Composition of the Legislative Assemblies

(1) Subject to the provisions of article 333, the Legislative Assembly of each State shall consist of not more than five hundred, and not less than sixty, members chosen by direct election from territorial constituencies in the State

(2) For the purposes of clause (1), each State shall be divided into territorial constituencies in such manner that the ratio between the population of each constituency and the number of seats allotted to it shall, so far as practicable, be the same throughout the State

Explanation —In this clause, the expression "population" means the population as ascertained at the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published

Provided that the reference in this Explanation to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published shall, until the relevant figures for the first census taken after the year 2000 have been published, be construed as a reference to the 1971 census

(3) Upon the completion of each census, the total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of each State and the division of each State into territorial constituencies shall be readjusted by such authority and in such manner as Parliament may by law determine

Provided that such readjustment shall not affect representation in the Legislative Assembly until the dissolution of the then existing Assembly

Provided further that such readjustment shall take effect from such date as the President may, by order, specify and until such readjustment takes effect, any election to the Legislative Assembly may be held on the basis of the territorial constituencies existing before such readjustment

Provided also that until the relevant figures for the first census taken after the year 2000 have been published, it shall not be necessary to readjust the total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of each State and the division of such State into territorial constituencies under this clause

171. Composition of the Legislative Councils

189. Voting in Houses, power of Houses to act notwithstanding vacancies and quorum

(1) Save as otherwise provided in this Constitution, all questions at any sitting of a House of the Legislature of a State shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present and voting, other than the Speaker or Chairman, or person acting as such

The Speaker or Chairman, or person acting as such, shall not vote in the first instance, but shall have and exercise a casting vote in the case of an equality of votes

(2) A House of the Legislature of a State shall have power to act notwithstanding any vacancy in the membership thereof, and any proceedings in the Legislature of a State shall be valid notwithstanding that it is discovered subsequently that some person who was not entitled so to do sat or voted or otherwise took part in the proceedings

(3) Until the Legislature of the State by law otherwise provides, the quorum to constitute a meeting of a House of the Legislature of a State shall be ten members or one-tenth of the total number of members of the House, whichever is greater

(4) If at any time during a meeting of the Legislative Assembly or the Legislative Council of a State there is no quorum, it shall be the duty of the Speaker or Chairman, or person acting as such, either to adjourn the House or to suspend the meeting until there is a quorum

Disqualifications of Members

190. Vacation of seats

(1) No person shall be a member of both Houses of the Legislature of a State and provision shall be made by the Legislature of the State by law for the vacation by a person who is chosen a member of both Houses of his seat in one House or the other

(2) No person shall be a member of the Legislatures of two or more States specified in the First Schedule and if a person is chosen a member of the Legislatures of two or more such States, then, at the expiration of such period as may be specified in rules made by the President, that person's seat in the Legislatures of all such States shall become vacant, unless he has previously resigned his seat in the Legislatures of all but one of the States

(3) If a member of a House of the Legislature of a State—

(a) becomes subject to any of the disqualifications mentioned in clause (1) or clause (2) of article 191, or

(b) resigns his seat by writing under his hand addressed to the Speaker or the Chairman, as the case may be, and his resignation is accepted by the Speaker or the Chairman, as the case may be, his seat shall thereupon become vacant

Provided that in the case of any resignation referred to in sub-clause (b), if from information received or otherwise and after making such inquiry as he thinks fit, the Speaker or the Chairman, as the case may be, is satisfied that such resignation is not voluntary or genuine, he shall not accept such resignation

(4) If for a period of sixty days a member of a House of the Legislature of a State is without permission of the House absent from all meetings thereof, the House may declare his seat vacant

Provided that in computing the said period of sixty days no account shall be taken of any period during which the House is prorogued or is adjourned for more than four consecutive days

191. Disqualifications for membership

(1) A person shall be disqualified for being chosen as, and for being, a member of the Legislative Assembly or Legislative Council of a State—

(a) if he holds any office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State specified in the First Schedule, other than an office declared by the Legislature of the State by law not to disqualify its holder,

(b) if he is of unsound mind and stands so declared by a competent court,

(c) if he is an undischarged insolvent,

(d) if he is not a citizen of India, or has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of a foreign State, or is under any acknowledgement of allegiance or adherence to a foreign State,

(e) if he is so disqualified by or under any law made by Parliament

Explanation—For the purposes of this clause, a person shall not be deemed to hold an office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State specified in the First Schedule by reason only that he is a Minister either for the Union or for such State

(2) A person shall be disqualified for being a member of the Legislative Assembly or Legislative Council of a State if he is so disqualified under the Tenth Schedule

192. Decision on questions as to disqualifications of members

(1) If any question arises as to whether a member of a House of the Legislature of a State has become subject to any of the disqualifications mentioned in clause (1) of article 191, the question shall be referred for the decision of the Governor and his decision shall be final

(2) Before giving any decision on any such question, the Governor shall obtain the opinion of the Election Commission and shall act according to such opinion

193. Penalty for sitting and voting before making oath or affirmation under article 188 or when not qualified or when disqualified

If a person sits or votes as a member of the Legislative Assembly or the Legislative Council of a State before he has complied with the requirements of article 188, or when he knows that he is not qualified or that he is disqualified for membership thereof, or that he is prohibited from so doing by the provisions of any law made by Parliament or the Legislature of the State, he shall be liable in respect of each day on which he so sits or votes to a penalty of five hundred rupees to be recovered as a debt due to the State

Powers, Privileges and Immunities of State Legislatures and their Members

194. Powers, privileges, etc., of the House of Legislatures and of the members and committees thereof

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the rules and standing orders regulating the procedure of the Legislature, there shall be freedom of speech in the Legislature of every State

(2) No member of the Legislature of a State shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in the Legislature or any committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of a House of such a Legislature of any report, paper, votes or proceedings

(3) In other respects, the powers, privileges and immunities of a House of the Legislature of a State, and of the members and the committees of a House of such Legislature, shall be such as may from time to time be defined by the Legislature by law, and, until so defined, shall be those of that House and of its members and committees immediately before the coming into force of section 26 of the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978

(4) The provisions of clauses (1), (2) and (3) shall apply in relation to persons who by virtue of this Constitution have the right to speak in, and otherwise to take part in the proceedings of a House of the Legislature of a State or any committee thereof as they apply in relation to members of that Legislature

Members of the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council of a State shall be entitled to receive such salaries and allowances as may from time to time be determined, by the Legislature of the State by law and, until provision in that respect is so made, salaries and allowances at such rates and upon such conditions as were immediately before the commencement of the Constitution applicable in the case of members of the Legislative Assembly of the corresponding province

*Legislative Procedure196. Provisions as to introduction and passing of Bills

(1) Subject to the provisions of articles 198 and 207 with respect to Money Bills and other financial Bills, a Bill may originate in either House of the Legislature of a State which has a Legislative Council

(2) Subject to the provisions of articles 197 and 198, a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the Houses of the Legislature of a State having a Legislative Council unless it has been agreed to by both Houses, either without amendment or with such amendments only as are agreed to by both Houses

(3) A Bill pending in the Legislature of a State shall not lapse by reason of the prorogation of the House or Houses thereof

(4) A Bill pending in the Legislative Council of a State which has not been passed by the Legislative Assembly shall not lapse on a dissolution of the Assembly

(5) A Bill which is pending in the Legislative Assembly of a State, or which having been passed by the Legislative Assembly is pending in the Legislative Council, shall lapse on a dissolution of the Assembly

197. Restriction on powers of Legislative Council as to Bills other than Money Bills

(1) If after a Bill has been passed by the Legislative Assembly of a State having a Legislative Council and transmitted to the Legislative Council—

(a) the Bill is rejected by the Council, or

(b) more than three months elapse from the date on which the Bill is laid before the Council without the Bill being passed by it, or

(c) the Bill is passed by the Council with amendments to which the Legislative Assembly does not agree, the Legislative Assembly may, subject to the rules regulating its procedure, pass the Bill again in the same or in any subsequent session with or without such amendments, if any, as have been made, suggested or agreed to by the Legislative Council and then transmit the Bill as so passed to the Legislative Council

(2) If after a Bill has been so passed for the second time by the Legislative Assembly and transmitted to the Legislative Council—

(a) the Bill is rejected by the Council, or

(b) more than one month elapses from the date on which the Bill is laid before the Council without the Bill being passed by it, or the Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by the Houses of the Legislature of the State in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly for the second time with such amendments, if any, as have been made or suggested by the Legislative Council and agreed to by the Legislative Assembly

(c) the Bill is passed by the Council with amendments to which the Legislative Assembly does not agree,

(3) Nothing in this article shall apply to a Money Bill

198. Special procedure in respect of Money Bills

(1) A Money Bill shall not be introduced in a Legislative Council

(2) After a Money Bill has been passed by the Legislative Assembly of a State having a Legislative Council, it shall be transmitted to the Legislative Council for its recommendations, and the Legislative Council shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of its receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the Legislative Assembly with its recommendations, and the Legislative Assembly may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council

(3) If the Legislative Assembly accepts any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Legislative Council and accepted by the Legislative Assembly

(4) If the Legislative Assembly does not accept any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly without any of the amendments recommended by the Legislative Council

(5) If a Money Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly and transmitted to the Legislative Council for its recommendations is not returned to the Legislative Assembly within the said period of fourteen days, it shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses at the expiration of the said period in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly

199. Definition of "Money Bills"

(1) For the purposes of this Chapter, a Bill shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if it contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely —

(a) the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax;

(b) the regulation of the borrowing of money or the giving of any guarantee by the State, or the amendment of the law with respect to any financial obligations undertaken or to be undertaken by the State,

(c) the custody of the Consolidated Fund or the Contingency Fund of the State, the payment of moneys into or the withdrawal of moneys from any such Fund,

(d) the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State,

(e) the declaring of any expenditure to be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State, or the increasing of the amount of any such expenditure,

(f) the receipt of money on account of the Consolidated Fund of the State or the public account of the State or the custody or issue of such money, or

(g) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f)

(2) A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(3) If any question arises whether a Bill introduced in the Legislature of a State which has a Legislative Council is a Money Bill or not, the decision of the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of such State thereon shall be final

(4) There shall be endorsed on every Money Bill when it is transmitted to the Legislative Council under article 198, and when it is presented to the Governor for assent under article 200, the certificate of the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly signed by him that it is a Money Bill

200. Assent to Bills

When a Bill has been passed by the Legislative Assembly of a State or, in the case of a State having a Legislative Council, has been passed by both Houses of the Legislature of the State, it shall be presented to the Governor and the Governor shall declare either that he assents to the Bill or that he withholds assent therefrom or that he reserves the Bill for the consideration of the President

Provided that the Governor may, as soon as possible after the presentation to him of the Bill for assent, return the Bill if it is not a Money Bill together with a message requesting that the House or Houses will reconsider the Bill or any specified provisions thereof and, in particular, will consider the desirability of introducing any such amendments as he may recommend in his message and, when a Bill is so returned, the House or Houses shall reconsider the Bill accordingly, and if the Bill is passed again by the House or Houses with or without amendment and presented to the Governor for assent, the Governor shall not withhold assent therefrom

Provided further that the Governor shall not assent to, but shall reserve for the consideration of the President, any Bill which in the opinion of the Governor would, if it became law, so derogate from the powers of the High Court as to endanger the position which that Court is by this Constitution designed to fill

201. Bills reserved for consideration

When a Bill is reserved by a Governor for the consideration of the President, the President shall declare either that he assents to the Bill or that he withholds assent therefrom

Provided that, where the Bill is not a Money Bill, the President may direct the Governor to return the Bill to the House or, as the case may be, the Houses of the Legislature of the State together with such a message as it mentioned in the first proviso to article 200 and, when a Bill is so returned, the House or Houses shall reconsider it accordingly within a period of six months from the date of receipt of such message and, if it is again passed by the House or Houses with or without amendment, it shall be presented again to the President for his consideration

Procedure in Financial Matters202. Annual financial statement

(1) The Governor shall in respect of every financial year cause to be laid before the House or Houses of the Legislature of the State a statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the State for that year, in this Part referred to as the "annual financial statement"

(2) The estimates of expenditure embodied in the annual financial statement shall show separately—

(a) the sums required to meet expenditure described by this Constitution as expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the State, and

(b) the sums required to meet other expenditure proposed to be made from the Consolidated Fund of the State, and shall distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure

(3) The following expenditure shall be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of each State —

(a) the emoluments and allowances of the Governor and other expenditure relating to his office,

(b) the salaries and allowances of the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker of the Legislative Assembly and, in the case of State having a Legislative Council, also of the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman of the Legislative Council,

(c) debt charges for which the State is liable including interest, sinking fund charges and redemption charges, and other expenditure relating to the raising of loans and the service and redemption of debt,

(d) expenditure in respect of the salaries and allowances of Judges of any High Court,

(e) any sums required to satisfy any judgment, decree or award of any court or arbitral tribunal,

(f) any other expenditure declared by this Constitution, or by the Legislature of the State by law, to be so charged

203. Procedure in Legislature with respect to estimates

(1) So much of the estimates as relates to expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of a State shall not be submitted to the vote of the Legislative Assembly, but nothing in this clause shall be construed as preventing the discussion in the Legislature of any of those estimates

(2) So much of the said estimates as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted in the form of demands for grants to the Legislative Assembly, and the Legislative Assembly shall have power to assent, or to refuse to assent, to any demand, or to assent to any demand subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the Governor

204. Appropriation Bills

(1) As soon as may be after the grants under article 203 have been made by the Assembly, there shall be introduced a Bill to provide for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of the State of all moneys required to meet—

(a) the grants so made by the Assembly, and

(b) the expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State but not exceeding in any case the amount shown in the statement previously laid before the House or Houses

(2) No amendment shall be proposed to any such Bill in the House or either House of the Legislature of the State which will have the effect of varying the amount or altering the destination of any grant so made or of varying the amount of any expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State, and the decision of the person presiding as to whether an amendment is inadmissible under this clause shall be final

(3) Subject to the provisions of articles 205 and 206, no money shall be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund of the State except under appropriation made by law passed in accordance with the provisions of this article

205 Supplementary, additional or excess grants

(1) The Governor shall—

(a) if the amount authorised by any law made in accordance with the provisions of article 204 to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is found to be insufficient for the purposes of that year or when a need has arisen during the current financial year for supplementary or additional expenditure upon some new service not contemplated in the annual financial statement for that year, or

(b) if any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service and for that year, cause to be laid before the House or the Houses of the Legislature of the State another statement showing the estimated amount of that expenditure or cause to be presented to the Legislative Assembly of the State a demand for such excess, as the case may be

(2) The provisions of articles 202, 203 and 204 shall have effect in relation to any such statement and expenditure or demand and also to any law to be made authorising the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure or the grant in respect of such demand as they have effect in relation to the annual financial statement and the expenditure mentioned therein or to a demand for a grant and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure or grant

206. Votes on account, votes of credit and exceptional grants

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, the Legislative Assembly of a State shall have power—

(a) to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year pending the completion of the procedure prescribed in article 203 for the voting of such grant and the passing of the law in accordance with the provisions of article 204 in relation to that expenditure,

(b) to make a grant for meeting an unexpected demand upon the resources of the State when on account of the magnitude or the indefinite character of the service the demand cannot be stated with the details ordinarily given in an annual financial statement,

(c) to make an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current service of any financial year, and the Legislature of the State shall have power to authorise by law the withdrawal of moneys from the Consolidated Fund of the State for the purposes for which the said grants are made

(2) The provisions of articles 203 and 204 shall have effect in relation to the making of any grant under clause (1) and to any law to be made under that clause as they have effect in relation to the making of a grant with regard to any expenditure mentioned in the annual financial statement and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure

207. Special provisions as to financial Bills

(1) A Bill or amendment making provision for any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f) of clause (1) of article 199 shall not be introduced or moved except on the recommendation of the Governor, and a Bill making such provision shall not be introduced in a Legislative Council

Provided that no recommendation shall be required under this clause for the moving of an amendment making provision for the reduction or abolition of any tax

(2) A Bill or amendment shall not be deemed to make provision for any of the matters aforesaid by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes

(3) A Bill which, if enacted and brought into operation, would involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of a State shall not be passed by a House of the Legislature of the State unless the Governor has recommended to that House the consideration of the Bill

Procedure Generally

208. Rules of procedure

(1) A House of the Legislature of a State may make rules for regulating subject to the provisions of this Constitution, its procedure and the conduct of its business

(2) Until rules are made under clause (1), the rules of procedure and standing orders in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution with respect to the Legislature for the corresponding Province shall have effect in relation to the Legislature of the State subject to such modifications and adaptations as may be made therein by the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, or the Chairman of the Legislative Council, as the case may be

(3) In a State having a Legislative Council the Governor, after consultation with the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly and the Chairman of the Legislative Council, may make rules as to the procedure with respect to communications between the two Houses

209. Regulation by law of procedure in the Legislature of the State in relation to financial business

The Legislature of a State may, for the purpose of the timely completion of financial business, regulate by law the procedure of, and the conduct of business in, the House or Houses of the Legislature of the State in relation to any financial matter or to any Bill for the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State, and, if and so far as any provision of any law so made is inconsistent with any rule made by the House or either House of the Legislature of the State under clause (1) of article 208 or with any rule or standing order having effect in relation to the Legislature of the State under clause (2) of that article, such provision shall prevail

210 Language to be used in the Legislature

(1) Notwithstanding anything in Part XVII, but subject to the provisions of article 348, business in the Legislature of a State shall be transacted in the official language or languages of the State or in Hindi or in English

Provided that the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly or Chairman of the Legislative Council, or person acting as such, as the case may be, may permit any member who cannot adequately express himself in any of the languages aforesaid to address the House in his mother-tongue

(2) Unless the Legislature of the State by law otherwise provides, this article shall, after the expiration of a period of fifteen years from the commencement of this Constitution, have effect as if the words "or in English" were omitted therefrom

Provided that in relation to the Legislatures of the States of Himachal Pradesh, Manipur, Meghalaya and Tripura this clause shall have effect as if for the words "fifteen years" occurring therein, the words "twenty-five years" were substituted.

Provided further that in relation to the Legislature of the States of Arunachal Pradesh, Goa and Mizoram, this clause shall have effect as if for the words "fifteen years" occurring therein, the words "forty years" were substituted.

211. Restriction on discussion in the Legislature

No discussion shall take place in the Legislature of a State with respect to the conduct of any Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court in the discharge of his duties

212. Courts not to inquire into proceedings of the Legislature

(1) The validity of any proceedings in the Legislature of a State shall not be called in question on the ground of any alleged irregularity of procedure.

(2) No officer or member of the Legislature of a State in whom powers are vested by or under this Constitution for regulating procedure or the conduct of business, or for maintaining order, in the Legislature shall be subject to the jurisdiction of any court in respect of the exercise by him of those powers

LEGISLATIVE POWER OF THE GOVERNOR

213. Power of Governor to promulgate Ordinances during recess of Legislature

(1) If at any time, except when the Legislative Assembly of a State is in session, or where there is a Legislative Council in a State, except when both Houses of the Legislature are in session, the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such Ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require

Provided that the Governor shall not, without instructions from the President, promulgate any such Ordinance if—

(a) a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Constitution have required the previous sanction of the President for the introduction thereof into the Legislature, or

(b) he would have deemed it necessary to reserve a Bill containing the same provisions for the consideration of the President; or

(c) an Act of the Legislature of the State containing the same provisions would under this Constitution have been invalid unless, having been reserved for the consideration of the President, it had received the assent of the President.

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of Legislature of the State assented to by the Governor, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Legislative Assembly of the State, or where there is a Legislative Council in the State, before both the Houses, and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Legislature, or if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislative Assembly and agreed to by the Legislative Council, if any, upon the passing of the resolution or, as the case may be, on the resolution being agreed to by the Council, and

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor

Explanation—Where the Houses of the Legislature of a State having a Legislative Council are summoned to reassemble on different dates, the period of six weeks shall be reckoned from the later of those dates for the purposes of this clause

(3) If and so far as an Ordinance under this article makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Legislature of the State assented to by the Governor, it shall be void

Provided that, for the purposes of the provisions of this Constitution relating to the effect of an Act of the Legislature of a State which is repugnant to an Act of Parliament or an existing law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Concurrent List, an Ordinance promulgated under this article in the Concurrent List, an Ordinance promulgated under this article in pursuance of instructions from the President shall be deemed to be an Act of the Legislature of the State which has been reserved for the consideration of the President and assented to by him

THE HIGH COURTS IN THE STATES

214. High Courts for States

There shall be a High Court for each State

215. High Courts to be courts of record

Every High Court shall be a court of record and shall have all the powers of such a court including the power to punish for contempt of itself

216. Constitution of High Courts

Every High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and such other Judges as the President may from time to time deem it necessary to appoint

217. Appointment and conditions of the office of a Judge of a High Court

(1) Every Judge of a High Court shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand and seal after consultation with the Chief Justice of India, the Governor of the State, and, in the case of appointment of a Judge other than the Chief Justice, the Chief Justice of the High court, and shall hold office, in the case of an additional or acting Judge, as provided in article 224, and in any other case, until he attains the age of sixty-two years

Provided that—

(a) a Judge may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office,

(b) a Judge may be removed from his office by the President in the manner provided in clause (4) of article 124 for the removal of a Judge of the Supreme Court,

(c) the office of a Judge shall be vacated by his being appointed by the President to be a Judge of the Supreme Court or by his being transferred by the President to any other High Court within the territory of India.

(2) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a Judge of a High Court unless he is a citizen of India and

(a) has for at least ten years held a judicial office in the territory of India, or

(b) has for at least ten years been an advocate of a High Court or of two or more such Courts in succession,

Explanation—For the purposes of this clause—

(a) in computing the period during which a person has held judicial office in the territory of India, there shall be included any period, after he has held any judicial office, during which the person has been an advocate of a High Court or has held the office of a member of a tribunal or any post, under the Union or a State, requiring special knowledge of law,

(aa) in computing the period during which a person has been an advocate of a High Court, there shall be included any period during which the person has held judicial office or the office of a member of a tribunal or any post, under the Union or a State, requiring special knowledge of law after he became an advocate;

(b) in computing the period during which a person has held judicial office in the territory of India or been an advocate of High Court, there shall be included any period before the commencement of this Constitution during which he has held judicial office in any area which was comprised before the fifteenth day of August, 1947, within India as defined by the Government of India Act, 1935, or has been an advocate of any High Court in any such area, as the case may be

(3) If any question arises as to the age of a Judge of a High Court, the question shall be decided by the President after consultation with the Chief Justice of India and the decision of the President shall be final

218. Application of certain provisions relating to Supreme Court to High Courts

The provisions of clauses (4) and (5) of article 124 shall apply in relation to a High Court as they apply in relation to the Supreme Court with the substitution of references to the High Court for references to the Supreme Court

219. Oath or affirmation by Judges of High Courts

Every person appointed to be a Judge of a High Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor of the State or some person appointed in that behalf by him, an oath or affirmation according to the form set out for the purpose in the Third Schedule

220. Restriction on practice after being a permanent Judge

No person who, after the commencement of this Constitution, has held office as a permanent Judge of a High Court shall plead or act in any court or before any authority in India except the Supreme Court and the other High Courts

Explanation—In this article, the expression "High Court" does not include a High Court for a State specified in Part B of the First Schedule as it existed before the commencement of the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956

(1) There shall be paid to the Judges of each High Court such salaries as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until provision in that behalf is so made, such salaries as are specified in the Second Schedule

(2) Every Judge shall be entitled to such allowances and to such rights in respect of leave of absence and pension as may from time to time be determined by or under law made by Parliament and, until so determined, to such allowances and rights as are specified in the Second Schedule

Provided that neither the allowances of a Judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

222. Transfer of a Judge from one High Court to another

(1) The President may, after consultation with the Chief Justice of India, transfer a Judge from one High Court to any other High Court

(2) When a Judge has been or is so transferred, he shall, during the period he serves, after the commencement of the Constitution (Fifteenth Amendment) Act, 1963, as a Judge of the other High Court, be entitled to receive in addition to his salary such compensatory allowance as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until so determined, such compensatory allowance as the President may by order fix

When the office of Chief Justice of a High Court is vacant or when any such Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or otherwise, unable to perform the duties of his office, the duties of the office shall be performed by such one of the other Judges of the Court as the President may appoint for the purpose

224. Appointment of additional and acting Judges

(1) If by reason of any temporary increase in the business of High Court or by reason of arrears of work therein, it appears to the President that the number of the Judges of that Court should be for the time being increased, the President may appoint duly qualified persons to be additional Judges of the Court for such period not exceeding two years as he may specify

(2) When any Judge of a High Court other than the Chief Justice is by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office or is appointed to act temporarily as Chief Justice, the President may appoint a duly qualified person to act as a Judge of that Court until the permanent Judge has resumed his duties

(3) No person appointed as an additional or acting Judge of a High Court shall hold office after attaining the age of sixty-two years

224A. Appointment of retired Judges at sittings of High Courts

Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, the Chief Justice of a High Court for any State may at any time, with the previous consent of the President, request any person who has held the office of Judge of that Court or of any other High Court to sit and act as a Judge of the High Court for that State, and every such person so requested shall, while so sitting and acting, be entitled to such allowances as the President may by order determine and have all the jurisdiction, powers and privileges of, but shall not otherwise be deemed to be, a Judge of that High Court

Provided that nothing in this article shall be deemed to require any such person as aforesaid to sit and act as a Judge of that High Court unless he consents so to do

225. Jurisdiction of existing High Courts

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the provisions of any law of the appropriate Legislature made by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Constitution, the jurisdiction of, and the law administered in, any existing High Court, and the respective powers of the Judges thereof in relation to the administration of justice in the Court, including any power to make rules of Court and to regulate the sittings of the Court and of members thereof sitting alone or in Division Courts, shall be the same as immediately before the commencement of this Constitution

Provided that any restriction to which the exercise of original jurisdiction by any of the High Courts with respect to any matter concerning the revenue or concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof was subject immediately before the commencement of this Constitution shall no longer apply to the exercise of such jurisdiction

226 Power of High Courts to issue certain writs

(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 32 every High Court shall have powers, throughout the territories in relation to which it exercise jurisdiction, to issue to any person or authority, including in appropriate cases, any Government, within those territories directions, orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, *quo warrant*o and certiorari, or any of them, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III and for any other purpose

(2) The power conferred by clause (1) to issue directions, orders or writs to any Government, authority or person may also be exercised by any High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to the territories within which the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises for the exercise of such power, notwithstanding that the seat of such Government or authority or the residence of such person is not within those territories

(3) Where any party against whom an interim order, whether by way of injunction or stay or in any other manner, is made on, or in any proceedings relating to, a petition under clause (1), without—

(a) furnishing to such party copies of such petition and all documents in support of the plea for such interim order, and

(b) giving such party an opportunity of being heard, makes an application to the High Court for the vacation of such order and furnishes a copy of such application to the party in whose favour such order has been made or the counsel of such party, the High Court shall dispose of the application within a period of two weeks from the date on which it is received or from the date on which the copy of such application is so furnished, whichever is later, or where the High Court is closed on the last day of that period, before the expiry of the next day afterwards on which the High Court is open, and if the application is not so disposed of, the interim order shall, on the expiry of that period, or, as the case may be, the expiry of the said next day, stand vacated

(4) The power conferred on a High Court by this article shall not be in derogation of the power conferred on the Supreme Court by clause (2) of article 32

226A. Constitutional validity of Central laws not to be considered in proceedings under Article 226

[Rep. by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec 8 (w.e.f. 13.4.1978)]

227. Power of superintendence over all courts by the High Court

(1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions, the High Court may—

(a) call for returns from such courts,

(b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts, and

(c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts

(3) The High Court may also settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff and all clerks and officers of such courts and to attorneys, advocates and pleaders practising therein

Provided that any rules made, forms prescribed or tables settled under clause (2) or clause (3) shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor

(4) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to confer on a High Court powers of superintendence over any court or tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces.

228. Transfer of certain cases to High Court

If the High Court is satisfied that a case pending in a court subordinate to it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case, it shall withdraw the case and may—

(a) either dispose of the case itself, or

(b) determine the said question of law and return the case to the court from which the case has been so withdrawn together with a copy of its judgment on such question, and the said court shall on receipt thereof proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with such judgment

229. Officers and servants and the expenses of High Courts

(1) Appointments of officers and servants of a High Court shall be made by the Chief Justice of the Court or such other Judge or officer of the Court as he may direct

Provided that the Governor of the State may by rule require that in such cases as may be specified in the rule no person not already attached to the Court shall be appointed to any office connected with the Court save after consultation with the State Public Service Commission

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by the Legislature of the State, the conditions of service of officers and servants of a High Court shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by the Chief Justice of the Court or by some other Judge or officer of the Court authorised by the Chief Justice to make rules for the purpose

Provided that the rules made under this clause shall, so far as they relate to salaries, allowances, leave or pensions, require the approval of the Governor of the State

(3) The administrative expenses of a High Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the Court, shall be charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the State, and any fees or other moneys taken by the Court shall form part of that Fund

230. Extension of jurisdiction of High Courts to Union territories

(1) Parliament may by law extend the jurisdiction of a High Court to, or exclude the jurisdiction of a High Court from, any Union territory

(2) Where the High Court of a State exercises jurisdiction in relation to a Union territory,—

(a) nothing in this Constitution shall be construed as empowering the Legislature of the State to increase, restrict or abolish that jurisdiction, and

(b) the reference in article 227 to the Governor shall, in relation to any rules, forms or tables for subordinate courts in that territory, be construed as a reference to the President.

231. Establishment of a common High Court for two or more States

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the preceding provisions of this Chapter, Parliament may by law establish a common High Court for two or more States or for two or more States and a Union territory

(2) In relation to any such High Court,—

(a) the reference in article 217 to the Governor of the State shall be construed as a reference to the Governors of all the States in relation to which the High Court exercises jurisdiction;

(b) the reference in article 227 to the Governor shall, in relation to any rules, forms or tables for subordinate courts, be construed as a reference to the Governor of the State in which the subordinate courts are situate; and

(c) the reference in articles 219 and 229 to the State shall be construed as a reference to the State in which the High Court has its principal seat

Provided that if such principal seat is in a Union territory, the references in articles 210 and 229 to the Governor, Public Service Commission, Legislature and Consolidated Fund of the State shall be construed respectively as references to the President, Union Public Service Commission, Parliament and Consolidated Fund of India

SUBORDINATE COURTS

233. Appointment of district judges

(1) Appointments of persons to be, and the posting and promotion of, district judges in any State shall be made by the Governor of the State in consultation with the High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to such State

(2) A person not already in the service of the Union or of the State shall only be eligible to be appointed a district judge if he has been for not less than seven years an advocate or a pleader and is recommended by the High Court for appointment

233A. Validation of appointments of, and judgments, etc., delivered by, certain district judges

Notwithstanding any judgment, decree or order of any court,—

(a) (i) no appointment of any person already in the judicial service of a State or of any person who has been for not less than seven years an advocate or a pleader, to be a district judge in that State, and

(ii) no posting, promotion or transfer of any such person as a district judge, made at any time before the commencement of the Constitution (Twentieth Amendment) Act, 1966, otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of article 233 or article 235 shall be deemed to be illegal or void or ever to have become illegal or void by reason only of the fact that such appointment, posting, promotion or transfer was not made in accordance with the said provisions,

(b) no jurisdiction exercised, no judgment, decree, sentence or order passed or made, and no other act or proceeding done or taken, before the commencement of the Constitution (Twentieth Amendment) Act, 1966 by, or before, any person appointed, posted, promoted or transferred as a district judge in any State otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of article 233 or article 235 shall be deemed to be illegal or invalid or ever to have become illegal or invalid by reason only of the fact that such appointment, posting, promotion or transfer was not made in accordance with the said provisions

234. Recruitment of persons other than district judges to the judicial service

Appointment of persons other than district judges to the judicial service of a State shall be made by the Governor of the State in accordance with rules made by him in that behalf after consultation with the State Public Service Commission and with the High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to such State

235. Control over subordinate courts

The control over district courts and courts subordinate thereto including the posting and promotion of, and the grant of leave to, persons belonging to the judicial service of a State and holding any post inferior to the post of district judge shall be vested in the High Court, but nothing in this article shall be construed as taking away from any such person any right of appeal which he may under the law regulating the conditions of his service or as authorising the High Court to deal with him otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of his service prescribed under such law

In this Chapter—

(a) the expression "district judge" includes judge of a city civil court, additional district judge, joint district judge, assistant district judge, chief judge of a small cause court, chief presidency magistrate, additional chief presidency magistrate, sessions judge, additional sessions judge and assistant sessions judge,

(b) the expression "judicial service" means a service consisting exclusively of persons intended to fill the post of district judge and other civil judicial posts inferior to the post of district judge

237. Application of the provisions of this Chapter to certain class or classes of magistrates

The Governor may by public notification direct that the foregoing provisions of this Chapter and any rules made thereunder shall with effect from such date as may be fixed by him in that behalf apply in relation to any class or classes of magistrates in the State as they apply in relation to persons appointed to the judicial service of the State subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be specified in the notification

PART VIII

THE UNION TERRITORIES

239. Administration of Union territories

(1) Save as otherwise provided by Parliament by law, every Union territory shall be administered by the President acting, to such extent as he thinks fit, through an administrator to be appointed by him with such designation as he may specify

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in Part VI, the President may appoint the Governor of a State as the administrator of an adjoining Union territory, and where a Governor is so appointed, he shall exercise his functions as such administrator independently of his Council of Ministers

239A. Creation of local Legislatures or Council of Ministers or both for certain Union territories

(1) Parliament may by law create for the Union territory of Pondicherry—

(a) a body, whether elected or partly nominated and partly elected, to function as a Legislature for the Union territory, or

(b) a Council of Ministers,

or both with such constitution, powers and functions, in each case, as may be specified in the law

(2) Any such law as is referred to in clause (1) shall not be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368 notwithstanding that it contains any provision which amends or has the effect of amending this Constitution

239AA. Special provisions with respect to Delhi

(1) As from the date of commencement of the Constitution (Sixty-ninth Amendment) Act, 1991, the Union territory of Delhi shall be called the National Capital Territory of Delhi (hereafter in this Part referred to as the National Capital Territory) and the administrator thereof appointed under article 239 shall be designated as the Lieutenant Governor

(2) (a) There shall be a Legislative Assembly for the National Capital Territory and the seats in such Assembly shall be filled by members chosen by direct election from territorial constituencies in the National Capital Territory

(b) The total number of seats in the Legislative Assembly, the number of seats reserved for Scheduled Castes, the division of the National Capital Territory into territorial constituencies (including the basis for such division) and all other matters relating to the functioning of the Legislative Assembly shall be regulated by law made by Parliament

(c) The provisions of articles 324 to 327 and 329 shall apply in relation to the National Capital Territory, the Legislative Assembly of the National Capital Territory and the members thereof as they apply, in relation to a State, the Legislative Assembly of a State and the members thereof respectively, and my reference in articles 326 and 329 to "appropriate Legislature" shall be deemed to be a reference to Parliament

(3) (a) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Legislative Assembly shall have power to make laws for the whole or any part of the National Capital Territory with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the State List or in the Concurrent List in so far as any such matter is applicable to Union territories except matters with respect to Entries 1, 2 and 18 of the State List and Entries 64, 65 and 66 of that List in so far as they relate to the said Entries 1, 2, and 18

(b) Nothing in sub-clause (a) shall derogate from the powers of Parliament under this Constitution to make laws with respect to any matter for a Union territory or any part thereof

(c) If any provision of a law made by the Legislative Assembly with respect to any matter is repugnant to any provision of a law made by Parliament with respect to that matter, whether passed before or after the law made by the Legislative Assembly, or of an earlier law, other than a law made by the Legislative Assembly, then, in either case, the law made by Parliament, or, as the case may be, such earlier law, shall prevail and the law made by the Legislative Assembly shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void

Provided that if any such law made by the Legislative Assembly has been reserved for the consideration of the President and has received his assent, such law shall prevail in the National Capital Territory

Provided further that nothing in this sub-clause shall prevent Parliament from enacting at any time any law with respect to the same matter including a law adding to, amending, varying or repealing the law so made by the Legislative Assembly

(4) There shall be a Council of Ministers consisting of not more than ten per cent of the total number of members in the Legislative Assembly, with the Chief Minister at the head to aid and advise the Lieutenant Governor in the exercise of his functions in relation to matters with respect to which the Legislative Assembly has power to make laws, except in so far as he is, by or under any law, required to act in his discretion

Provided that in the case of difference of opinion between the Lieutenant Governor and his Ministers on any matter, the Lieutenant Governor shall refer it to the President for decision and act according to the decision given thereon by the President and pending such decision it shall be competent for the Lieutenant Governor in any case where the matter, in his opinion, is so urgent that it is necessary for him to take immediate action, to take such action or to give such direction in the matter as he deems necessary

(5) The Chief Minister shall be appointed by the President and the other Ministers shall be appointed by the President on the advice of the Chief Minister and the Ministers shall hold office during the pleasure of the President

(6) The Council of Ministers shall be collectively responsible to the Legislative assembly

(7) (a) Parliament may, by law, make provisions for giving effect to, or supplementing the provisions contained in the foregoing clauses and for all matters incidental or consequential thereto

(b) Any such law as is referred to in sub-clause (a) shall not be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368 notwithstanding that it contains any provision which amends or has the effect of amending, this Constitution

(8) The provisions of article 239B shall, so far as may be, apply in relation to the National Capital Territory, the Lieutenant Governor and the Legislative Assembly, as they apply in relation to the Union territory of Pondicherry, the administrator and its Legislature, respectively, and any reference in that article to "clause (1) of article 239A" shall be deemed to be a reference to this article or article 239AB as the case may be

239AB Provisions in case of failure of constitutional machinery

If the President, on receipt of a report from the Lieutenant Governor or otherwise, is satisfied—

(a) that a situation has arisen in which the administration of the National Capital Territory cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions or article 239AA or of any law made in pursuance of that article, or

(b) that for the proper administration of the National Capital Territory it is necessary or expedient so to do, the President may by order suspend the operation of any provision of article 239AA or of all or any of the provisions of any law made in pursuance of that article for such period and subject to such conditions as may be specified in such law and make such incidental and consequential provisions as may appear to him to be necessary or expedient for administering the National Capital Territory in accordance with the provisions of article 239 and article 239AA

239B Power of administrator to promulgate Ordinances during recess of Legislature

(1) If at any time, except when the Legislature of the Union territory of Pondicherry is in session, the administrator thereof is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such Ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require

Provided that no such Ordinance shall be promulgated by the administrator except after obtaining instructions from the President in that behalf

Provided further that whenever the said legislature is dissolved, or its functioning from the President shall be deemed to be an Act of the Legislature of the Union territory which has been duly enacted after complying with the provisions in that behalf contained in any such law as is referred to in clause (1) of article 239A, the administrator shall not promulgate any Ordinance during the period of such dissolution or suspension

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this article in pursuance of instructions from the President shall be deemed to be an Act of the Legislature of the Union territory which has been duly enacted after complying with the provisions in that behalf contained in any such law as is referred to in clause (1) of article 239A, but every such Ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Legislature of the Union territory and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Legislature or if, before the expiration of that period, a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislature, upon the passing of the resolution, and

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the administrator after obtaining instructions from the President in that behalf

(3) If and so far as an Ordinance under this article makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Legislature of the Union territory made after complying with the provisions in that behalf contained in any such law as is referred to in clause (1) of article 239A, it shall be void

240. Power of President to make regulations for certain Union territories

(1) The President may make regulations for the peace, progress and good Government of the Union territory of—

(a) the Andaman and Nicobar Islands,

(b) Lakshadweep,

(c) Dadra and Nagar Haveli,

(d) Daman and Diu,

(e) Pondicherry.

Provided that when any body is created under article 239A to function as a Legislature for the Union territories of Pondicherry, the President shall not make any regulation for the peace, progress and good Government of that Union territory with effect from the date appointed for the first meeting of the Legislature

Provided further that whenever the body functioning as a Legislature for the Union territory of Pondicherry is dissolved, or the functioning of that body as such Legislature remains suspended on account of any action taken under any such law as is referred to in clause (1) of article 239A, the President may during the period of such dissolution or suspension, make regulations for the peace, progress and good Government of that Union territory

(2) Any regulation so made may repeal or amend any Act made by Parliament or any other law which is for the time being applicable to the Union territory and, when promulgated by the President, shall have the same force and effect as an Act of Parliament which applies to that territory

241. High Courts for Union territories

(1) Parliament may by law constitute a High Court for a Union territory or declare any court in any such territory to be a High Court for all or any of the purposes of this Constitution

(2) The provisions of Chapter V of Part VI shall apply in relation to every High Court referred to in clause (1) as they apply in relation to a High Court referred to in article 214 subject to such modifications or exceptions as Parliament may by law provide

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the provisions of any law of the appropriate Legislature made by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by or under this Constitution, every High Court exercising jurisdiction immediately before the commencement of the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, in relation to any Union territory shall continue to exercise such jurisdiction in relation to that territory after such commencement

(4) Nothing in this article derogates from the power of Parliament to extend or exclude the jurisdiction of a High Court for a State to, or from any Union territory or part thereof

(b) a Panchayat at the intermediate level or district level, shall be elected by, and from amongst, the elected members thereof

243D Reservation of seats

(1) Seats shall be reserved for,—

(a) the Scheduled Castes, and

(b) the Scheduled Tribes,

in every Panchayat and the number of seats so reserved shall bear, as nearly as may be, the same proportion to the total number of seats to be filled by direct election in that Panchayat as the population of the Scheduled Castes in that Panchayat area or of the Scheduled Tribes in that Panchayat area bears to the total population of that area and such seats may be allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a Panchayat

(2) Not less than one-third of the total number of seats reserved under clause (1) shall be reserved for women belonging to the Scheduled Castes or, as the case may be, the Scheduled Tribes

(3) Not less than one-third (including the number of seats reserved for women belonging to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes) of the total number of seats to be filled by direct election in every Panchayat shall be reserved for women and such seats may be allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a Panchayat

(4) The offices of the Chairpersons in the Panchayats at the village or any other level shall be reserved for the Scheduled Castes the Scheduled Tribes and women in such manner as the Legislature of a State may, by law, provide.

Provided that the number of offices of Chairpersons reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes in the Panchayats at each level in any State shall bear, as nearly as may be, the same proportion to the total number of such offices in the Panchayats at each level as the population of the Scheduled Castes in the State or of the Scheduled Tribes in the State bears to the total population of the State

Provided further that not less than one-third of the total number of offices of Chairpersons in the Panchayats at each level shall be reserved for women

Provided also that the number of offices reserved under this clause shall be allotted by rotation to different Panchayats at each level

(5) The reservation of seats under clauses (1) and (2) and the reservation of offices of Chairpersons (other than the reservation for women) under clause (4) shall cease to have effect on the expiration of the period specified in article 334

(6) Nothing in this Part shall prevent the Legislature of a State from making any provision for reservation of seats in any Panchayat or offices of Chairpersons in the Panchayats at any level in favour of backward class of citizens

243E. Duration of Panchayats etc

(1) Every Panchayat, unless sooner dissolved under any law for the time being in force, shall continue for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting and no longer

(2) No amendment of any law for the time being in force shall have the effect of causing dissolution of a Panchayat at any level, which is functioning immediately before such amendment, till the expiration of its duration specified in clause (1)

(3) An election to constitute a Panchayat shall be completed—

(a) before the expiry of its duration specified in clause (1),

(b) before the expiration of a period of six months from the date of its dissolution

Provided that where the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Panchayat would have continued is less than six months, it shall not be necessary to hold any election under this clause for constituting the Panchayat

(4) A Panchayat constituted upon the dissolution of a Panchayat before the expiration of its duration shall continue only for the remainder of the period for which the dissolved Panchayat would have continued under clause (1) had it not been so dissolved

243F. Disqualifications for membership

(1) A person shall be disqualified for being chosen as, and for being, a member of a Panchayat—

(a) if he is so disqualified by or under any law for the time being in force for the purposes of elections to the Legislature of the State concerned

Provided that no person shall be disqualified on the ground that he is less than twenty-five years of age, if he has attained the age of twenty-one years,

(b) if he is so disqualified by or under any law made by the Legislature of the State

(2) If any question arises as to whether a member of a Panchayat has become subject to any of the disqualifications mentioned in clause (1), the question shall be referred for the decision of such authority and in such manner as the Legislature of a State may, by law, provide

243G. Powers, authority and responsibilities of Panchayats

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Legislature of a State may, by law, endow the Panchayats with such powers and authority and may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-government and such law may contain provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities upon Panchayats, at the appropriate level, subject to such conditions as may be specified therein, with respect to—

(a) the preparation of plans for economic development and social justice,

(b) the implementation of schemes for economic development and social justice as may be entrusted to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule

243H. Powers to impose taxes by, and funds of, the Panchayats

The Legislature of a State may, by law,—

(a) authorise a Panchayat to levy, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties, tolls and fees in accordance with such procedure and subject to such limits,

(b) assign to a Panchayat such taxes, duties, tolls and fees levied and collected by the State Government for such purposes and subject to such conditions and limits,

(c) provide for making such grants-in-aid to the Panchayats from the Consolidated Fund of the State, and

(d) provide for constitution of such Funds for crediting all moneys received, respectively, by or on behalf of the Panchayats and also for the withdrawal of such moneys therefrom, as may be specified in the law

243I. Constitution of finance Commissions to review financial position

(1) The Governor of a State shall, as soon as may be within one year from the commencement of the Constitution (Seventy-third Amendment) Act, 1992, and thereafter at the expiration of every fifth year, constitute a Finance Commission to review the financial position of the Panchayats and to make recommendations to the Governor as to—

(a) the principles which should govern—

(i) the distribution between the State and the Panchayats of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees leviable by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the allocation between the Panchayats at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds,

(ii) the determination of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to, or appropriated by, the Panchayats,

(iii) the grants-in-aid to the Panchayats from the Consolidated Fund of the State,

(b) the measures needed to improve the financial position of the Panchayats,

(c) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the Governor in the interests of sound finance of the Panchayats

(2) The Legislature of a State may, by law, provide for the composition of the Commission, the qualifications which shall be requisite for appointment as members thereof and the manner in which they shall be selected

(3) The Commission shall determine their procedure and shall have such powers in the performance of their functions as the Legislature of the State may, by law, confer on them,

(4) The Governor shall cause every recommendation made by the Commission under this article together with an explanatory memorandum as to the action taken thereon to be laid before the Legislature of the State

243J. Audit of accounts of Panchayats

The Legislature of a State may, by law, make provisions with respect to the maintenance of accounts by the Panchayats and the auditing of such accounts

243K. Elections to the Panchayats

(1) The superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of electoral rolls for, and the conduct of, all elections to the Panchayats shall be vested in a State Election Commission consisting of a State Election Commissioner to be appointed by the Governor

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by the Legislature of a State the conditions of service and tenure of office of the State Election Commissioner shall be such as the Governor may by rule determine

Provided that the State Election Commissioner shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like ground as a Judge of a

High Court and the conditions of service of the State Election Commissioner shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

(3) The Governor of a State shall, when so requested by the State Election Commission, make available to the State Election Commission such staff as may be necessary for the discharge of the functions conferred on the State Election Commission by clause (1)

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, elections to the Panchayats

243L. Application to Union territories

The provisions of this Part shall apply to the Union territories and shall, in their application to a Union territory, have effect as if the references to the Governor of a State were references to the Administrator of the Union territory appointed under article 239 and references to the Legislature or the Legislative Assembly of a State were references, in relation to a Union territory having a Legislative Assembly, to that Legislative Assembly

Provided that the President may, by public notification, direct that the provisions of this Part shall apply to any Union territory or part thereof subject to such exceptions and modifications as he may specify in the notification

243M. Part not to apply to certain areas

(1) Nothing in this Part shall apply to the Scheduled Areas referred to in clause (1), and the tribal areas referred to in clause (2), of article 244

(2) Nothing in this Part shall apply to—

(a) the States of Nagaland, Meghalaya and Mizoram,

(b) the Hill areas in the State of Manipur for which District Councils exist under any law for the time being in force

(3) Nothing in this Part—

(a) relating to Panchayats at the district level shall apply to the Hill areas of the District of Darjeeling in the State of West Bengal for which Darjeeling Gorkha Hill Council exists under any law for the time being in force,

(b) shall be construed to affect the functions and powers of the Darjeeling Gorkha Hill Council constituted under such law

(4) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution—

(a) the Legislature of a State referred to in sub-clause (a) of clause (2) may, by law, extend this Part to that State, except the areas, if any, referred to in clause (1), if the Legislative Assembly of that State passes a resolution to that effect by a majority of the total membership of that House and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of that house present and voting,

(b) Parliament may, by law, extend the provisions of this Part to the Scheduled Areas and the tribal areas referred to in clause (1) subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be specified in such law, and no such law shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of Article 368

243N. Continuance of existing laws and Panchayats

Notwithstanding anything in this Part, any provision of any law relating to Panchayats in force in a State immediately before commencement of the Constitution (Seventy-third Amendment) Act, 1992, which is inconsistent with the provisions of this part, shall continue to be in force until amended or repealed by a competent Legislature other competent authority or until the expiration of one year from such commencement whichever is earlier.

Provided that all the Panchayats existing immediately before such commencement shall continue till the expiration of their duration, unless sooner dissolved by a resolution passed to that effect by the Legislative Assembly of that State or, in the case of a State having a Legislative Council, by each house of the Legislature of that State

243O. Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters

(a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies or the allotment of seats to such constituencies made or purporting to be made under article 243K, shall not be called in question in any court,

(b) no election to any Panchayat shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by the Legislature of a State

(1) The provisions of the Fifth Schedule shall apply to the administration and control of the Scheduled Areas and Scheduled Tribes in any State other than the States of Assam Meghalaya, Tripura and Mizoram.

(2) The provisions of the Sixth Schedule shall apply to the administration of the tribal areas in the State of Assam, Meghalaya, Tripura and Mizoram.

244A. Formation of an autonomous State comprising certain tribal areas in Assam and creation of local Legislature or Council of Ministers or both therefor

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, Parliament may, by law, form within the State of Assam an autonomous State comprising (whether wholly or in part) all or any of the tribal areas specified in Part I of the table appended to paragraph 20 of the Sixth Schedule and create therefor—

(a) a body, whether elected or partly nominated and partly elected, to function as a Legislature for the autonomous State, or

(b) a Council of Ministers,

or both with such constitution, powers and functions, in each case, as may be specified in the law

(2) Any such law as is referred to in clause (1) may, in particular,—

(a) specify the matters enumerated in the State List or the Concurrent List with respect to which the Legislature of the autonomous State shall have power to make laws for the whole or any part thereof, whether to the exclusion of the Legislature of the State of Assam or otherwise,

(b) define the matters with respect to which the executive power of the autonomous State shall extend,

(c) provide that any tax levied by the State of Assam shall be assigned to the autonomous State in so far as the proceeds thereof are attributable to the autonomous State,

(d) provide that any reference to a State in any article of this Constitution shall be construed as including a reference to the autonomous State, and

(e) make such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions as may be deemed necessary

(3) An amendment of any such law as aforesaid in so far as such amendment relates to any of the matters specified in sub-clause (a) or sub-clause (b) of clause (2) shall have no effect unless the amendment is passed in each House of Parliament by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting

(4) Any such law as is referred to in this article shall not be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368 notwithstanding that it contains any provision which amends or has the effect of amending this Constitution

PART XI*RELATIONS BETWEEN THE UNION AND THE STATES*CHAPTER I*LEGISLATIVE RELATIONSDistribution of Legislative Powers245. Extent of laws made by Parliament and by the Legislatures of States

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India, and the Legislature of a State may make laws for the whole or any part of the State

(2) No law made by Parliament shall be deemed to be invalid on the ground that it would have extra-territorial operation

246. Subject-matter of laws made by Parliament and by the Legislatures of States

(1) Notwithstanding anything in clauses (2) and (3), Parliament has exclusive power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List I in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the "Union List")

(2) Notwithstanding anything in clause (3), Parliament and subject to clause (1), the Legislature of any State also, have power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List III in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the "Concurrent List")

(3) Subject to clauses (1) and (2), the Legislature of any State has exclusive power to make laws for such State or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the "State List")

(4) Parliament has power to make laws with respect to any matter for any part of the territory of India not included in a State notwithstanding that such matter is a matter enumerated in the State List

247. Power of Parliament to provide for the establishment of certain additional courts

Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, Parliament may by law provide for the establishment of any additional courts for the better administration of laws made by Parliament or of any existing laws with respect to a matter enumerated in the Union List

248. Residuary powers of legislation

(1) Parliament has exclusive power to make any law with respect to any matter not enumerated in the Concurrent List or State List

(2) Such power shall include the power of making any law imposing a tax not mentioned in either of those Lists

249. Power of Parliament to legislate with respect to a matter in the State List in the national interest

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in national interest that Parliament should make laws with respect to any matter enumerated in the State List specified in the resolution, it shall be lawful for Parliament to make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India with respect to that matter while the resolution remains in force.

(2) A resolution passed under clause (1) shall remain in force for such period not exceeding one year as may be specified therein.

Provided that, if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of any such resolution is passed in the manner provided in clause (1), such resolution shall continue in force for a further period of one year from the date on which under this clause it would otherwise have ceased to be in force

(3) A law made by Parliament which Parliament would not but for the passing of a resolution under clause (1) have been competent to make shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the resolution has ceased to be in force, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period

250. Power of Parliament to legislate with respect to any matter in the State List if a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, Parliament shall, while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, have, power to make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the State List

(2) A law made by Parliament which Parliament would not but for the issue of a Proclamation of Emergency have been competent to make shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation has ceased to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period

251. Inconsistency between laws made by Parliament under articles 249 and 250 and laws made by the Legislatures of States

Nothing in articles 249 and 250 shall restrict the power of the Legislature of a State to make any law which under this Constitution it has power to make, but if any provision of a law made by the Legislature of a State is repugnant to any provision of a law made by Parliament which Parliament has under either of the said articles power to make, the law made by Parliament, whether passed before or after the law made by the Legislature of the State, shall prevail, and the law made by the Legislature of the State shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long only as the law made by Parliament continues to have effect, be inoperative

252. Power of Parliament to legislate for two or more States by consent and adoption of such legislation by any other State

(1) If it appears to the Legislatures of two or more States to be desirable that any of the matters with respect to which Parliament has no power to make laws for the States except as provided in articles 249 and 250 should be regulated in such States by Parliament by law, and if resolutions to that effect are passed by all the Houses of the Legislatures of those States, it shall be lawful for Parliament to pass an Act for regulating that matter accordingly, and any Act so passed shall apply to such States and to any other State by which it is adopted afterwards by resolution passed in that behalf by the House or, where there are two Houses, by each of the Houses of the Legislature of that State

(2) Any Act so passed by Parliament may be amended or repealed by an Act of Parliament passed or adopted in like manner but shall not, as respects any State to which it applies, be amended or repealed by an Act of the Legislature of that State

253. Legislation for giving effect to international agreements

Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, Parliament has power to make any law for the whole or any part of the territory of India for implementing any treaty, agreement or convention with any other country or countries or any decision made at any international conference, association or other body

254. Inconsistency between laws made by Parliament and laws made by the Legislatures of States

(1) If any provision of a law made by the Legislature of a State is repugnant to any provision of a law made by Parliament which Parliament is competent to enact, or to any provision of an existing law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List, then, subject to the provisions of clause (2), the law made by Parliament, whether passed before or after the law made by the Legislature of such State, or, as the case may be, the existing law, shall prevail and the law made by the Legislature of the State shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void

(2) Where a law made by the Legislature of a State with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List contains any provision repugnant to the provisions of an earlier law made by Parliament or an existing law with respect to that matter, then, the law so made by the Legislature of such State shall, if it has been reserved for the consideration of the President and has received his assent, prevail in that State

Provided that nothing in this clause shall prevent Parliament from enacting at any time any law with respect to the same matter including a law adding to, amending, varying or repealing the law so made by the Legislature of the State

255. Requirements as to recommendations and previous sanctions to be regarded as matters of procedure only

No Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of a State and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some recommendation or previous sanction required by this Constitution was not given, if assent to that Act was given—

(a) where the recommendation required was that of the Governor, either by the Governor or by the President,

(b) where the recommendation required was that of the Rajpramukh, either by the Rajpramukh or by the President,

(c) where the recommendation or previous sanction required was that of the President, by the President

CHAPTER II*ADMINISTRATIVE RELATIONSGeneral256. Obligation of States and the Union

The executive power of every State shall be so exercised as to ensure compliance with the laws made by Parliament and any existing laws which apply in that State, and the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of such directions to a State as may appear to the Government of India to be necessary for that purpose

257. Control of the Union over States in certain cases

(1) The executive power of every State shall be so exercised as not to impede or prejudice the exercise of the executive power of the Union, and the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of such directions to a State as may appear to the Government of India to be necessary for that purpose

(2) The executive power of the Union shall also extend to the giving of directions to a State as to the construction and maintenance of means of communication declared in the direction to be of national or military importance

Provided that nothing in this clause shall be taken as restricting the power of Parliament to declare highways or waterways to be national highways or national waterways so declared or the power of the Union to construct and maintain means of communication as part of its functions with respect to naval, military and air force works

(3) The executive power of the Union shall also extend to the giving of directions to a State as to the measures to be taken for the protection of the railways within the State

(4) Where in carrying out any direction given to a State under clause (2) as to the construction or maintenance of any means of communication or under clause (3) as to the measures to be taken for the protection of any railway, costs have been incurred in excess of those which would have been incurred in the discharge of the normal duties of the State if such direction had not been given, there shall be paid by the Government of India to the State such sum as may be agreed, or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of India, in respect of the extra costs so incurred by the State

(1) Parliament may by law establish a Contingency Fund in the nature of an imprest to be entitled "the Contingency Fund of India" into which shall be paid from time to time such sums as may be determined by such law, and the said Fund shall be placed at the disposal of the President to enable advances to be made by him out of such Fund for the purposes of meeting unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation of such expenditure by Parliament by law under article 115 or article 116

(2) The Legislature of a State may by law establish a Contingency Fund in the nature of an imprest to be entitled "the Contingency Fund of the State" into which shall be paid from time to time such sums as may be determined by such law, and the said Fund shall be placed at the disposal of the Governor of the State to enable advances to be made by him out of such Fund for the purposes of meeting unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation of such expenditure by the Legislature of the State by law under article 205 or article 206

*Distribution of Revenues between the Union and the States268. Duties levied by the Union but collected and appropriated by the States

(1) Such stamp duties and such duties of excise on medicinal and toilet preparations as are mentioned in the Union List shall be levied by the Government of India but shall be collected—

(a) in the case where such duties are leviable within any Union territory, by the Government of India, and

(b) in other cases, by the States within which such duties are respectively leviable

(2) The proceeds in any financial year of any such duty leviable within any State shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to that State

269. Taxes levied and collected by the Union but assigned to the States

(1) Taxes on the sales or purchase of goods and taxes on the consignment of goods shall be levied and collected by the Government of India but shall be assigned and shall be deemed to have been assigned to the States on or after the 1st day of April, 1996 in the manner provided in clause (2)

Explanation—For the purposes of this clause,—

(a) the expression “taxes on the sale or purchase of goods” shall mean taxes on sale or purchase of goods other than newspapers, where such sale or purchase takes place in the course of inter-State trade or commerce,

(b) the expression “taxes on the consignment of goods” shall mean taxes on the consignment of goods (whether the consignment is to the person making it or to any other person), where such consignment takes place in the course of inter-State trade or commerce

(2) The net proceeds in any financial year of any such tax, except in so far as those proceeds represent proceeds attributable to Union territories, shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to the States within which that tax is leviable in that year, and shall be distributed among those States in accordance with such principles of distribution as may be formulated by Parliament by law.

(3) Parliament may by law formulate principles for determining when a sale or purchase of, or consignment of, goods takes place in the course of inter-State or commerce

270. Taxes levied and distributed between the Union and the States

(1) All taxes and duties referred to in the Union List, except the duties and taxes referred to in articles 268 and 269, respectively, surcharge on taxes and duties referred to in article 271 and any cess levied for specific purposes under any law made by Parliament shall be levied and collected by the Government of India and shall be distributed between the Union and the States in the manner provided in clause (2)

(2) Such percentage, as may be prescribed, of the net proceeds of any such tax or duty in any financial year shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to the States within which that tax or duty is leviable in that year, and shall be distributed among those States in such manner and from such time as may be prescribed in the manner provided in clause (3)

(3) In this article, "prescribed" means—

(a) until a Finance Commission has been constituted, prescribed by the President by order, and

(b) after a Finance Commission has been constituted, prescribed by the President by order after considering the recommendations of the Finance Commission,]

271. Surcharge on certain duties and taxes for purposes of the Union

Notwithstanding anything in articles 269 and 270, Parliament may at any time increase any of the duties or taxes referred to in those articles by a surcharge for purposes of the Union and the whole proceeds of any such surcharge shall form part of the Consolidated Fund of India.

272. [Article 272 omitted by the Constitution (Eightieth Amendment) Act, 2000, sec 4 ]

273. Grants in lieu of export duty on jute and jute products

(1) There shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India in each year as grants-in-aid of the revenues of the States of Assam, Bihar, Orissa and West Bengal, in lieu of assignment of any share of the net proceeds in each year of export duty on jute and jute products to those States, such sums as may be prescribed

(2) The sums so prescribed shall continue to be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India so long as any export duty on jute or jute products continues to be levied by the Government of India or until the expiration of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution, whichever is earlier.

(3) In this article, the expression "prescribed" has the same meaning as in article 270

274. Prior recommendation of President required to Bills affecting taxation in which States are interested

(1) No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies any tax or duty in which States are interested, or which varies the meaning of the expression "agricultural income" as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to an Income-tax, or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this Chapter moneys are or may be distributable to State, or which imposes any surcharge for the purposes of the Union as is mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, shall be introduced or moved in either House of Parliament except on the recommendation of the President

(2) In this article, the expression "tax or duty in which States are interested" means—

(a) a tax or duty the whole or part of the net proceeds whereof are assigned to any State, or

(b) a tax or duty by reference to the net proceeds whereof sums are for the time being payable out of the Consolidated Fund of India to any State

275. Grants from the Union to certain States

(1) Such sums as Parliament may by law provide shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India in each year as grants-in-aid of the revenues of such States as Parliament may determine to be in need of assistance, and different sums may be fixed for different States

Provided that there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in-aid of the revenues of a State such capital and recurring sums as may be necessary to enable that State to meet the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by the State with the approval of the Government of India for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the Scheduled Tribes in that State or raising the level of administration of the Scheduled Areas therein to that of the administration of the rest of the areas of that State

Provided further that there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in-aid of the revenues of the State of Assam sums, capital and recurring, equivalent to—

(a) the average excess of expenditure over the revenues during the two years immediately preceding the commencement of this Constitution in respect of the administration of the tribal areas specified in Part I of the table appended to paragraph 20 of the Sixth Schedule, and

(b) the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by that State with the approval of the Government of India for the purpose of raising the level of administration of the said areas to that of the administration of the rest of the areas of that State

(1A) On and from the formation of the autonomous State under article 244A,—

(i) any sums payable under clause (a) of the second proviso to clause (1) shall, if the autonomous State therein, be paid to the autonomous State, and, if the autonomous State comprises only some of those tribal areas, be apportioned between the State of Assam and the autonomous State as the President may, by order, specify,

(ii) there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in-aid of the revenues of the autonomous State sums, capital and recurring, equivalent to the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by the autonomous State with the approval of the Government of India for the purpose of raising the level of administration of that State to that of the administration of the rest of the State of Assam

(2) Until provision is made by Parliament under clause (1), the power conferred on Parliament under that clause shall be exercisable by the President by order and any order made by the President under this clause shall have effect subject to any provision so made by Parliament.

Provided that after a Finance Commission has been constituted no order shall be made under this clause by the President except after considering the recommendations of the Finance Commission

276. Taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments

(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 246, no law of the Legislature of a State relating to taxes for the benefit of the State or of a municipality, district board, local board or other local authority therein in respect of professions, trades, callings or employments shall be invalid on the ground that it relates to a tax on income

(2) The total amount payable in respect of any one person to the State or to any one municipality, district board, local board or other local authority in the State by way of taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments shall not exceed two thousand and five hundred rupees per annum

(3) The power of the Legislature of a State to make laws as aforesaid with respect to taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments shall not be construed as limiting in any way the power of Parliament to make laws with respect to taxes on income accruing from or arising out of professions, trades, callings and employments

277. Savings

Any taxes, duties, cesses or fees which, immediately before the commencement of this Constitution, were being lawfully levied by the Government of any State or by any municipality or other local authority or body for the purposes of the State, municipality, district or other local area may, notwithstanding that those taxes, duties, cesses or fees are mentioned in the Union List, continue to be levied and to be applied to the same purposes until provision to the contrary is made by Parliament by law.

278. Agreement with States in Part B of the First Schedule with regard to certain financial matters

[Rep by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch ]

279. Calculation of "net proceeds", etc.

(1) In the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, "net proceeds" means in relation to any tax or duty the proceeds thereof reduced by the cost of collection, and for the purposes of those provisions the net proceeds of any tax or duty, or of any part of any tax or duty, in or attributable to any area shall be ascertained and certified by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, whose certificate shall be final

(2) Subject as aforesaid, and to any other express provision of this Chapter, a law made by Parliament or an order of the President may, in any case where under this Part the proceeds of any duty or tax are, or may be, assigned to any State, provide for the manner in which the proceeds are to be calculated, for the time from or at which and the manner in which any payments are to be made, for the making of adjustments between one financial year and another, and for any other incidental or ancillary matters.

280. Finance Commission

(1) The President shall, within two years from the commencement of this Constitution and thereafter at the expiration of every fifth year or at such earlier time as the President considers necessary, by order constitute a Finance Commission which shall consist of a Chairman and four other members to be appointed by the President.

(2) Parliament may by law determine the qualifications which shall be requisite for appointment as members of the Commission and the manner in which they shall be selected.

(3) It shall be the duty of the Commission to make recommendations to the President as to—

(a) the distribution between the Union and the States of the net proceeds of taxes which are to be, or may be, divided between them under this Chapter and the allocation between the States of the respective shares of such proceeds;

(b) the principles which should govern the grants-in-aid of the revenues of the States out of the Consolidated Fund of India;

(bb) the measures needed to augment the Consolidated Fund of a State to supplement the resources of the Panchayats in the State on the basis of the recommendations made by the Finance Commission of the State;

(c) the measures needed to augment the Consolidated Fund of a State to supplement the resources of the Municipalities in the State on the basis of the recommendations made by the Finance Commission of the State;

(d) any other matter referred to the Commission by the President in the interests of sound finance.

(4) The Commission shall determine their procedure and shall have such powers in the performance of their functions as Parliament may by law confer on them.

281. Recommendations of the Finance Commission

The President shall cause every recommendation made by the Finance Commission under the provisions of this Constitution together with an explanatory memorandum as to the action taken thereon to be laid before each House of Parliament.

*Miscellaneous Financial Provisions282. Expenditure defrayable by the Union or a State out of its revenues

The Union or a State may make any grants for any public purpose, notwithstanding that the purpose is not one with respect to which Parliament or the Legislature of the State, as the case may be, may make laws.

283. Custody, etc. of Consolidated Funds, Contingency Funds and moneys credited to the public accounts

(1) The custody of the Consolidated Fund of India and the Contingency Fund of India, the payment of moneys into such Funds, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of public moneys other than those credited to such Funds received by or on behalf of the Government of India, their payment into the public account of India and the withdrawal of moneys from such account and all other matters connected with or ancillary to matters aforesaid shall be regulated by law made by Parliament, and, until provision in that behalf is so made, shall be regulated by rules made by the President.

(2) The custody of the Consolidated Fund of a State and the Contingency Fund of a State, the payment of moneys into such Funds, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of public moneys other than those credited to such Funds, received by or on behalf of the Government of the State, their payment into the public account of the State and withdrawal of moneys from such account and all other matters connected with or ancillary to matters aforesaid shall be regulated by law made by the Legislature of the State, and, until provision in that behalf is so made, shall be regulated by rules made by the Governor of the State.

284. Custody of suitors' deposits and other moneys received by public servants and courts

All moneys received by or deposited with—

(a) any officer employed in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State in his capacity as such, other than revenues or public moneys raised or received by the Government of India or the Government of the State, as the case may be, or

(b) any court within the territory of India to the credit of any cause, matter, account or persons, shall be paid into the public account of India or the public account of the State, as the case may be

285. Exemption of property of the Union from State taxation

(1) The property of the Union shall, save in so far as Parliament may by law otherwise provide, be exempt from all taxes imposed by a State or by any authority within a State.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall, until Parliament by law otherwise provides, prevent any authority within a State from levying any tax on any property of the Union to which such property was immediately before the commencement of this Constitution liable or treated as liable, so long as that tax continues to be levied in that State

286. Restrictions as to imposition of tax on the sale or purchase of goods

(1) No law of a State shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax on the sale or purchase of goods where such sale or purchase takes place—

(a) outside the State, or

(b) in the course of the import of the goods into, or export of the goods out of, the territory of India

(2) Parliament may by law formulate principles for determining when a sale or purchase of goods takes place in any of the ways mentioned in clause (1)

(3) Any law of a State shall, in so far as it imposes, or authorises the imposition of,—

(a) a tax on the sale or purchase of goods declared by Parliament by law to be of special importance in inter-State trade or commerce, or

(b) a tax on the sale or purchase of goods, being a tax of the nature referred to in sub-clause (b), sub-clause (c) or sub-clause (d) of clause (29A) of article 366, be subject to such restrictions and conditions in regard to the system of levy, rates and other incidents of the tax as Parliament may by law specify

287. Exemption from taxes on electricity

Save in so far as Parliament may by law otherwise provide, no law of a State shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax on the consumption or sale of electricity (whether produced by a Government or other persons) which is—

(a) consumed by the Government of India, or sold to the Government of India for consumption by that Government, or

(b) consumed in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway by the Government of India or a railway company operating that railway, or sold to that Government or any such railway company for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway, and any such law imposing, or authorising the imposition of, a tax on the sale of electricity shall secure that the price of electricity sold to the Government of India for consumption by that Government, or to any such railway company as aforesaid for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway, shall be less by the amount of the tax than the price charged to other consumers of a substantial quantity of electricity.

288. Exemption from taxation by States in respect of water or electricity in certain cases

(1) Save in so far as the President may by order otherwise provide, no law of a State in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax in respect of any water or electricity stored, generated, consumed, distributed or sold by any authority established by any existing law or any law made by Parliament for regulating or developing any inter-State river or river-valley

Explanation.—The expression "law of a State in force" in this clause shall include a law of a State passed or made before the commencement of this Constitution and not previously repealed, notwithstanding that it or parts of it may not be then in operation either at all or in particular areas

(2) The Legislature of a State may by law impose, or authorise the imposition of, any such tax as is mentioned in clause (1), but no such law shall have any effect unless it has, after having been reserved for the consideration of the President received his assent, and if any such law provides for the fixation of the rates and other incidents of such tax by means of rules or orders to be made under the law by any authority, the law shall provide for the previous consent of the President being obtained to the making of any such rule or order

289. Exemption of property and income of a State from Union taxation

(1) The property and income of a State shall be exempt from Union taxation

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall prevent the Union from imposing, or authorising the imposition of, any tax to such extent, if any, as Parliament may by law provide in respect of a trade or business of any kind carried on by, or on behalf of, the Government of a State, or any operations connected therewith, or any property used or occupied for the purposes of such trade or business, or any income accruing or arising in connection therewith

(3) Nothing in clause (2) shall apply to any trade or business, or to any class of trade or business, which Parliament may by law declare to be incidental to the ordinary functions of Government

290. Adjustment in respect of certain expenses and pensions

Where under the provisions of this Constitution the expenses of any court or Commission, or the pension payable to or in respect of a person who has served before the commencement of this Constitution under the Crown in India or after such commencement in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State, are charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or the Consolidated Fund of a State, then, if—

(a) in the case of a charge on the Consolidated Fund of India, the court or Commission serves any of the separate needs of a State, or the person has served wholly or in part in connection with the affairs of a State, or

(b) in the case of a charge on the Consolidated Fund of a State, the court or Commission serves any of the separate needs of the Union or another State, or the person has served wholly or in part in connection with the affairs of the Union or another State, there shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State or, as the case may be, the Consolidated Fund of India or the Consolidated Fund of the other State, such contribution in respect of the expenses or pension as may be agreed, or as may in default of agreement be determined by an arbitrator to be appointed by the Chief Justice of India

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Acts of the appropriate Legislature may regulate the recruitment, and conditions of service of persons appointed, to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State

Provided that it shall be competent for the President or such person as he may direct in the case of services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union, and for the Governor of a State or such person as he may direct in the case of services and posts in connection with the affairs of the State, to make rules regulating the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to such services and posts until provision in that behalf is made by or under an Act of the appropriate Legislature under this article, and any rules so made shall have effect subject to the provisions of any such Act

310. Tenure of office of persons serving the Union or a State

(1) Except as expressly provided by this Constitution, every person who is a member of a defence service or of a civil service of the Union or of an all-India service or holds any post connected with defence or any civil post under the Union, holds office during the pleasure of the President, and every person who is a member of a civil service of a State or holds any civil post under a State holds office during the pleasure of the Governor of the State

(2) Notwithstanding that a person holding a civil post under the Union or a State holds office during the pleasure of the President or, as the case may be, of the Governor of the State, any contract under which a person, not being a member of a defence service or of an all-India service or of a civil service of the Union or a State, is appointed under this Constitution to hold such a post may, if the President or the Governor as the case may be, deem it necessary in order to secure the services of a person having special qualifications, provide for the payment to him of compensation, if before the expiration of an agreed period, that post is abolished or he is, for reasons not connected with any misconduct on his part, required to vacate that post

311. Dismissal, removal or reduction in rank of persons employed in civil capacities under the Union or a State

(1) No person who is a member of a civil service of the Union or an all-India service or a civil service of a State or holds a civil post under the Union or a State shall be dismissed or removed by a authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed

(2) No such person as aforesaid shall be dismissed or removed or reduced in rank except after an inquiry in which he has been informed of the charges against him and given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in respect of those charges

Provided that where it is proposed after such inquiry, to impose upon him any such penalty, such penalty may be imposed on the basis of the evidence adduced during such inquiry and it shall not be necessary to give such person any opportunity of making representation on the penalty proposed

Provided further that this clause shall not apply—

(a) where a person is dismissed or removed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction on a criminal charge, or

(b) where the authority empowered to dismiss or remove a person or to reduce him in rank is satisfied that for some reason, to be recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to hold such inquiry, or

(c) where the President or the Governor, as the case may be, is satisfied that in the interest of the security of the State, it is not expedient to hold such inquiry

(3) If, in respect of any such person as aforesaid, a question arises whether it is reasonably practicable to hold such inquiry as is referred to in clause (2), the decision thereon of the authority empowered to dismiss or remove such person or to reduce him in rank shall be final

312. All-India Services

(1) Notwithstanding anything in Chapter VI of Part VI or Part XI, if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in the national interest so to do, Parliament may by law provide for the creation of one or more all-India services (including an all-India judicial service) common to the Union and the States, and, subject to the other provisions of this Chapter, regulate the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to any such service

(2) The services known at the commencement of this Constitution as the Indian Administrative Service and the Indian Police Service shall be deemed to be services created by Parliament under this article

(3) The all-India judicial service referred to in clause (1) shall not include any post inferior to that of a district judge as defined in article 236

(4) The law providing for the creation of the all-India judicial service aforesaid may contain such provisions for the amendment of Chapter VI of Part VI as may be necessary for giving effect to the provisions of that law and no such law shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368

312A. Power of Parliament to vary or revoke conditions of service of officers of certain services

(1) Parliament may by law—

(a) vary or revoke, whether prospectively or retrospectively, the conditions of service as respects remuneration, leave and pension and the rights as respects disciplinary matters of persons who, having been appointed by the Secretary of State or Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India before the commencement of this Constitution, continue on and after the commencement of the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972, to serve under the Government of India or of a State in any service or post,

(b) vary or revoke, whether prospectively or retrospectively, the conditions of service as respects pension of persons who, having been appointed by the Secretary of State or Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India before the commencement of this Constitution, retired or otherwise ceased to be in service at any time before the commencement of the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972

Provided that in the case of any such person who is holding or has held the office of the Chief Justice or other Judge of the Supreme Court or a High Court, the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, the Chairman or other members of the Union or a State Public Service Commission or the Chief Election Commissioner, nothing in sub-clause (a) or sub-clause (b) shall be construed as empowering Parliament to vary or revoke, after his appointment to such post, the conditions of his service to his disadvantage except in so far as such conditions of his service to his disadvantage except in so far as such conditions of service are applicable to him by reason of his being a person appointed by the Secretary of State or Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India

(2) Except to the extent provided for by Parliament by law under this article, nothing in this article shall affect the power of any Legislature or other authority under any other provision of this Constitution to regulate the conditions of service of persons referred to in clause (1)

(3) Neither the Supreme Court nor any other court shall have jurisdiction in—

(a) any dispute arising out of any provision of, or any endorsement on, any covenant, agreement or other similar instrument which was entered into or executed by any person referred to in clause (1), or arising out of any letter issued to such person, in relation to his appointment to any civil service of the Crown in India or his continuance in service under the Government of the Dominion of India or a Province thereof,

(b) any dispute in respect of any right, liability or obligation under article 314 as originally enacted

(4) The provisions of the article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in article 314 as originally enacted or in any other provision of this Constitution

313. Transitional provisions

Until other provision is made in this behalf under this Constitution, all the laws in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution and applicable to any public service or any post which continues to exist after the commencement of service or post under the Union or a State shall continue in force so far as consistent with the provisions of this Constitution

314. Provision for protection of existing officers of certain services

[Rep. by the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972, sec. 3 (w. ef. 29-8-1972)]

CHAPTER II

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

315. Public Service Commissions for the Union and for the States

(1) Subject to the provisions of this article, there shall be a Public Service Commission for the Union and a Public Service Commission for each State

(2) Two or more States may agree that there shall be one Public Service Commission for that group of States, and if a resolution to that effect is passed by the House or, where there are two Houses, by each House of the Legislature of each of those States, Parliament may by law provide for the appointment of a Joint State Public Service Commission (referred to in this Chapter as Joint Commission) to serve the needs of those States

(3) Any such law as aforesaid may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as may be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the purposes of the law

(4) The Public Service Commission for the Union, if requested so to do by the Governor of a State, may, with the approval of the President, agree to serve all or any of the needs of the State

(5) References in this Constitution to the Union Public Service Commission or a State Public Service Commission shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be construed as references to the Commission serving the needs of the Union or, as the case may be, the State as respects the particular matter in question

316. Appointment and term of office of members

(1) The Chairman and other members of a Public Service Commission shall be appointed, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, by the President, and in the case of a State Commission, by the Governor of the State

Provided that as nearly as may be one-half of the members of every Public Service Commission shall be persons who at the dates of their respective appointments have held office for at least ten years either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State, and in computing the said period of ten years any period before the commencement of this Constitution during which a person has held office under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State shall be included

(1A) If the office of the Chairman of the Commission becomes vacant or if any such Chairman is by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some persons appointed under clause (1) to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof or, as the case may be, until the Chairman has resumed his duties, be performed by such one of the other members of the Commission as the President, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, and the Governor of the State in the case of a State in the case of a State Commission, may appoint for the purpose

(2) A member of a Public Service Commission shall hold office for a term of six years from the date on which he enters upon his office or until he attains, in the case of the Union Commission, the age of sixty-five years, and in the case of a State Commission or a Joint Commission, the age of sixty-two years, whichever is earlier

Provided that—

(a) a member of a Public Service Commission may, by writing under his hand addressed, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, to the President, and in the case of a State Commission, to the Governor of the State, resign his office,

(b) a member of a Public Service Commission may be removed from his office in the manner provided in clause (1) or clause (3) of article 317

(3) A person who holds office as a member of a Public Service Commission shall, on the expiration of his term of office, be ineligible for re-appointment to that office

317. Removal and suspension of a member of a Public Service Commission

(1) Subject to the provisions of clause (3), the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission shall only be removed from his office by order of the President on the ground of misbehaviour after the Supreme Court, on reference being made to it by the President, has, on inquiry held in accordance with the procedure prescribed in that behalf under article 145, reported that the Chairman or such other member, as the case may be, ought on any such ground to be removed

(2) The President, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, and the Governor in the case of a State Commission, may suspend from office the Chairman or any other member of the Commission in respect of whom a reference has been made to the Supreme Court under clause (1) until the President has passed orders on receipt of the report of the Supreme Court on such reference

(3) Notwithstanding anything in clause (1), the President may by order remove from office the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission if the Chairman or such other member, as the case may be,—

(a) is adjudged an insolvent, or

(b) engages during his term of office in any paid employment outside the duties of his office, or

(c) is, in the opinion of the President, unfit to continue in office by reason of infirmity of mind or body

(4) If the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission is or becomes in any way concerned or interested in any contract or agreement made by or on behalf of the Government of India or the Government of a State or participates in any way in the profit thereof or in any benefit or emolument arising therefrom otherwise than as a member and in common with the other members of an incorporated company, he shall, for the purposes of clause (1), be deemed to be guilty of misbehaviour

318. Power to make regulations as to conditions of service of members and staff of the Commission

In the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, the President and, in the case of a State Commission, the Governor of the State may by regulations—

(a) determine the, number of members of the Commission and their conditions of service, and

(b) make provision with respect to the number of members of the staff of the Commission and their conditions of service

Provided that the conditions of service of a member of a Public Service Commission shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

319. Prohibition as to the holding of offices by members of Commission on ceasing to be such members

On ceasing to hold office—

(a) the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission shall be ineligible for further employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State,

(b) the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman or any other member of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of any other State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State,

(c) a member other than the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State,

(d) a member other than the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman or any other member of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of that or any other State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State

320. Functions of Public Service Commissions

(1) It shall be the duty of the Union and the State Public Service Commission to conduct examinations for appointments to the services of the Union and the services of the State respectively

(2) It shall also be the duty of the Union Public Service Commission, if requested by any two or more States so to do, to assist those States in framing and operating schemes of joint recruitment for any services for which candidates possessing special qualifications are required

(3) The Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service Commission, as the case may be, shall be consulted—

(a) on all matters relating to methods of recruitment to civil services and for civil posts,

(b) on the principles to be followed in making appointments to civil services and posts and in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on the suitability of candidates for such appointments, promotions or transfers,

(c) on all disciplinary matters affecting a person serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State in a civil capacity, including memorials or petitions relating to such matters,

(d) on any claim by or in respect of a person who is serving or has served under the Government of India or the Government of a State or under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State, in a civil capacity, that any costs incurred by him in defending legal proceedings instituted against him in respect of acts done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India, or, as the case may be, out of the Consolidated Fund of the State,

(e) on any claim for the award of a pension in respect of injuries sustained by a person while serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State or under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State, in a civil capacity, and any question as to the amount of any such award, and it shall be the duty of a Public Service Commission to advise on any matter so referred to them and on any other matter which the President, or, as the case may be, the Governor of the State, may refer to them

Provided that the President as respects the all-India services and also as respects other services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union, and the Governor as respects other services and posts in connection with the affairs of a State, may make regulations specifying the matters in which either generally, or in any particular class of cases or in any particular circumstances, it shall not be necessary for a Public Service Commission to be consulted

(4) Nothing in clause (3) shall require a Public Service Commission to be consulted as respects the manner in which any provision referred to in clause (4) of article 16 may be made or as respects the manner in which effect may be given to the provisions of article 335

(5) All regulations made under the proviso to clause (3) by the President or the Governor of a State shall be laid for not less than fourteen days before each House of Parliament or the House or each House of the Legislature of the State, as the case may be, as soon as possible after they are made, and shall be subject to such modifications, whether by way of repeal or amendment, as both Houses of Parliament or the House or both Houses of the Legislature of the State may make during the session in which they are so laid

321. Power to extend functions of Public Service Commissions

An Act made by Parliament or, as the case may be, the Legislature of a State may provide for the exercise of additional functions by the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service Commission as respects the services of the Union or the State and also as respects the services of any local authority or other body corporate constituted by law or of any public institution

322. Expenses of Public Service Commission

The expenses of the Union or a State Public Service Commission, including any salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the members or staff of the Commission, shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or, as the case may be, the Consolidated Fund of the State

323. Reports of Public Service Commissions

(1) It shall be the duty of the Union Commission to present annually to the President a report as to the work done by the Commission and on receipt of such report the President shall cause a copy thereof together with a memorandum explaining, as respects the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reason for such non-acceptance to be laid before each House of Parliament

(2) It shall be the duty of a State Commission to present annually to the Governor of the State a report as to the work done by the Commission, and it shall be the duty of a Joint Commission to present annually to the Governor of each of the States the needs of which are served by the Joint Commission a report as to the work done by the Commission in relation to that State, and in either case the Governor shall, on receipt of such report, cause a copy thereof together with a memorandum explaining, as respects the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before the Legislature of the State

PART XIVA
TRIBUNALS

323A. Administrative tribunals

Parliament may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by administrative tribunals of disputes and complaints with respect to recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State or of any local or other authority within the territory of India or under the control of the Government of India or of any corporation owned or controlled by the Government

(2) A law made under clause (1) may,—

(a) provide for the establishment of an administrative tribunal for the Union and a separate administrative tribunal for each State or for two or more States,

(b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals,

(c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals,

(d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts, except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under article 136, with respect to the disputes or complaints referred to in clause (1);

(e) provide for the transfer to each such administrative tribunal of any cases pending before any court or other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the cause of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment,

(f) repeal or amend any order made by the President under clause (3) of article 371D,

(g) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as Parliament may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals

(3) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any other provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force

323B. Tribunals for other matters

(1) The appropriate Legislature may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by tribunals of any disputes, complaints, or offences with respect to all or any of the matters specified in clause (2) with respect to which such Legislature has power to make laws

(2) The matters referred to in clause (1) are the following, namely —

- (a) levy, assessment, collection and enforcement of any tax,
- (b) foreign exchange, import and export across customs frontiers,
- (c) industrial and labour disputes,
- (d) land reforms by way of acquisition by the State of any estate as defined in article 31A or of any rights therein or the extinguishment or modification of any such rights or by way of ceiling on agricultural land or in any other way,
- (e) ceiling on urban property,
- (f) elections to either House of Parliament or the House or either House of the Legislature of a State, but excluding the matters referred to in article 329 and article 329A,
- (g) production, procurement, supply and distribution of foodstuffs (including edible oilseeds and oils) and such other goods as the President may, by public notification, declare to be essential goods for the purpose of this article and control of prices of such goods,
- (h) rent, its regulation and control and tenancy issues including the rights, title and interest of landlords and tenants,
- (i) offences against laws with respect to any of the matters specified in sub-clause (a) to (h) and fees in respect of any of those matters,
- (j) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clause (a) to (i)

(3) A law made under clause (1) may,—

- (a) provide for the establishment of a hierarchy of tribunals,
- (b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals,
- (c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals,

(d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under article 136 with respect to all or any of the matters falling within the jurisdiction of the said tribunals,

(e) provide for the transfer to each such tribunal of any cases pending before any court or any other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the causes of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment,

(f) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as the appropriate Legislature may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals

(4) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any other provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force

Explanation —In this article, "appropriate Legislature", in relation to any matter, means Parliament or, as the case may be, a State Legislature competent to make laws with respect to such matter in accordance with the provisions of Part XI.

PART XV ELECTIONS

324. Superintendence, direction and control of elections to be vested in an Election Commission

(1) The superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of the electoral rolls for, and the conduct of, all elections to Parliament and to the Legislature of every State and of elections to the offices of President and Vice-President held under this Constitution shall be vested in a Commission (referred to in this Constitution as the Election Commission)

(2) The Election Commission shall consist of the Chief Election Commissioner and such number of other Election Commissioners, if any, as the President may from time to time fix and the appointment of the Chief Election Commissioner and other Election Commissioners shall, subject to the provisions of any law made in that behalf by Parliament, be made by the President

(3) When any other Election Commissioner is so appointed the Chief Election Commissioner shall act as the Chairman of the Election Commission

(4) Before each general election to the House of the People and to the Legislative Assembly of each State, and before the first general election and thereafter before each biennial election to the Legislative Council of each State having such Council, the President may also appoint after consultation with the Election Commission such Regional Commissioners as he may consider necessary to assist the Election Commission - in the performance of the functions conferred on the Commission by clause (1)

(5) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service and tenure of office of the Election Commissioners and the Regional Commissioners shall be such as the President may by rule determine

Provided that the Chief Election Commissioner shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like grounds as a Judge of the Supreme Court and the conditions of service of the Chief Election Commissioner shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

Provided further that any other Election Commissioner or a Regional Commissioner shall not be removed from office except on the recommendation of the Chief Election Commissioner

(6) The President, or the Governor of a State, shall, when so requested by the Election Commission, make available to the Election Commission or to a Regional Commissioner such staff as may be necessary for the discharge of the functions conferred on the Election Commission by clause (1)

325. No person to be ineligible for inclusion in, or to claim to be included in a special, electoral roll on grounds of religion, race, caste or sex

There shall be one general electoral roll for every territorial constituency for election to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State and no person shall be ineligible for inclusion in any such roll or claim to be included in any special electoral roll for any such constituency on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex or any of them

326 Elections to the House of the People and to the Legislative Assemblies of States to be on the basis of adult suffrage

The elections to the House of the People and to the Legislative Assembly of every State shall be on the basis of adult suffrage, that is to say, every person who is a citizen of India and who is not less than eighteen years of age on such date as may be fixed in that behalf by or under any law made by the appropriate Legislature and is not otherwise disqualified under this Constitution or any law made by the appropriate Legislature on the ground of non-residence, unsoundness of mind, crime or corrupt or illegal practice, shall be entitled to be registered as a voter at any such election

327. Power of Parliament to make provision with respect to elections to Legislatures

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may from time to time by law make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, elections to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State including the preparation of electoral rolls, the delimitation of constituencies and all other matters necessary for securing the due constitution of such House or Houses

328. Power of Legislature of a State to make provision with respect to elections to such Legislature

Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and in so far as provision in that behalf is not made by Parliament, the Legislature of a State may from time to time by law make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, the elections to the House or either House of the Legislature of the State including the preparation of electoral rolls and all other matters necessary for securing the due constitution of such House or Houses

329. Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters

(a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies or the allotment of seats to such constituencies, made or purporting to be made under article 327 or article 328, shall not be called in question in any court,

(b) no election to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as may be provided for by or under any law made by the appropriate Legislature

329A. Special provision as to elections to Parliament in the case of Prime Minister and Speaker

[Rep. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec 36 (w e f 20-6-1979) ]

Explanation—In this article 332, the expression “population” means the population as ascertained at the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published

Provided that the reference in this Explanation to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published shall, until the relevant figures for the first census taken after the year 2000 have been published, be construed as a reference to the 1971 census

331. Representation of the Anglo-Indian community in the House of the People

Notwithstanding anything in article 81, the President may, if he is of opinion that the Anglo-Indian community is not adequately represented in the House of the people, nominate not more than two members of that community to the House of the People

332. Reservation of seats for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assemblies of the States

(1) Seats shall be reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, except the Scheduled Tribes in the autonomous districts of Assam, in the Legislative Assembly of every State

(2) Seats shall be reserved also for the autonomous districts in the Legislative Assembly of the State of Assam

(3) The number of seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes or the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly of any State under clause (1) shall bear, as nearly as may be, the same proportion to the total number of seats in the Assembly as the population of the Scheduled Castes in the State or of the Scheduled Tribes in the State or part of the State, as the case may be, in respect of which seats are so reserved bears to the total population of the State

(3A) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (3), until the taking effect, under article 170, of the re-adjustment, on the basis of the first census after the year 2000, of the number of seats in the Legislative Assemblies of the States of Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya, Mizoram and Nagaland, the seats which shall be reserved for the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly of any such State shall be—

(a) if all the seats in the Legislative Assembly of such State in existence on the date of coming into force of the Constitution (Fifty-seventh Amendment) Act, 1987 (hereafter in this clause referred to as the existing Assembly) are held by members of the Scheduled Tribes, all the seats except one,

(b) in any other case, such number of seats as bears to the total number of seats, a proportion not less than the number (as on the said date) of members belonging to the Scheduled Tribes in the existing Assembly bears to the total number of seats in existing Assembly

(3B) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (3), until the re-adjustment, under article 170, takes effect on the basis of the first census after the year 2000, of the number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of the State of Tripura, the seats which shall be reserved for the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly, shall be, such number of seats as bears to the total number of seats, a proportion not less than the number, as on the date of coming into force of the Constitution (Seventy-second Amendment) Act, 1992, of members belonging to the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly in existence on the said date bears to the total number of seats in that Assembly

(4) The number of seats reserved for an autonomous district in the Legislative Assembly of the State of Assam shall bear to the total number of seats in that Assembly a proportion not less than the population of the district bears to the total population of the State

(5) The constituencies for the seats reserved for any autonomous district of Assam shall not comprise any area outside that district

(6) No person who is not a member of a Scheduled Tribe of any autonomous district of the State of Assam shall be eligible for election to the Legislative Assembly of the State from any constituency of that district

333. Representation of the Anglo-Indian community in the Legislative Assemblies of the States

Notwithstanding anything in article 170, the Governor of a State may, if he is of opinion that the Anglo-Indian community needs representation in the Legislative Assembly of the State and is not adequately represented therein, nominate one member of that community to the Assembly

334. Reservation of seats and special representation to cease after fifty years

Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part, the provisions of Constitution relating to—

(a) the reservation of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes in the House of the People and in the Legislative Assemblies of the States, and

(b) the representation of the Anglo-Indian community in the House of the People and in the Legislative Assemblies of the States by nomination, shall cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of fifty years from the commencement of this Constitution

Provided that nothing in this article shall affect any representation in the House of the People or in the Legislative Assembly of a State until the dissolution of the then existing House or Assembly, as the case may be

335. Claims of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to services and posts

The claims of the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes shall be taken into consideration, consistently with the maintenance of efficiency of administration, in the making of appointments to services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State

336. Special provision for Anglo-Indian community in certain services

(1) During the first two years after the commencement of this Constitution, appointments of members of the Anglo-Indian community to posts in the railway, customs, postal and telegraph services of the Union shall be made on the same basis as immediately before the fifteenth day of August, 1947

During every succeeding period of two years, the number of posts reserved for the members of the said community in the said services shall, as nearly as possible, be less by ten per cent than the numbers so reserved during the immediately preceding period of two years

Provided that at the end of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution all such reservations shall cease

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall bar the appointment of members of the Anglo-Indian community to posts other than, or in addition to, those reserved for the community under that clause if such members are found qualified for appointment on merit as compared with the members of other communities

337 Special provision with respect to educational grants for the benefit of Anglo-Indian community

During the first three financial years after the commencement of this Constitution, the same grants, if any, shall be made by the Union and by each State for the benefit of the Anglo-Indian community in respect of education as were made in the financial year ending on the thirty-first day of March, 1948

During every succeeding period of three years the grants may be less by ten per cent than those for the immediately preceding period of three years

Provided that at the end of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution such grants, to the extent to which they are a special concession to the Anglo-Indian community, shall cease

Provided further that no educational institution shall be entitled to receive any grant under this article unless at least forty per cent of annual admissions therein are made available to members of communities other than the Anglo-Indian community

338. Special Officer for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, etc.

(1) There shall be a special officer for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes to be known as the National Commission for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made in this behalf by Parliament, the Commission shall consist of a Chairperson, Vice-Chairperson and five other Members and the conditions of service and tenure of office of the Chairperson, Vice-Chairperson and other members so appointed shall be such as the President may by rule determine

(3) The Chairperson, Vice-Chairperson and other Members of the Commission shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand and seal.

(4) The Commission shall have the power to regulate its own procedure

(5) It shall be the duty of the Commission—

(a) to investigate and monitor all matters relating to the safeguards provided for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes under this Constitution or under any other law for the time being in force or under any order of the Government and to evaluate the working of such safeguards;

(b) to inquire into specific complaints with respect to the deprivation of rights and safeguards of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes,

(c) to participate and advise on the planning process of socio-economic development of the Schedule Castes and Scheduled Tribes and to evaluate the progress of their development under the Union and any State,

(d) to present to the President, annually and at such other times as the Commission may deem fit, reports upon the working of those safeguards,

(e) to make in such reports recommendations as to the measures that should be taken by the Union or any State for the effective implementation of those safeguards and other measures for the protection, welfare and socio-economic development of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, and

(f) to discharge such other functions in relation to the protection, welfare and development and advancement of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes as the President may, subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, by the rule specify

(6) The President shall cause all such reports to be laid before each House of Parliament along with a memorandum explaining the action taken or proposed to be taken on the recommendations relating to the Union and the reasons for the non-acceptance, if any, of any of such recommendations

(7) Where any such report, or any part thereof, relates to any matter with which any State Government is concerned, a copy of such report shall be forwarded to the Governor of the State who shall cause it to be laid before the Legislature of the State along with a memorandum explaining the action taken or proposed to be taken on the recommendations relating to the State and the reasons for the non-acceptance, if any, of any of such recommendations

(8) The Commission shall, while investigating any matter referred to in sub-clause (a) or inquiring into any complaint referred to in sub-clause (b) of clause (5), have all the powers of a civil court trying a suit and in particular in respect of the following matters, namely —

- (a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person from any part of India and examining him on oath,
- (b) requiring the discovery and production of any documents,
- (c) receiving evidence on affidavits,
- (d) requisitioning any public or copy thereof from any court or office,
- (e) issuing commissions for the examination of witnesses and documents,
- (f) any other matter which the President may by rule determine

(9) The Union and every State Government shall consult the Commission on all major policy matters affecting Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes

(10) In this article, references to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes shall be construed as including references to such other backward classes as the President may, on receipt of the report of a Commission appointed under clause (1) of article 340 by order specify and also to the Anglo-Indian community

339. Control of the Union over the administration of Scheduled Areas and the welfare of Scheduled Tribes

(1) The President may at any time and shall, at the expiration of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution by order appoint a Commission to report on the administration of the Scheduled Areas and the welfare of the Scheduled Tribes in the States. The order may define the composition, powers and procedure of the Commission and may contain such incidental or ancillary provisions as the President may consider necessary or desirable

(2) The executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of directions to a State as to the drawing up and execution of schemes specified in the direction to be essential for the welfare of the Scheduled Tribes in the State

340. Appointment of a Commission to investigate the conditions of backward classes

(1) The President may by order appoint a Commission consisting of such persons as he thinks fit to investigate the conditions of socially and educationally backward classes within the territory of India and the difficulties under which they labour and to make recommendations as to the steps that should be taken by the Union or any State to remove such difficulties and to improve their condition and as to the grants that should be made for the purpose by the Union or any State and the conditions subject to which such grants should be made, and the order appointing such Commission shall define the procedure to be followed by the Commission

(2) A Commission so appointed shall investigate the matters referred to them and present to the President a report setting out the facts as found by them and making such recommendations as they think proper

(3) The President shall cause a copy of the report so presented together with a memorandum explaining the action taken thereon to be laid before each House of Parliament

341. Scheduled Castes

(1) The President may with respect to any State or Union territory, and where it is a State after consultation with the Governor thereof, by public notification, specify the castes, races or tribes or parts of or groups within castes, races or tribes which shall for the purposes of this Constitution be deemed to be Scheduled Castes in relation to that State or Union territory, as the case may be.

(2) Parliament may by law include in or exclude from the list of Scheduled Castes specified in a notification issued under clause (1) any caste, race or tribe or part of or group within any caste, race or tribe, but save as aforesaid a notification issued under the said clause shall not be varied by any subsequent notification.

342. Scheduled Tribes

(1) The President may with respect to any State or Union territory, and where it is a State after consultation with the Governor thereof, by public notification, specify the tribes or tribal communities or parts of or groups within tribes or tribal communities which shall for the purposes of this Constitution be deemed to be Scheduled Tribes in relation to that State or Union territory, as the case may be

(2) Parliament may by law include in or exclude from the list of Scheduled Tribes specified in a notification issued under clause (1) any tribe or tribal community or part of or group within any tribe or tribal community, but save as aforesaid a notification issued under the said clause shall not be varied by any subsequent notification

PART XVII*OFFICIAL LANGUAGE*CHAPTER I*LANGUAGE OF THE UNION*343. Official language of the Union

(1) The official language of the Union shall be Hindi in Devanagari script

The form of numerals to be used for the official purposes of the Union shall be the international form of Indian numerals

(2) Notwithstanding anything in clause (1), for a period of fifteen years from the commencement of this Constitution, the English language shall continue to be used for all the official purposes of the Union for which it was being used immediately before such commencement

Provided that the President may, during the said period, by order authorise the use of the Hindi language in addition to the English language and of the Devanagari form of numerals in addition to the international form of Indian numerals for any of the official purposes of the Union

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this article, Parliament may by law provide for the use, after the said period of fifteen years, of—

- (a) the English language, or
- (b) the Devanagari form of numerals, for such purposes as may be specified in the law

344 Commission and Committee of Parliament on official language

(1) The President shall, at the expiration of five years from the commencement of this Constitution and thereafter at the expiration of ten years from such commencement, by order constitute a Commission which shall consist of a Chairman and such other members representing the different languages specified in the Eighth Schedule as the President may appoint, and the order shall define the procedure to be followed by the Commission

(2) It shall be the duty of the Commission to make recommendations to the President as to—

(a) the progressive use of the Hindi language for the official purposes of the Union,

(b) restrictions on the use of the English language for all or any of the official purposes of the Union,

(c) the language to be used for all or any of the purposes mentioned in article 348,

(d) the form of numerals to be used for any one or more specified purposes of the Union,

(e) any other matter referred to the Commission by the President as regards the official language of the Union and the language for communication between the Union and a State or between one State and another and their use

(3) In making their recommendations under clause (2), the Commission shall have due regard to the industrial, cultural and scientific advancement of India, and the just claims and the interests of persons belonging to the non-Hindi speaking areas in regard to the public services

(4) There shall be constituted a Committee consisting of thirty members, of whom twenty shall be members of the House of the People and ten shall be members of the Council of States to be elected respectively by the members of the House of the People and the members of the Council of States in accordance with the system of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote

(5) It shall be the duty of the Committee to examine the recommendations of the Commission constituted under clause (1) and to report to the President their opinion thereon

(6) Notwithstanding anything in article 343, the President may, after consideration of the report referred to in clause (5), issue directions in accordance with the whole or any part of that report

REGIONAL LANGUAGES

345. Official language or languages of a State

Subject to the provisions of articles 346 and 347, the Legislature of a State may by law adopt any one or more of the languages in use in the State Hindi as the language or languages to be used for all or any of the official purposes of that State

Provided that, until the Legislature of the State otherwise provides law, the English language shall continue to be used for those official purposes within the State for which it was being used immediately before the commencement of this Constitution

346. Official language for communication between one State and another or between a State and the Union

The language for the time being authorised for use in the Union for official purposes shall be the official language for communication between one State and another State and between a State and the Union

Provided that if two or more States agree that the Hindi language should be the official language for communication between such States, that language may be used for such communication

347. Special provision relating to language spoken by a section of the population of a State

On a demand being made in that behalf the President may, if he is satisfied that a substantial proportion of the population of a State desire the use of any language spoken by them to be recognised throughout that State or any part thereof for such purpose as he may specify

CHAPTER III

LANGUAGE OF THE SUPREME COURT, HIGH COURTS, ETC.

348. Language to be used in the Supreme Court and in the High Courts and for Acts, Bills, etc.

(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part until Parliament by law otherwise provides—

- (a) all proceedings in the Supreme Court and in every High Court,
- (b) the authoritative texts—

(i) of all Bills to be introduced or amendments thereto to be moved in either House of Parliament or in the House or either House of the Legislature of a State,

(ii) of all Acts passed by Parliament or the Legislature of a State and of all Ordinances promulgated by the President or the Governor of a State, and

(iii) of all orders, rules, regulations and bye-laws issued under this Constitution or under any law made by Parliament or the Legislature of a State, shall be in the English language

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sub-clause (a) of clause (1), the Governor of a State may, with the previous consent of the President, authorise the use of the Hindi language, or any other language used for any official purposes of the State, in proceedings in the High Court having its principal seat in that State

Provided that nothing in this clause shall apply to any judgment, decree or order passed or made by such High Court.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-clause (b) of clause (1), where the Legislature of a State has prescribed any language other than the English language for use in Bills introduced in, or Acts passed by, the Legislature of the State or in Ordinances promulgated by the Governor of the State or in any order, rule, regulation or bye-law referred to in paragraph (iv) of that sub-clause, a translation of the same in the English language published under the authority of the Governor of the State in the Official Gazette of that State shall be deemed to be the authoritative text thereof in the English language under this article

349. Special procedure for enactment of certain laws relating to language

During the period of fifteen years from the commencement of this Constitution, no Bill or amendment making provision for the language to be used for any of the purposes mentioned in clause (1) of article 348 shall be introduced or moved in either House of Parliament without the previous sanction of the President, and the President shall not give his sanction to the introduction of any such Bill or the moving of any such amendment except after he has taken into consideration the recommendations of the Commission constituted under clause (1) of article 344 and the report of the Committee constituted under clause (4) of that article

CHAPTER IV SPECIAL DIRECTIVES

350 Language to be used in representations for redress of grievances

Every person shall be entitled to submit a representation for the redress of any grievance to any officer or authority of the Union or a State in any of the languages used in the Union or in the State, as the case may be

350A. Facilities for instruction in mother-tongue at primary stage

It shall be the endeavour of every State and of every local authority within the State to provide adequate facilities for instruction in the mother-tongue at the primary stage of education to children belonging to linguistic minority groups, and the President may issue such directions to any State as he considers necessary or proper for securing the provision of such facilities

350B. Special Officer for linguistic minorities

(1) There shall be a Special Officer for linguistic minorities to be appointed by the President

(2) It shall be the duty of the Special Officer to investigate all matters relating to the safeguards provided for linguistic minorities under this Constitution and report to the President upon those matters at such intervals as the President may direct, and the President shall cause all such reports to be laid before each House of Parliament, and sent to the Governments of the States concerned

351. Directive for development of the Hindi language

It shall be the duty of the Union to promote the spread of the Hindi language, to develop it so that it may serve as a medium of expression for all the elements of the composite culture of India and to secure its enrichment by assimilating without interfering with its genius, the forms, style and expressions used in Hindustani and in the other languages of India specified in the Eighth Schedule, and by drawing, wherever necessary or desirable, for its vocabulary, primarily on Sanskrit and secondarily on other languages

PART XVIII*EMERGENCY PROVISIONS*352. Proclamation of Emergency

(1) If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India or of any part of the territory thereof is threatened, whether by war or external aggression or armed rebellion, he may, by Proclamation, make a declaration to that effect in respect of the whole of India or of such part of the territory thereof as may be specified in the Proclamation

Explanation —A Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by war or by external aggression or by armed rebellion may be made before the actual occurrence of war or of any such aggression or rebellion, if the President is satisfied that there is imminent danger thereof

(2) A Proclamation issued under clause (1) may be varied or revoked by a subsequent Proclamation

(3) The President shall not issue a Proclamation under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation unless the decision of the Union Cabinet (that is to say, the Council consisting of the Prime Minister and other Ministers of Cabinet rank under article 75) that such a Proclamation may be issued has been communicated to him in writing

(4) Every Proclamation issued under this article shall be laid before each House of Parliament and shall, except where it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation, cease to operate at the expiration of one month unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament

Provided that if any such Proclamation (not being a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation) is issued at a time when the House of the People has been dissolved, or the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during the period of one month referred to in this clause, and if a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People before the expiration of that period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution, unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People

(5) A Proclamation so approved shall, unless revoked, cease to operate on the expiration of a period of six months from the date of the passing of the second of the resolutions approving the proclamation under clause (4)

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament the Proclamation shall, unless revoked, continue in force for a further period of six months from the date on which it would otherwise have ceased to operate under this clause

Provided further that if the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during any such period of six months and a resolution approving the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People during the said period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days, a resolution approving the continuance in force of the proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People

(6) For the purpose of clause (4) and (5), a resolution may be passed by either House of Parliament only by a majority of the total membership of that House and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of that House present and voting

(7) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing clauses, the President shall revoke a Proclamation issued under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation if the House of the People passes a resolution disapproving, or, as the case may be, disapproving the continuance in force of, such Proclamation

(8) Where a notice in writing signed by not less than one-tenth of the total number of members of the House of the People has been given, of their intention to move a resolution for disapproving, or, as the case may be, for disapproving the continuance in force of, a Proclamation issued under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation,—

(a) to the Speaker, if the House is in session, or

(b) to the President, if the House is not in session, a special sitting of the House shall be held within fourteen days from the date on which such notice is received by the Speaker, or as the case may be, by the President, for the purpose of considering such resolution

(9) The power conferred on the President by this article shall include the power to issue different Proclamations on different grounds, being war or external aggression or armed rebellion or imminent danger of war or external aggression or armed rebellion, whether or not there is a Proclamation already issued by the President under clause (1) and such Proclamation is in operation

353. Effect of Proclamation of Emergency

While a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, then—

(a) notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of directions to any State as to the manner in which the executive power thereof is to be exercised,

(b) the power of Parliament to make laws with respect to any matter shall include power to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorising the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Union or officers and authorities of the Union as respects that matter, notwithstanding that it is one which is not enumerated in the Union List,

Provided that where a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation only in any part of the territory of India

(i) the executive power of the Union to give directions under clause (a), and

(ii) the power of Parliament to make laws under clause (b), shall also extend to any State other than a State in which or in any part of which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation if and in so far as the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by activities in or in relation to the part of the territory of India in which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation.

354. Application of provisions relating to distribution of revenues while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation

(1) The President may, while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, by order direct that all or any of the provisions of articles 268 to 279 shall for such period, not extending in any case beyond the expiration of the financial year in which such Proclamation ceases to operate, as may be specified in the order, have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as he thinks fit

(2) Every order made under clause (1) shall, as soon as may be after it is made, be laid before each House of Parliament

355. Duty of the Union to protect States against external aggression and internal disturbance

It shall be the duty of the Union to protect every State against external aggression and internal disturbance and to ensure that the Government of every State is carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution

356. Provisions in case of failure of constitutional machinery in State

(1) If the President, on receipt of report from the Governor of the State or otherwise, is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the government of the State cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution, the President may by Proclamation—

(a) assume to himself all or any of the functions of the Government of the State and all or any of the powers vested in or exercisable by the Governor or any body or authority in the State other than the Legislature of the State,

(b) declare that the powers of the Legislature of the State shall be exercisable by or under the authority of Parliament,

(c) make such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the President to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of this Constitution relating to any body or authority in the State

Provided that nothing in this clause shall authorise the President to assume to himself any of the powers vested in or exercisable by a High Court, or to suspend in whole or in part the operation of any provision of this Constitution relating to High Courts

(2) Any such Proclamation may be revoked or varied by a subsequent Proclamation

(3) Every Proclamation issued under this article except where it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation, cease to operate at the expiration of two months unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament

Provided that if any such Proclamation (not being a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation) is issued at a time when the House of the People is dissolved or the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during the period of two months referred to in this clause, and if a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People before the expiration of that period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People

(4) A Proclamation so approved shall, unless revoked, cease to operate on the expiration of a period of six months from the date of issue of the Proclamation

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament, the Proclamation shall, unless revoked, continue in force for a further period of six months from the date on which under this clause it would otherwise have ceased to operate, but no such Proclamation shall in any case remain in force for more than three years

Provided further that if the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during any such period of six months and a resolution approving the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People during the said period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the continuance in force of the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People

Provided also that in the case of the Proclamation issued under clause (1) on the 11th day of May, 1987 with respect to the State of Punjab, the reference in the first proviso to this clause to "three years" shall be construed as a reference to five years

(5) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (4), a resolution with respect to the continuance in force of a Proclamation approved under clause (3) for any period beyond the expiration of one year from the date of issue of such proclamation shall not be passed by either House of Parliament unless—

(a) a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, in the whole of India or, as the case may be, in the whole or any part of the State, at the time of the passing of such resolution, and

(b) the Election Commission certifies that the continuance in force of the Proclamation approved under clause (3) during the period specified in such resolution is necessary on account of difficulties in holding general elections to the Legislative Assembly of the State concerned

Provided that nothing in this clause shall apply to the Proclamation issued under clause (1) on the 11th day of May, 1987 with respect to the State of Punjab

357 Exercise of legislative powers under Proclamation issued under article 356

(1) Where by a Proclamation issued under clause (1) of article 356, it has been declared that the powers of the Legislature of the State shall be exercisable by or under the authority of Parliament, it shall be competent—

(a) for Parliament to confer on the President the power of the Legislature of the State to make laws, and to authorise the President to delegate, subject to such conditions as he may think fit to impose, the power so conferred to any other authority to be specified by him in that behalf,

(b) for Parliament, or for the President or other authority in whom such power to make laws is vested under sub-clause (a), to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorising the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Union or officers and authorities thereof,

(c) for the President to authorise when the House of the People is not in session expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of the State pending the sanction of such expenditure by Parliament

(2) Any law made in exercise of the power of the Legislature of the State by Parliament or the President or other authority referred to in sub-clause (a) of clause (1) which Parliament or the President or such other authority would not, but for the issue of a Proclamation under article 356, have been competent to make shall, after the Proclamation has ceased to operate, continue in force until altered or repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other authority

358. Suspension of provisions of article 19 during emergencies

(1) While a Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by war or by external aggression is in operation, nothing in article 19 shall restrict the power of the State as defined in Part III to make any law or to take any executive action which the State would but for the provisions contained in that Part be competent to make or to take, but any law so made shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect as soon as the Proclamation ceases to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the law so ceases to have effect

Provided that where such Proclamation of Emergency is in operation only in any part of the territory of India, any such law may be made, or any such executive action may be taken, under this article in relation to or in any State or Union territory in which or in any part of which the Proclamation of Emergency is not in operation, if and in so far as the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by activities in or in relation to the part of the territory of India in which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply—

(a) to any law which does not contain a recital to the effect that such law is in relation to the Proclamation of Emergency in operation when it is made, or

(b) to any executive action taken otherwise than under a law containing such a recital

359. Suspension of the enforcement of the rights conferred by Part III during emergencies

(1) Where a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, the President may by order declare that the right to move any court for the enforcement of such of the rights conferred by Part III (except articles 20 and 21) as may be mentioned in the order and all proceedings pending in any court for the enforcement of the rights so mentioned shall remain suspended for the period during which the Proclamation is in force or for such shorter period as may be specified in the order

(1A) While an order made under clause (1) mentioning any of the rights conferred by Part III (except articles 20 and 21) is in operation, nothing in that Part conferring those rights shall restrict the power of the State as defined in the said Part to make any law or to take any executive action which the State would but for the provisions containing in that Part be competent to make or to take, but any law so made shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect as soon as the order aforesaid ceases to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the law so ceases to have effect

Provided that where a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation only in any part of the territory of India, any such law may be made, or any such executive action may be taken, under this article in relation to or in any State or Union territory in which or in any part of which the Proclamation of Emergency is not in operation, if and in so far as the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by activities in or in relation to the part of the territory of India in which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation

(1B) Nothing in clause (1A) shall apply—

(a) to any law which does not contain a recital to the effect that such law is in relation to the Proclamation of Emergency in operation when it is made, or

(b) to any executive action taken otherwise than under a law containing such a recital

(2) An order made as aforesaid may extend to the whole or any part of the territory of India

Provided that where a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation only in a part of the territory of India, any such order shall not extend to any other part of the territory of India unless the President, being satisfied that the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by activities in or in relation to the part of the territory of India in which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, considers such extension to be necessary

(3) Every order made under clause (1) shall, as soon may be after it is made, be laid before each House of Parliament

359A. Application of this Part to the State of Punjab

[Rep by the Constitution (Sixty-third Amendment) Act, 1989, sec 3 (w e f 6-1-1990)]

360. Provisions as to financial emergency

(1) If the President is satisfied that a situation has arisen whereby the financial stability or credit of India or of any part of the territory thereof is threatened, he may by a Proclamation make a declaration to that effect

(2) A Proclamation issued under clause (1)

(a) may be revoked or varied by a subsequent Proclamation,

(b) shall be laid before each House of Parliament,

(c) shall cease to operate at the expiration of two months unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament

Provided that if any such Proclamation is issued at a time when the House of the People has been dissolved or the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during the period of two months referred to in sub-clause (c), and if a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People before the expiration of that period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution, unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People

(3) During the period any such Proclamation as is mentioned in clause (1) is in operation, the executive authority of the Union shall extend to the giving of directions to any State to observe such canons of financial propriety as may be specified in the directions, and to the giving of such other directions as the President may deem necessary and adequate for the purpose

(4) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution—

(a) any such direction may include

(i) a provision requiring the reduction of salaries and allowances of all or any class of persons serving in connection with the affairs of a State,

(ii) a provision requiring all Money Bills or other Bills to which the provisions of article 207 apply to be reserved for the consideration of the President after they are passed by the Legislature of the State,

(b) it shall be competent for the President during the period any Proclamation issued under this article is in operation to issue directions for the reduction of salaries and allowances of all or any class of persons serving in connection with the affairs of the Union including the Judges of the Supreme Court and the High Courts but any law made by Parliament, which Parliament would not but for the provisions of this article have been competent to make, shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of the said period, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration thereof

370. Temporary provisions with respect to the State of Jammu and Kashmir

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) the provisions of article 238 shall not apply in relation to the State of Jammu and Kashmir,

(b) the power of Parliament to make laws for the said State shall be limited to—

(i) those matters in the Union List and the Concurrent List which, in consultation with the Government of the State, are declared by the President to correspond to matters specified in the Instrument of

Accession governing the accession of the State to the Dominion of India as the matters with respect to which the Dominion Legislature may make laws for that State; and

(ii) such other matters in the said Lists as, with the concurrence of the Government of the State, the President may by order specify.

Explanation —For the purposes of this article, the Government of the State means the person for the time being recognised by the President as the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir acting on the advice of the Council of Ministers for the time being in office under the Maharaja's Proclamation dated the fifth day of March, 1948;

(c) the provisions of article 1 and of this article shall apply in relation to that State,

(d) such of the other provisions of this Constitution shall apply in relation to that State subject to such exceptions and modifications as the President may by order specify

Provided that no such order which relates to the matters specified in the Instrument of Accession of the State referred to in paragraph (i) of sub-clause (b) shall be issued except in consultation with the Government of the State.

Provided further that no such order which relates to matters other than those referred to in the last preceding proviso shall be issued except with the concurrence of that Government

(2) If the concurrence of the Government of the State referred to in paragraph (ii) of sub-clause (b) of clause (1) or in the second proviso to sub-clause (d) of that clause be given before the Constituent Assembly for the purpose of framing the Constitution of the State is convened, it shall be placed before such Assembly for such decision as it may take thereon.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this article, the President may, by public notification, declare that this article shall cease to be operative or shall be operative only with such exceptions and modifications and from such date as he may specify

Provided that the recommendation of the Constituent Assembly of the State referred to in clause (2) shall be necessary before the President issues such a notification

(2) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the President may by order made with respect to the State of Maharashtra or Gujarat, provide for any special responsibility of the Governor for—

(a) the establishment of separate development boards for Vidarbha, Marathwada, and the rest of Maharashtra or, as the case may be, Saurashtra, Kutch and the Gujarat with the provision that a report on the working of each of rest of these boards will be placed each year before the State Legislative Assembly,

(b) the equitable allocation of funds for developmental expenditure over the said areas, subject to the requirements of the State as a whole, and

(c) an equitable arrangement providing adequate facilities for technical education and vocational training, and adequate opportunities for employment in service under the control of the State Government, in respect of all the said areas, subject to the requirements of the State as a whole

371A. Special provision with respect to the State of Nagaland

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

- (a) no Act of Parliament in respect of
    - (i) religious or social practices of the Nagas,
    - (ii) Naga customary law and procedure,
    - (iii) administration of civil and criminal justice involving decisions according to Naga customary law,
    - (iv) ownership and transfer of land and its resources,
- shall apply to the State of Nagaland unless the Legislative Assembly of Nagaland by a resolution so decides,

(b) the Governor of Nagaland shall have special responsibility with respect to law and order in the State of Nagaland for so long as in his opinion internal disturbances occurring in the Naga Hills—Tuensang Area immediately before the formation of that State continue therein or in any part thereof and in the discharge of his functions in relation thereto the Governor shall, after consulting the Council of Ministers, exercise his individual judgment as to the action to be taken

Provided that if any question arises whether any matter is or is not a matter as respects which the Governor is under this sub-clause required to act in the exercise of his individual judgment, the decision of the Governor in his discretion shall be final, and the validity of anything done by the Governor shall not be called in question on the ground that he ought or ought not to have acted in the exercise of his individual judgment

Provided further that if the President on receipt of a report from the Governor or otherwise is satisfied that it is no longer necessary for the Governor to have special responsibility with respect to law and order in the State of Nagaland, he may by order direct that the Governor shall cease to have such responsibility with effect from such date as may be specified in the order,

(c) in making his recommendation with respect to any demand for a grant, the Governor of Nagaland shall ensure that any money provided by the Government of India out of the Consolidated Fund of India for any specific service or purpose is included in the demand for a grant relating to that service or purpose and not in any other demand,

(d) as from such date as the Governor of Nagaland may by public notification in this behalf specify, there shall be established a regional council for the Tuensang district consisting of thirty-five members and the Governor shall in his discretion make rules providing for—

(i) the composition of the regional council and the manner in which the members of the regional council shall be chosen

Provided that the Deputy Commissioner of the Tuensang district shall be the Chairman ex officio of the regional council and the Vice-Chairman of the regional council shall be elected by the members thereof from amongst themselves,

(ii) the qualifications for being chosen as, and for being, members of the regional council,

(iii) the term of office of, and the salaries and allowances, if any, to be paid to members of, the regional council,

(iv) the procedure and conduct of business of the regional council,

(v) the appointment of officers and staff of the regional council and their conditions of services, and

(vi) any other matter in respect of which it is necessary to make rules for the constitution and proper functioning of the regional council

(2) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, for a period of ten years from the date of the formation of the State of Nagaland or for such further period as the Governor may, on the recommendation of the regional council, by public notification specify in this behalf,—

(a) the administration of the Tuensang district shall be carried on by the Governor,

(b) where any money is provided by the Government of India to the Government of Nagaland to meet the requirements of the State of Nagaland as a whole, the Governor shall in his discretion arrange for an equitable allocation of that money between the Tuensang district and the rest of the State,

(c) no Act of the Legislature of Nagaland shall apply to the Tuensang district unless the Governor, on the recommendation of the regional council, by public notification so directs and the Governor in giving such direction with respect to any such Act may direct that the Act shall in its application to the Tuensang district or any part thereof have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as the Governor may specify on the recommendation of the regional council

Provided that any direction given under this sub-clause may be given so as to have retrospective effect,

(d) the Governor may make regulations for the peace, progress and good government of the Tuensang district and any regulations so made may repeal or amend with retrospective effect, if necessary, any Act of Parliament or any other law which is for the time being applicable to that district,

(e) (i) one of the members representing the Tuensang district in the Legislative Assembly of Nagaland shall be appointed Minister for Tuensang affairs by the Governor on the advice of the Chief Minister and the Chief Minister in tendering his advice shall act on the recommendation of the majority of the members as aforesaid,

(ii) the Minister for Tuensang affairs shall deal with, and have direct access to the Governor on, all matters relating to the Tuensang district but he shall keep the Chief Minister informed about the same,

(f) notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this clause, the final decision on all matters relating to the Tuensang district shall be made by the Governor in his discretion,

(g) in articles 54 and 55 and clause (4) of article 80, references to the elected members of the Legislative Assembly of a State or to each such member shall include references to the members or member of the Legislative Assembly of Nagaland elected by the regional council established under this article,

(h) in article 170—

(i) clause (1) shall, in relation to the Legislative Assembly of Nagaland, have effect as if for the word "sixty", the words "forty-six" had been substituted,

(ii) in the said clause, the reference to direct election from territorial constituencies in the State shall include election by the members of the regional council established under this article,

(iii) in clauses (2) and (3), references to territorial constituencies shall mean references to territorial constituencies in the Kohima and Mokokchung districts

(3) If any difficulty arises in giving effect to any of the foregoing provisions of this article, the President may by order do anything (including any adaptation or modification of any other article) which appears to him to be necessary for the purpose of removing that difficulty

Provided that no such order shall be made after the expiration of three years from the date of the formation of the State of Nagaland

Explanation—In this article, the Kohima, Mokokchung and Tuensang districts shall have the same meanings as in the State of Nagaland Act, 1962

371B. Special provision with respect to the State of Assam

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the President may, by order made with respect to the State of Assam, provide for the constitution and functions of a committee of the Legislative Assembly of the State consisting of members of that Assembly elected from the tribal areas specified in Part I of the table appended to paragraph 20 of the Sixth Schedule and such number of other members of that Assembly as may be specified in the order and for the modifications to be made in the rules of procedure of that Assembly for the constitution and proper functioning of such committee

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim shall consist of not less than thirty members,

(b) as from the date of commencement of the Constitution (Thirty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1975 (hereafter in this article referred to as the appointed day)—

(i) the Assembly for Sikkim formed as a result of the elections held in Sikkim in April, 1974 with thirty-two members elected in the said elections) hereinafter referred to as the sitting members) shall be deemed to be the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim duly constituted under this Constitution,

(ii) the sitting members shall be deemed to be the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim duly elected under this Constitution, and

(iii) the said Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim shall exercise the powers and perform the functions of the Legislative Assembly of a State under this Constitution,

(c) in the case of the Assembly deemed to be the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim under clause (b), the references to the period of five years in clause (1) of article 172 shall be construed as references to a period of four years and the said period of four years shall be deemed to commence from the appointed day,

(d) until other provisions are made by Parliament by law, there shall be allotted to the State of Sikkim one seat in the House of People and the State of Sikkim shall form one Parliamentary constituency to be called the Parliamentary constituency for Sikkim,

(e) the representative of the State of Sikkim in the House of the people in existence on the appointed day shall be elected by the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim,

(f) Parliament may, for the purpose of protecting the rights and interests of the different sections of the population of Sikkim make provision for the number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim which may be filled by candidates belonging to such sections and for the delimitation of the Assembly constituencies from which candidates belonging to such sections alone may stand for election to the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim,

(g) the Governor of Sikkim shall have special responsibility for peace and for an equitable arrangement for ensuring the social and economic advancement of different sections of the population of Sikkim and in the discharge of his special responsibility under this clause, the Governor of

Sikkim shall, subject to such directions as the President may, from time to time, deem fit to issue, act in his direction,

(h) all property and assets (whether within or outside the territories comprised in the State of Sikkim) which immediately before the appointed day were vested in the Government of Sikkim or in any other authority or in any person for the purposes of the Government of Sikkim shall, as from the appointed day, vest in the Government of the State of Sikkim,

(i) the High Court functioning as such immediately before the appointed day in the territories comprised in the State of Sikkim shall, on and from the appointed day, be deemed to be the High Court for the State of Sikkim,

(j) all courts of civic, criminal and revenue jurisdiction, all authorities and all officers, judicial, executive and ministerial, throughout the territory of the State of Sikkim shall continue on and from the appointed day to exercise their respective functions subject to the provision of this Constitution,

(k) all laws in force immediately before the appointed day in the territories comprised in the State of Sikkim or any part thereof shall continue to be in force therein until amended or repealed by a competent Legislature or other competent authority,

(l) for the purpose of facilitating the application of any such law as is referred to in clause (k) in relation to the administration of the State of Sikkim and for the purpose of bringing the provisions of any such law into accord with the provisions of this Constitution, the President may, within two years from the appointed day, by order, make such adaptations and modifications of the law, whether by way of repeal or amendment, as may be necessary or expedient, and thereupon, every such law shall have effect subject to the adaptations and modifications so made, and any such adaptation or modification shall not be questioned in any court of law,

(m) neither the Supreme Court nor any other court shall have jurisdiction in respect of any dispute or other matter arising out of any treaty, agreement, engagement or other similar instrument relating to Sikkim which was entered into or executed before the appointed day and to which the Government of India or any of its predecessor Governments was a party, but nothing in this clause shall be construed to derogate from the provisions of article 143,

(n) the president may, by public notification, extend with such restrictions or modifications as he thinks fit to the State of Sikkim any enactment which is in force in a State in India at the date of the notification,

(o) if any difficulty arises in giving effect to any of the foregoing provisions of this article, the President may, by order, do anything (including any adaptation or modification of any other article) which appears to him to be necessary for the purpose of removing the difficulty.

Provided that no such order shall be made after the expiry of two years from the appointed day,

(p) all things done and all actions taken in or in relation to the State of Sikkim or the territories comprised therein during the period commencing on the appointed day and ending immediately before the date on which the Constitution (Thirty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1975, received the assent of the President shall, in so far as they are in conformity with the provisions of this Constitution as amended by the Constitution (Thirty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1975, be deemed for all purposes to have been validly done or taken under this Constitution as so amended

In this Schedule, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression 'State' does not include the States of Assam · Meghalaya, Tripura and Mizoram

2. Executive power of a State in Scheduled Areas

Subject to the provisions of this Schedule, the executive power of a State extends to the Scheduled Areas therein

3. Report by the Governor to the President regarding the administration of Scheduled Areas

The Governor of each State having Scheduled Areas therein shall annually, or whenever so required by the President, make a report to the President regarding the administration of the Scheduled Areas in that State and the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of directions to the State as to the administration of the said areas

PART B*ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL OF SCHEDULED AREAS AND SCHEDULED TRIBES*4. Tribes Advisory Council

(1) There shall be established in each State having Scheduled Areas therein and, if the President so directs, also in any State having Scheduled Tribes but not Scheduled Areas therein, a Tribes Advisory Council consisting of not more than twenty members of whom, as nearly as may be, three-fourths shall be the representatives of the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly of the State

Provided that if the number of representatives of the Scheduled Tribes in the Legislative Assembly of the State is less than the number of seats in the Tribes Advisory Council to be filled by such representatives, the remaining seats shall be filled by other members of those tribes

(2) It shall be the duty of the Tribes Advisory Council to advise on such matters pertaining to the welfare and advancement of the Scheduled Tribes in the State as may be referred to them by the Governor

(3) The Governor may make rules prescribing or regulating, as the case may be,—

(a) the number of members of the Council, the mode of their appointment and the appointment of the Chairman of the Council and of the officers and servants thereof,

- (b) the conduct of its meetings and its procedure in general, and
- (c) all other incidental matters

5. Law applicable to Scheduled Areas

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the Governor may by public notification direct that any particular Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of the State shall not apply to a Scheduled Area or any part thereof in the State or shall apply to a Scheduled Area or any part thereof in the State subject to such exceptions and modifications as he may specify in the notification and any direction given under this sub-paragraph may be given so as to have retrospective effect

(2) The Governor may make regulations for the peace and good government of any area in a State which is for the time being a Scheduled Area

In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such regulations may—

(a) prohibit or restrict the transfer of land by or among members of the Scheduled Tribes in such area,

(b) regulate the allotment of land to members of the Scheduled Tribes in such area,

(c) regulate the carrying on of business as money-lender by persons who lend money to members of the Scheduled Tribes in such area

(3) In making any such regulation as is referred to in sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph, the Governor may repeal or amend any Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of the State or any existing law which is for the time being applicable to the area in question

(4) All regulations made under this paragraph shall be submitted forthwith to the President and, until assented to by him, shall have no effect

(5) No regulation shall be made under this paragraph unless the Government making the regulation has, in the case where there is a Tribes Advisory Council for the State, consulted such Council

PART C

(3) All laws made under this paragraph shall be submitted forthwith to the Governor and, until assented to by him, shall have no effect

4. Administration of justice in autonomous districts and autonomous regions

(1) The Regional Council for an autonomous region in respect of areas within such region and the District Council for an autonomous district in respect of areas within the district other than those which are under the authority of the Regional Councils, if any, within the district may constitute village councils or courts for the trial of suits and cases between the parties all of whom belong to Scheduled Tribes within such areas, other than suits and cases to which the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 5 of this Schedule apply, to the exclusion of any court in the State, and may appoint suitable persons to be members of such village councils or presiding officers of such courts, and may also appoint such officers as may be necessary for the administration of the laws made under paragraph 3 of this Schedule

(2) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the Regional Council for an autonomous region or any court constituted in that behalf by the Regional Council or, if in respect of any area within an autonomous district there is no Regional Council, the District Council for such district, or any court constituted in that behalf by the District Council, shall exercise the powers of a court of appeal in respect of all suits and cases triable by a village council or court constituted under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph within such region or area, as the case may be, other than those to which the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 5 of this Schedule apply, and no other court except the High Court and the Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction over such suits or cases

(3) The High Court shall have and exercise such jurisdiction over the suits and cases to which the provisions of sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph apply as the Governor may from time to time by order specify

(4) A Regional Council or District Council, as the case may be, may with the previous approval of the Governor make rules regulating—

(a) the constitution of village councils and courts and the powers to be exercised by them under this paragraph,

(b) the procedure to be followed by village councils or courts in the trial of suits and cases under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph,

(c) the procedure to be followed by the Regional or District Council or any court constituted by such Council in appeals and other proceedings under sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph,

(d) the enforcement of decisions and orders of such Councils and courts,

(e) all other ancillary matters for the carrying out of the provisions of sub-paragraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph

(5) On and from such date as the President may, after consulting the Government of the State concerned, by notification appoint in this behalf, this paragraph shall have effect in relation to such autonomous district or region as may be specified in the notification, as if—

(i) in sub-paragraph (1), for the words "between the parties all of whom belong to Scheduled Tribes within such areas, other than suits and cases to which the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 5 of this Schedule apply," the words "not being suits and cases of the nature referred to in sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph (5) of this Schedule, which the Governor may specify in this behalf," had been substituted,

(ii) sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) had been omitted,

(iii) in sub-paragraph (4)—

(a) for the words "A Regional Council or District Council, as the case may be, may with the previous approval of the Governor make rules regulating", the words "the Governor may make rules regulating" had been substituted, and

(b) for clause (a), the following clause had been substituted, namely

"(a) the constitution of village councils and courts, the powers to be exercised by them under this paragraph and the courts to which appeals from the decisions of village councils and courts shall lie,"

(c) for clause (c), the following clause had been substituted, namely

"(c) the transfer of appeals and other proceedings pending before the Regional or District Council or any court constituted by such Council immediately before the date appointed by the President under sub-paragraph (5)," and

(d) in clause (e), for the words, brackets and figures "sub-paragraphs (1) and (2)", the word, brackets and figure "sub-paragraph (1)" had been substituted

5 Conferment of powers under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, on the Regional and District Councils and on certain courts and officers for the trial of certain suits, cases and offences

(1) The Governor may, for the trial of suits or cases arising out of any law in force in any autonomous district or region being a law specified in that behalf by the Governor, or for the trial of offences punishable with death, transportation for life, or imprisonment for a term of not less than five years under the Indian Penal Code or under any other law for the time being applicable to such district or region, confer on the District Council or the Regional Council having authority over such district or region or on courts constituted by such District Council or on any officer appointed in that behalf by the Governor, such powers under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, or, as the case may be, the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, as he deems appropriate, and thereupon the said Council, court or officer shall try the suits, cases or offences in exercise of the powers so conferred

(2) The Governor may withdraw or modify any of the powers conferred on a District Council, Regional Council, court or officer under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph

(3) Save as expressly provided in this paragraph, the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, shall not apply to the trial of any suits, cases or offences in an autonomous district or in any autonomous region to which the provisions of this paragraph apply

(4) On and from the date appointed by the President under sub-paragraph (5) of paragraph 4 in relation to any autonomous district or autonomous region, nothing contained in this paragraph shall, in its application to that district or region, be deemed to authorise the Governor to confer on the District Council or Regional Council or on courts constituted by the District Council any of the powers referred to in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph

6. Powers of the District Council to establish primary schools, etc

(1) The District Council for an autonomous district may establish, construct, or manage primary schools, dispensaries, markets, cattle pounds, ferries, fisheries, roads, road transport and waterways in the district and may, with the previous approval of the Governor, make regulations for the regulation and control thereof and, in particular, may prescribe the language and the manner in which primary education shall be imparted in the primary schools in the district

(2) The Governor may, with the consent of any District Council, entrust either conditionally or unconditionally to that Council or to its officers functions in relation to agriculture, animal husbandry, community projects, co-operative societies, social welfare, village planning or any other matter to which the executive power of the State extends

7. District and Regional Funds

(1) There shall be constituted for each autonomous district, a District Fund for each autonomous region, a Regional Fund to which shall be credited all moneys received respectively by the District Council for that district and the Regional Council for that region in the course of the administration of such district or region, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution

(2) The Governor may make rules for the management of the District Fund, or, as the case may be, the Regional Fund and for the procedure to be followed in respect of payment of money into the said Fund, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of moneys therein and any other matter connected with or ancillary to the matters aforesaid

(3) The accounts of the District Council or, as the case may be, the Regional Council shall be kept in such form as the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India may, with the approval of the President, prescribe

(4) The Comptroller and Auditor-General shall cause the accounts of the District and Regional Councils to be audited in such manner as he may think fit, and the reports of the Comptroller and Auditor General relating to such accounts shall be submitted to the Governor who shall cause them to be laid before the Council

8. Powers to assess and collect land revenue and to impose taxes

(1) The Regional Council for an autonomous region in respect of all lands within such region and the District Council for an autonomous district in respect of all lands within the district except those which are in the areas under the authority of Regional Councils, if any, within the district, shall have the power to assess and collect revenue in respect of such lands in accordance with the principles for the time being followed by the Government of the State in assessing lands for the purpose of land revenue in the State generally

(2) The Regional Council for an autonomous region in respect of areas within such region and the District Council for an autonomous district in respect of all areas in the district except those which are under the authority of Regional Councils, if any, within the district, shall have power to levy and collect taxes on lands and buildings, and tolls on persons, resident within such areas

(3) The District Council for an autonomous district shall have the power to levy and collect all or any of the following taxes within such district, that is to say,—

- (a) taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments,
- (b) taxes on animals, vehicles and boats,
- (c) taxes on the entry of goods into a market for sale therein, and tolls on passengers and goods carried in ferries, and
- (d) taxes for the maintenance of schools, dispensaries or roads

(4) A Regional Council or District Council, as the case may be, may make regulations to provide for levy and collection of any of the taxes specified in sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph and every such regulation shall be submitted forthwith to the Governor and, until assented to by him, shall have no effect

9. Licences or leases for the purpose of prospecting for, or extraction of, minerals

(1) Such share of the royalties accruing each year from licences or leases for the purpose of prospecting for, or the extraction of, minerals granted by the Government of the State in respect of any area within an autonomous district as may be agreed upon between the Government of the State and the District Council of such district shall be made over to that District Council

(2) If any dispute arises as to the share of such royalties to be made over to a District Council, it shall be referred to the Governor for determination and the amount determined by the Governor in his discretion shall be deemed to be the amount payable under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph to the District Council and the decision of the Governor shall be final

10. Power of District Council to make regulations for the control of money-lending and trading by non-tribals

(1) The District Council of an autonomous district may make regulations for the regulation and control of money-lending or trading within the district by persons other than Scheduled Tribes resident in the district

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such regulations may—

(a) prescribe that no one except the holder of a licence issued in that behalf shall carry on the business of money-lending,

(b) prescribe the maximum rate of interest which may be charged or be recovered by a money-lender,

(c) provide for the maintenance of accounts by money-lenders and for the inspection of such accounts by officers appointed in that behalf by the District Council,

(d) prescribe that no person who is not a member of the Scheduled Tribes resident in the district shall carry on wholesale or retail business in any commodity except under a licence issued in that behalf by the District Council

Provided that no regulations may be made under this paragraph unless they are passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the total membership of the District Council

Provided further that it shall not be competent under any such regulations to refuse the grant of a licence to a money-lender or a trader who has been carrying on business within the district since before the time of making of such regulations

(3) All regulations made under this paragraph shall be submitted forthwith to the Governor and, until assented to by him, shall have no effect

11. Publication of laws, rules and regulations made under the Schedule

All laws, rules and regulations made under this Schedule by a District Council or a Regional Council shall be published forthwith in the Official Gazette of the State and shall on such publication have the force of law

12. Application of Acts of Parliament and of the Legislature of the State of Assam to autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State of Assam

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) no Act of the Legislature of the State of Assam in respect of any of the matters specified in paragraph 3 of this Schedule as matters with respect to which a District Council or a Regional Council may make laws, and no Act of the Legislature of the State of Assam prohibiting or restricting the consumption of any non-distilled alcoholic liquor shall apply to any autonomous district or autonomous region in the State unless in either case the District Council for such district or having jurisdiction over such region by public notification so directs, and the District Council in giving such direction with respect to any Act may direct that the Act shall in its application to such district or region or any part thereof have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as it thinks fit,

(b) the Governor may, by public notification, direct that any Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of the State of Assam to which the provisions of clause (a) of this sub-paragraph do not apply shall not apply to an autonomous district or an autonomous region in that State, or shall apply to such district or region or any part thereof subject to such exceptions or modifications as he may specify in the notification.

(2) Any direction given under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph may be given so as to have retrospective effect

12A. Application of Acts of Parliament and of the Legislature of the State of Meghalaya to autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State of Meghalaya

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) if any provision of a law made by a District or Regional Council in the State of Meghalaya with respect to any matter specified in sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of this Schedule or if any provision of any regulation made by a District Council or a Regional Council in that State under paragraph 8 or paragraph 10 of this Schedule, is repugnant to any provision of a law made by the Legislature of the State of Meghalaya with respect to that matter, then, the law or regulation made by the District Council or, as the case may be, the Regional Council whether made before or after the law made by the Legislature of the State of Meghalaya, shall, to the extent of repugnancy, be void and the law made by the Legislature of the State of Meghalaya shall prevail,

(b) the President may, with respect to any Act of Parliament, by notification, direct that it shall not apply to an autonomous district or an autonomous region in the State of Meghalaya, or shall apply to such district or region or any part thereof subject to such exceptions or modifications as he may specify in the notification and any such direction may be given so as to have retrospective effect

12AA. Application of Acts of Parliament and of the Legislature of the State of Tripura to the autonomous district and autonomous regions in the State of Tripura

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution—

(a) no Act of the Legislature of the State of Tripura in respect of any of the matters specified in paragraph 3 of this Schedule as matters with respect to which a District Council or a Regional Council may make laws, and no Act of the Legislature of the State of Tripura prohibiting or restricting the consumption of any non-distilled alcoholic liquor shall apply to the autonomous district or an autonomous region in that State unless, in either case, the District Council for that district or having jurisdiction over such region by public notification so directs, and the District Council in giving such direction with respect to any Act direct that the Act shall, in its application to that district or such region or any part thereof, have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as it thinks fit,

(b) the Governor may, by public notification, direct that any Act of the Legislature of the State of Tripura to which the provisions of clause (a) of this sub-paragraph do not apply, shall not apply to the autonomous district or an autonomous region in that State, or shall apply to that district or such region, or any part thereof, subject to such exceptions or modifications, as he may specify in the notification,

(c) the President may, with respect to any Act of Parliament, by notification, direct that it shall not apply to the autonomous district or an autonomous region in the State of Tripura, or shall apply to such district or region or any part thereof, subject to such exceptions or modifications as he may specify in the notification and any such direction may be given so as to have retrospective effect

12B. Application of Acts of Parliament and of the Legislature of the State of Mizoram to autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State of Mizoram

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) no Act of the Legislature of the State of Mizoram in respect of any of the matters specified in paragraph 3 of this Schedule as matters with respect to which a District Council or a Regional Council may make laws, and no Act of Legislature of the State of Mizoram prohibiting or restricting the consumption of any non-distilled alcoholic liquor shall apply to any autonomous district or autonomous region in that State unless, in either case, the District Council for such district or having jurisdiction over such region, by public notification, so directs, and the District Council, in giving such direction with respect to any Act, may direct that the Act shall, in its application to such district or region or any part thereof, have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as it thinks fit,

(b) the Governor may, by public notification, direct that any Act of the Legislature of the State of Mizoram to which the provisions of clause (a) of this sub-paragraph do not apply, shall not apply to an autonomous district or an autonomous region in that State, or shall apply to such district or region, or any part thereof, subject to such exceptions or modifications, as he may specify in the notification,

(c) the President may, with respect to any Act of Parliament, by notification, direct that it shall not apply to an autonomous district or an autonomous region in the State of Mizoram, or shall apply to such district or region or any part thereof, subject to such exceptions or modifications as he may specify in the notification and any such direction may be given so as to have retrospective effect

13. Estimated receipts and expenditure pertaining to autonomous districts to be shown separately in the annual financial statement

The estimated receipts and expenditure pertaining to an autonomous district which are to be credited to, or is to be made from, the Consolidated Fund of the State shall be first placed before the District Council for discussion and then after such discussion be shown separately in the annual financial statement of the State to be laid before the Legislature of the State under article 202

14. Appointment of Commission to inquire into and report on the administration of autonomous districts and autonomous regions

(1) The Governor may at any time appoint a Commission to examine and report on any matter specified by him relating to the administration of the autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State, including matters specified in clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f) of sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 1 of this Schedule, or may appoint a Commission to inquire into and report from time to time on the administration of autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State generally and in particular on—

(a) the provision of educational and medical facilities and communications in such districts and regions,

(b) the need for any new or special legislation in respect of such districts and regions, and

(c) the administration of the laws, rules and regulations made by the District and Regional Councils, and define the procedure to be followed by such Commission

(2) The report of every such Commission with the recommendations of the Governor with respect thereto shall be laid before the Legislature of the State by the Minister concerned together with an explanatory memorandum regarding the action proposed to be taken thereon by the Government of the State

(3) In allocating the business of the Government of the State among his Ministers the Governor may place one of his Ministers specially in charge of the welfare of the autonomous districts and autonomous regions in the State

15. Annulment or suspension of acts and resolutions of District and Regional Councils

(1) If at any time the Governor is satisfied that an act or resolution of a District or a Regional Council is likely to endanger the safety of India or is likely to be prejudicial to public order, he may annul or suspend such act or resolution and take such steps as he may consider necessary (including the suspension of the Council and the assumption to himself of all or any of the powers vested in or exercisable by the Council) to prevent the commission or continuance of such act, or the giving of effect to such resolution

(2) Any order made by the Governor under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph together with the reasons therefor shall be laid before the Legislature of the State as soon as possible and the order shall, unless revoked by the Legislature of the State, continue in force for a period of twelve months from the date on which it was so made:

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such order is passed by the Legislature of the State, the order shall unless cancelled by the Governor continue in force for a further period of twelve months from the date on which under this paragraph it would otherwise have ceased to operate

16. Dissolution of a District or a Regional Council

(1) The Governor may on the recommendation of a Commission appointed under paragraph 14 of this Schedule by public notification order the dissolution of a District or a Regional Council, and—

(a) direct that a fresh general election shall be held immediately for the reconstitution of the Council, or

(b) subject to the previous approval of the Legislature of the State assume the administration of the area under the authority of such Council himself or place the administration of such area under the Commission appointed under the said paragraph or any other body considered suitable by him for a period not exceeding twelve months

Provided that when an order under clause (a) of this paragraph has been made, the Governor may take the action referred to in clause (b) of this paragraph with regard to the administration of the area in question pending the reconstitution of the Council on fresh general election

Provided further that no action shall be taken under clause (b) of this paragraph without giving the District or the Regional Council, as the case may be, an opportunity of placing its views before the Legislature of the State

(2) If at any time the Governor is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the administration of an autonomous district or region cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Schedule, he may, by public notification assume to himself all or any of the functions or powers vested in or exercisable by the District Council or, as the case may be, the Regional Council and declare that such functions or powers shall be exercisable by such person or authority as he may specify in this behalf, for a period not exceeding six months

Provided that the Governor may by a further order or orders extend the operation of the initial order by a period not exceeding six months on each occasion

(3) Every order made under sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph with the reasons therefor shall be laid before the Legislature of the State and shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the State Legislature first sits after the issue of the orders, unless, before the expiry of that period it has been approved by the State Legislature

17. Exclusion of areas from autonomous districts in forming constituencies in such districts

For the purposes of elections to the Legislative Assembly of Assam or Meghalaya or Tripura or Mizoram, the Governor may by order declare that any area within an autonomous district in the State of Assam or Meghalaya or Tripura or Mizoram, as the case may be, shall not form part of any constituency to fill a seat or seats in the Assembly reserved for any such district but shall form part of a constituency to fill a seat or seats in the Assembly not so reserved to be specified in the order

19. Transitional provisions

(1) As soon as possible after the commencement of this Constitution the Governor shall take steps for the constitution of a District Council for each autonomous district in the State under this Schedule and, until a District Council is so constituted for an autonomous district, the administration of such district shall be vested in the Governor and the following provisions shall apply to the administration of the areas within such district instead of the foregoing provisions of this Schedule, namely —

(a) no Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of the State shall apply to any such area unless the Governor by public notification so directs, and the Governor in giving such a direction with respect to any Act may direct that the Act shall, in its application to the area or to any specified part thereof, have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as he thinks fit,

(b) the Governor may make regulations for the peace and good government of any such area and any regulations so made may repeal or amend any Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of the State or any existing law which is for the time being applicable to such area

(2) Any direction given by the Governor under clause (a) of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph may be given so as to have retrospective effect

(3) All regulations made under clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall be submitted forthwith to the President and, until assented to by him, shall have no effect

20. Tribal areas

(1) The areas specified in Parts I, II, IIA and III of the table below shall respectively be the tribal areas within the State of Assam, the State of Meghalaya, the State of Tripura and the State of Mizoram

(2) Any reference in Part I, Part II or Part III of the table below to any district shall be construed as a reference to the territories comprised within the autonomous district of that name existing immediately before the day appointed under clause (b) of section 2 of the North-Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act, 1971

Provided that for the purposes of clauses (c) and (f) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3, paragraph 4, paragraph 5, paragraph 6, sub-paragraph (2), clauses (a), (b), and (d) of sub-paragraph (3) and sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 8 and clause (d) of sub-paragraph (2) of paragraph 10 of this Schedule, no part of the area comprised within the municipality of Shillong shall be deemed to be within the Khasi Hills District

20A. Dissolution of the Mizo District Council

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Schedule, the District Council of the Mizo District existing immediately before the prescribed date (hereinafter referred to as the Mizo District Council) shall stand dissolved and cease to exist

(2) The Administrator of the Union territory of Mizoram may, by one or more orders, provide for all or any of the following matters, namely —

(a) the transfer, in whole or in part, of the assets, rights and liabilities of the Mizo District Council (including the rights and liabilities under any contract made by it) to the Union or to any other authority,

(b) the substitution of the Union or any other authority for the Mizo District Council, or the addition of the Union or any other authority, as a party to any legal proceedings to which the Mizo District Council is a party,

(c) the transfer or re-employment of any employees of the Mizo District Council to or by the Union or any other authority, the terms and conditions of service applicable to such employees after such transfer or re-employment,

(d) the continuance of any laws, made by the Mizo District Council and in force immediately before its dissolution, subject to such adaptations and modifications, whether by way of repeal or amendment, as the Administrator may make in this behalf, until such laws are altered, repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority,

(c) such incidental, consequential and supplementary matters as the Administrator considers necessary.

Explanation—In this paragraph and in paragraph 20B of this Schedule, the expression 'prescribed date' means the date on which the Legislative Assembly of the Union territory of Mizoram is duly constituted under and in accordance with the provisions of the Government of Union Territories Act, 1963

20B. Autonomous regions in the Union territory of Mizoram to be autonomous districts and transitory provisions consequent thereto

(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Schedule,—

(a) every autonomous region existing immediately before the prescribed date in the Union territory of Mizoram shall, on and from that date, be an autonomous district in that Union territory (hereafter referred to as the corresponding new district) and the Administrator thereof may, by one or more orders, direct that such consequential amendments as are necessary to give effect to the provisions of this clause shall be made in paragraph 20 of this Schedule (including Part III of the table appended to that paragraph) and thereupon the said paragraph and the said Part III shall be deemed to have been amended accordingly,

(b) every Regional Council of an autonomous region in the Union territory of Mizoram existing immediately before the prescribed date (hereafter referred to as the existing Regional Council) shall, on and from that date and until a District Council is duly constituted for the corresponding new district, be deemed to be the District Council of that district (hereafter referred to as the corresponding new District Council)

(2) Every member whether elected or nominated of an existing Regional Council shall be deemed to have been elected or, as the case may be, nominated to the corresponding new District Council and shall hold office until a District Council is duly constituted for the corresponding new district under this Schedule

(3) Until rules are made under sub-paragraph (7) of paragraph 2 and sub-paragraph (4) of paragraph 4 of this Schedule by the corresponding new District Council, the rules made under the said provisions by the existing Regional Council and in force immediately before the prescribed date shall have effect in relation to the corresponding new District Council subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be made therein by the Administrator of the Union territory of Mizoram

(4) The Administrator of the Union territory of Mizoram may, by one or more orders, provide for all or any of the following matters, namely—

(a) the transfer in whole or in part of the assets rights and liabilities of the existing Regional Council (including the rights and liabilities under any contract made by it) to the corresponding new District Council,

(b) the substitution of the corresponding new District Council for the existing Regional Council as a party to the legal proceedings to which the existing Regional Council is a party,

(c) the transfer or re-employment of any employees of the existing Regional Council to or by the corresponding new District Council, the terms and conditions of service applicable to such employees after such transfer or re-employment,

(d) the continuance of any laws made by the existing Regional Council and in force immediately before the prescribed date, subject to such adaptations and modifications, whether by way of repeal or amendment, as the Administrator may make in this behalf until such laws are altered, repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority,

(e) such incidental, consequential and supplementary matters as the Administrator considers necessary

20C Interpretation

Subject to any provision made in this behalf, the provisions of this Schedule shall, in their application to the Union territory of Mizoram, have effect—

(1) as if references to the Governor and Government of the State were references to the Administrator of the Union territory appointed under article 239, references to State (except in the expression 'Government of the State') were references to the Union territory of Mizoram and references to the State Legislature were references to the Legislative Assembly of the Union territory of Mizoram,

(2) as if—

(a) in sub-paragraph (5) of paragraph 4, the provision for consultation with the Government of the State concerned had been omitted,

(b) in sub-paragraph (2) of paragraph 6, for the words 'to which the executive power of the State extends', the words 'with respect to which the Legislative Assembly of the Union territory of Mizoram has power to make laws' had been substituted,

(c) in paragraph 13, the words and figures 'under article 202' had been omitted

21. Amendment of the Schedule

(1) Parliament may from time to time by law amend by way of addition, variation or repeal any of the provisions of this Schedule and, when the Schedule is so amended, any reference to this Schedule in this Constitution shall be construed as a reference to such Schedule as so amended

(2) No such law as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368

TENTH SCHEDULE*[Articles 102(2) and 191(2)]*Provisions as to disqualification on ground of defection*1. Interpretation

In this Schedule, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) 'House' means either House of Parliament or the Legislative Assembly or, as the case may be, either House of the Legislature of a State,

(b) 'legislature party', in relation to a member of a House belonging to any political party in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 2 or paragraph 3 or, as the case may be, paragraph 4, means the group consisting of all the members of that House for the time being belonging to that political party in accordance with the said provisions;

(c) 'original political party', in relation to a member of a House, means the political party to which he belongs for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2,

(d) 'paragraph' means a paragraph of this Schedule

2. Disqualification on ground of defection

(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraphs 3, 4 and 5, a member of a House belonging to any political party shall be disqualified for being a member of the House—

(a) if he has voluntarily gives up his membership of such political party, or

(b) if he votes or abstains from voting in such House contrary to any direction issued by the political party to which he belongs or by any person or authority authorised by it in this behalf, without obtaining, in either case, the prior permission of such political party, person or authority and such voting or abstention has not been condoned by such political party, person or authority within fifteen days from the date of such voting or abstention

Explanation —For the purposes of this sub-paragraph,—

(a) an elected member of a House shall be deemed to belong to the political party, if any, by which he was set up as a candidate for election as such member,

(b) a nominated member of a House shall,—

(i) where he is a member of any political party on the date of his nomination as such member, be deemed to belong to such political party,

(ii) in any other case, be deemed to belong to the political party of which he becomes, or, as the case may be, first becomes a member before the expiry of six months from the date on which he takes his seat after complying with the requirements of article 99 or, as the case may be, article 188

(2) An elected member of a House who has been elected as such otherwise than as a candidate set up by any political party shall be disqualified for being a member of the House if he joins any political party after such election

(3) A nominated member of a House shall be disqualified for being a member of the House if he joins any political party after the expiry of six months from the date on which he takes his seat after complying with the requirements of article 99 or, as the case may be, article 188

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, a person who, on the commencement of the Constitution (Fifty-second Amendment) Act, 1985, is a member of a House (whether elected or nominated as such) shall,—

(i) where he was a member of political party immediately before such commencement, be deemed, for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph, to have been elected as a member of such House as a candidate set up by such political party,

(ii) in any other case, be deemed to be an elected member of the House who has been elected as such otherwise than as a candidate set up by any political party for the purposes of sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph or, as the case may be, deemed to be a nominated member of the House for the purposes of sub-paragraph (3) of this paragraph

3. Disqualification on ground of defection not to apply in case of split

Where a member of a House makes a claim that he and any other members of his legislature party constitute the group representing a faction which has arisen as a result of a split in his original political party and such group consists of not less than one third of the members of such legislature party,—

(a) he shall not be disqualified under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 on the ground

(i) that he has voluntarily given up his membership of his original political party, or

(ii) that he has voted or abstained from voting in such House contrary to any direction issued by such party or by any person or authority authorised by it in that behalf without obtaining the prior permission of such party, person or authority and such voting or abstention has not been condoned by such party, person or authority within fifteen days from the date of such voting or abstention, and

(b) from the time of such split; such faction shall be deemed to be the political party to which he belongs for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 and to be his original political party for the purposes of this paragraph

4. Disqualification on ground of defection not to apply in case of merger

(1) A member of a House shall not be disqualified under sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 where his original political party merges with another political party and he claims that he and any other members of his original political party—

(a) have become members of such other political party or, as the case may be, of a new political party formed by such merger, or

(b) have not accepted the merger and opted to function as a separate group, and from the time of such merger, such other political party or new political party or group, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the political party to which he belongs for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 and to be his original political party for the purposes of this sub-paragraph

(2) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph, the merger of the original political party of a member of a House shall be deemed to have taken place if, and only if, not less than two-thirds of the members of the legislature party concerned have agreed to such merger

5. Exemption

Notwithstanding anything contained in this Schedule, a person who has been elected to the office of the Speaker or the Deputy Speaker of the House of the People or the Deputy Chairman of the Council of States or the Chairman or the Deputy Chairman of the Legislative Council of a State or the Speaker or the Deputy Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of a State, shall not be disqualified under this Schedule,—

(a) if he, by reason of his election to such office, voluntarily gives up the membership of the political party to which he belonged immediately before such election and does not, so long as he continues to hold such office thereafter, rejoin that political party or become a member of another political party, or

(b) if he, having given up by reason of his election to such office his membership of the political party to which he belonged immediately before such election, rejoins such political party after he ceases to hold such office

6. Decision on questions as to disqualification on ground of defection

(1) If any question arises as to whether a member of a House has become subject to disqualification under this Schedule, the question shall be referred for the decision of the Chairman or, as the case may be, the Speaker of such House and his decision shall be final

Provided that where the question which has arisen is as to whether the Chairman or the Speaker of a House has become subject to such disqualification, the question shall be referred for the decision of such member of the House as the House may elect in this behalf and his decision shall be final

(2) All proceedings under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph in relation to any question as to disqualification of a member of a House under this Schedule shall be deemed to be proceedings in Parliament within the meaning of article 122 or, as the case may be, proceedings in the Legislature of a State within the meaning of article 212

7. Bar of jurisdiction of courts

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, no court shall have any jurisdiction in respect of any matter connected with the disqualification of a member of a House under this Schedule

8. Rules

(1) Subject to the provisions of sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph, the Chairman or the Speaker of a House may make rules for giving effect to the provisions of this Schedule, and in particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, such rules may provide for—

(a) the maintenance of registers or other records as to the political parties if any, to which different members of the House belong,

(b) the report which the leader of a legislature party in relation to a member of a House shall furnish with regard to any condonation of the nature referred to in clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 in respect of such member, the time within which and the authority to whom such report shall be furnished,

(c) the reports which a political party shall furnish with regard to admission to such political party of any members of the House and the officer of the House to whom such reports shall be furnished, and

(d) the procedure for deciding any question referred to in sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 6 including the procedure for any inquiry which may be made for the purpose of deciding such question

(2) The rules made by the Chairman or the Speaker of a House under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph shall be laid as soon as may be after they are made before the House for a total period of thirty days which may be comprised in one session or in two or more successive sessions and shall take effect upon the expiry of the said period of thirty days unless they are sooner approved with or without modifications or disapproved by the House and where they are so approved, they shall take effect on such approval in the form in which they were laid or in such modified form, as the case may be, and where they are so disapproved, they shall be of no effect

(3) The Chairman or the Speaker of a House may, without prejudice to the provisions of article 105 or, as the case may be, article 194, and to any other power which he may have under this Constitution direct that any wilful contravention by any person of the rules made under this paragraph may be dealt with in the same manner as a breach of privilege of the House

CONSTITUTION OF ISLAMIC REPUBLIC OF IRAN

Adopted on 24 Oct 1979

Effective since 3 Dec 1979

Amended on 28 July 1989

PREAMBLE

The Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Iran advances the cultural, social, political, and economic institutions of Iranian society based on Islamic principles and norms, which represent an honest aspiration of the Islamic Ummah. This aspiration was exemplified by the nature of the great Islamic Revolution of Iran, and by the course of the Muslim people's struggle, from its beginning until victory, as reflected in the decisive and forceful calls raised by all segments of the populations. Now, at the threshold of this great victory, our nation, with all its beings, seeks its fulfillment.

The basic characteristic of this revolution, which distinguishes it from other movements that have taken place in Iran during the past hundred years, is its ideological and Islamic nature. After experiencing the anti-despotic constitutional movement and the anti-colonialist movement centered on the nationalization of the oil industry, the Muslim people of Iran learned from this costly experience that the obvious and fundamental reason for the failure of those movements was their lack of an ideological basis. Although the Islamic line of thought and the direction provided by militant religious leaders played an essential role in the recent movements, nonetheless, the struggles waged in the course of those movements quickly fell into stagnation due to departure from genuine Islamic positions. Thus it was that the awakened conscience of the nation, under the leadership of Imam Khumayni, came to perceive the necessity of pursuing a genuinely Islamic and ideological line in its struggles. And this time, the militant 'ulama' of the country, who had always been in the forefront of popular movements, together with the committed writers and intellectuals, found new impetus by following his leadership.

The Dawn of the Movement

The devastating protest of Imam Khumayni against the American conspiracy known as the "White Revolution," which was a step intended to stabilize the foundations of despotic rule and to reinforce the political, cultural, and economic dependence of Iran on world imperialism, brought into being a united movement of the people and, immediately afterwards, a momentous revolution of the Muslim nation in June 1963. Although this revolution was drowned in blood, in reality it heralded the beginning of the blossoming of a glorious and massive uprising, which confirmed the central role of Imam Khumayni as an Islamic leader. Despite his exile from Iran after his protest against the humiliating law of capitulation (which provided legal immunity for American advisers), the firm bond between the Imam and the people endured, and the Muslim nation, particularly committed intellectuals and militant 'ulama', continued their struggle in the face of banishment and imprisonment, torture and execution.

Throughout this time, the conscious and responsible segment of society was bringing enlightenment to the people from the strongholds of the mosques, centers of religious teaching, and universities. Drawing inspiration from the revolutionary and fertile teachings of Islam, they began the unrelenting yet fruitful struggle of raising the level of ideological awareness and revolutionary consciousness of the Muslim people. The despotic regime which had begun the suppression of the Islamic movement with barbaric attacks on the Faydiyyah Madrasah, Tehran University, and all other active centers of revolution, in an effort to evade the revolutionary anger of the people, resorted to the most savage and brutal measures. And in these circumstances, execution by firing squads, endurance of medieval tortures, and long terms of imprisonment were the price our Muslim nation had to pay to prove its firm resolve to continue the struggle. The Islamic Revolution of Iran was nurtured by the blood of hundreds of young men and women, infused with faith, who raised their cries of "Allahu Akbar" at daybreak in execution yards, or were gunned down by the enemy in streets and marketplaces. Meanwhile, the continuing declarations and messages of the Imam that were issued on various occasions, extended and deepened the consciousness and determination of the Muslim nation to the utmost.

Islamic Government

The plan of the Islamic government as proposed by Imam Khumayni at the height of the period of repression and strangulation practiced by the despotic regime, produced a new specific, and streamline motive for the Muslim people, opening up before them the true path of Islamic ideological struggle, and giving greater intensity to the struggle of militant and committed Muslims both within the country and abroad.

The movement continued on this course until finally popular dissatisfaction and intense rage of the public caused by the constantly increasing repression at home, and the projection of the struggle at the international level after exposure of the regime by the 'ulama' and militant students, shook the foundations of the regime violently. The regime and its sponsors were compelled to decrease the intensity of repression and to "liberalize" the political atmosphere of the country.

This, they imagined, would serve as a safety valve, which would prevent their eventual downfall. But the people, aroused, conscious, and resolute under the decisive and unfaltering leadership of the Imam, embarked on a triumphant, unified, comprehensive, and countrywide uprising.

The Wrath of the People

The publication of an outrageous article meant to malign the revered 'ulama' and in particular Imam Khomeini on 7 Jan 1978 by the ruling regime accelerated the revolutionary movement and caused an outburst of popular outrage across the country. The regime attempted to quiet the heat of the people's anger by drowning the protest and uprising in blood, but the bloodshed only quickened the pulse rate of the Revolution. The seventh-day and fortieth-day commemorations of the martyrs of the Revolution, like a series of steady heartbeats, gave greater vitality, intensity, vigor, and solidarity to this movement all over the country. In the course of this popular movement, the employees of all government establishments took an active part in the effort to overthrow the tyrannical regime by calling a general strike and participating in street demonstrations. The widespread solidarity of men and women of all segments of society and of all political and religious factions, played a clearly determining role in the struggle. Especially the women were actively and massively present in a most conspicuous manner at all stages of this great struggle. The common sight of mothers with infants in their arms rushing towards the scene of battle and in front of the barrels of machine-guns indicated the essential and decisive role played by this major segment of society in the struggle.

The Price the Nation Paid

After slightly more than a year of continuous and unrelenting struggle, the sapling of the evolution, watered by the blood of more than 60,000 martyrs and 100,000 wounded and disabled, not to mention property damage, came to bear fruit amidst the cries of "Independence! Freedom! Islamic government!" This great movement, which attained victory through reliance upon faith, unity, and the decisiveness of its leadership at every critical and sensitive juncture, as well as the self-sacrificing spirit of the people, succeeded in upsetting all the calculations of imperialism and destroying all its connections and institutions, thereby opening a new chapter in the history of all-embracing popular revolutions of the world.

On 12 and 13 Feb 1979, the world witnessed the collapse of the monarchical regime. Domestic tyranny and foreign domination, both of which were based upon it, were shattered. This great success proved to be the vanguard of Islamic government a long-cherished desire of the Muslim people and brought with it the glad tidings of final victory

Unanimously, the Iranian people declared their final and firm decision, in the referendum on the Islamic Republic, to bring about a new political system, that of the Islamic Republic

A majority of 98.2% of the people voted for this system. The Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Iran, setting forth as it does the political, social, cultural, and economic institutions and their relations that are to exist in society, must now provide for the consolidation of the foundations of Islamic Government, and propose the plan of a new system of Government to be erected on the ruins of the previous order

The Form of Government in Islam

In the view of Islam, Government does not derive from the interests of a class, nor does it serve the domination of an individual or a group. Rather, it represents the fulfillment of the political ideal of a people who bear a common faith and common outlook, taking an organized form in order to initiate the process of intellectual and ideological evolution towards the final goal, i.e., movement towards Allah. Our nation, in the course of its revolutionary developments, has cleansed itself of the dust and impurities that accumulated during the past and purged itself of foreign ideological influences, returning to authentic intellectual standpoints and world-view of Islam. It now intends to establish an ideal and model society on the basis of Islamic norms. The mission of the Constitution is to realize the ideological objectives of the movement and to create conditions conducive to the development of man in accordance with the noble and universal values of Islam.

With due attention to the Islamic content of the Iranian Revolution, the Constitution provides the necessary basis for ensuring the continuation of the Revolution at home and abroad. In particular, in the development of international relations, the Constitution will strive with other Islamic and popular movements to prepare the way for the formation of a single world community (in accordance with the Koranic verse "This your community is a single community, and I am your Lord, so worship Me" [21:92]), and to assure the continuation of the struggle for the liberation of all deprived and oppressed peoples in the world.

With due attention to the essential character of this great movement, the Constitution guarantees the rejection of all forms of intellectual and social tyranny and economic monopoly, and aims at entrusting the destinies of the people to the people themselves in order to break completely with the system of oppression. (This is in accordance with the Koranic verse "He removes from them their burdens and the fetters that were upon them" [7:157])

In creating, on the basis of ideological outlook, the political infrastructures and institutions that are the foundation of society, the righteous will assume the responsibility of governing and administering the country (in accordance with the Koranic verse "Verily My righteous servants shall inherit the earth" [21 105]) Legislation setting forth regulations for the administration of society will revolve around the Koran and the Sunnah. Accordingly, the exercise of meticulous and earnest supervision by just, pious, and committed scholars of Islam is an absolute necessity. In addition, the aim of Government is to foster the growth of man in such a way that he progresses towards the establishment of a Divine order (in accordance with the Koranic phrase "And toward God is the journeying" [3 28]), and to create favourable conditions for the emergence and blossoming of man's innate capacities, so that the theomorphic dimensions of the human being are manifested (in accordance with the injunction of the Prophet (S) "Mould yourselves according to the Divine morality"), this goal cannot be attained without the active and broad participation of all segments of society in the process of social development.

With due attention to this goal, the Constitution provides the basis of such participation by all members of society at all stages of the political decision-making process on which the destiny of the country depends. In this way during the course of human development towards perfection, each individual will himself be involved in, and responsible for the growth, advancement, and leadership of society. Precisely in this lies the realization of the holy government upon earth (in accordance with the Koranic verse "And we wish to show favour to those who have been oppressed upon earth, and to make them leaders and the inheritors" [28 5]).

The Wilayah of the Just Faqih

In keeping with the principles of governance and the perpetual necessity of leadership, the Constitution provides for the establishment of leadership by a holy person possessing the necessary qualifications and recognized as leader by the people (this is in accordance with the saying "The direction of affairs is in the hands of those who are learned concerning God and are trustworthy in matters pertaining to what He permits and forbids"). Such leadership will prevent any deviation by the various organs of State from their essential Islamic duties.

The Economy is a Means, Not an End

In strengthening the foundations of the economy, the fundamental consideration will be fulfillment of the material needs of man in the course of his overall growth and development. This principle contrasts with other economic systems, where the aim is concentration and accumulation of wealth and maximization of profit. In materialist schools of thought, the economy represents an end in itself, so that it comes to be a subversive and corrupting factor in the course of man's development. In Islam, the economy is a means, and all that is required of a means is that it should be an efficient factor contributing to the attainment of the ultimate goal.

From this viewpoint, the economic program of Islam consists of providing the means needed for the emergence of the various creative capacities of the human being. Accordingly, it is the duty of the Islamic

Government to furnish all citizens with equal and appropriate opportunities, to provide them with work, and to satisfy their essential needs, so that the course of their progress may be assured

Woman in the Constitution

Through the creation of Islamic social infrastructures, all the elements of humanity that served the multifaceted foreign exploitation shall regain their true identity and human rights. As a part of this process, it is only natural that women should benefit from a particularly large augmentation of their rights, because of the greater oppression that they suffered under the old regime.

The family is the fundamental unit of society and the main center for the growth and edification of human being. Compatibility with respect to belief and ideal, which provides the primary basis for man's development and growth, is the main consideration in the establishment of a family. It is the duty of the Islamic Government to provide the necessary facilities for the attainment of this goal. This view of the family unit delivers woman from being regarded as an object or instrument in the service of promoting consumerism and exploitation. Not only does woman recover thereby her momentous and precious function of motherhood, rearing of ideologically committed human beings, she also assumes a pioneering social role and becomes the fellow struggler of man in all vital areas of life. Given the weighty responsibilities that woman thus assumes, she is accorded in Islam great value and nobility.

An Ideological Army

In the formation and equipping of the country's defence forces, due attention must be paid to faith and ideology as the basic criteria. Accordingly, the Army of the Islamic Republic of Iran and the Islamic Revolutionary Guards Corps are to be organized in conformity with this goal, and they will be responsible not only for guarding and preserving the frontiers of the country, but also for fulfilling the ideological mission of jihad in God's way, that is, extending the sovereignty of God's law throughout the world (this is in accordance with the Koranic verse "Prepare against them whatever force you are able to muster, and strings of horses, striking fear into the enemy of God and your enemy, and others besides them" [8:60]).

The Judiciary in the Constitution

The judiciary is of vital importance in the context of safeguarding the rights of the people in accordance with the line followed by the Islamic movement, and the prevention of deviations within the Islamic nation. Provision has therefore been made for the creation of a judicial system based on Islamic justice and operated by just Judges with meticulous knowledge of the Islamic laws. This system, because of its essentially sensitive nature and the need for full ideological conformity, must be free from every kind of unhealthy relation and connection (this is in accordance with the Koranic verse "When you judge among the people, judge with justice" [4:58]).

Executive Power

Considering the particular importance of the executive power in implementing the laws and ordinances of Islam for the sake of establishing the rule of just relations over society, and considering, too, its vital role in paving the way for the attainment of the ultimate goal of life, the executive power must work toward the creation of an Islamic society. Consequently, the confinement of the executive power within any kind of complex and inhibiting system that delays or impedes the attainment of this goal is rejected by Islam. Therefore, the system of bureaucracy, the result and product of old forms of government, will be firmly cast away, so that an executive system that functions efficiently and swiftly in the fulfillment of its administrative commitments comes into existence.

Mass-Communication Media

The mass-communication media, radio and television, must serve the diffusion of Islamic culture in pursuit of the evolutionary course of the Islamic Revolution. To this end, the media should be used as a forum for healthy encounter of different ideas, but they must strictly refrain from diffusion and propagation of destructive and anti-Islamic practices.

It is incumbent on all to adhere to the principles of this Constitution, for it regards as its highest aim the freedom and dignity of the human race and provides for the growth and development of the human being. It is also necessary that the Muslim people should participate actively in the construction of Islamic society by selecting competent and believing officials and keeping close and constant watch on their performance. They may then hope for success in building an ideal Islamic society that can be a model for all people of the world and a witness to its perfection (in accordance with the Koranic verse "Thus We made you a median community, that you might be witnesses to men" [2:143]).

Representatives

The Assembly of Experts, composed of representatives of the people, completed its task of framing the Constitution, on the basis of the draft proposed by the Government as well as all the proposals received from different groups of the people, in one hundred and seventy-five articles arranged in twelve chapters, in 1979, and in accordance with the aims and aspirations set out above, with the hope that this century will witness the establishment of a universal holy government and the downfall of all others.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

1. The form of Government of Iran is that of an Islamic Republic, endorsed by the people of Iran on the basis of their longstanding belief in the sovereignty of truth and Qur'anic justice, in the referendum of Farwardin 9 and 10 in the year 1358 of the solar Islamic calendar, corresponding to Jamadi al-Awwal 1 and 2 in the year 1399 of the lunar Islamic calendar (March 29 and

30, 1979], through the affirmative vote of a majority of 98.2% of eligible voters, held after the victorious Islamic Revolution led by the eminent marji' al-taqlid, Ayatullah al-Uzma Imam Khomeini

2. The Islamic Republic is a system based on belief in:

- 1 the One God (as stated in the phrase "There is no God except Allah"), His exclusive sovereignty and the right to legislate, and the necessity of submission to His commands,

- 2 divine revelation and its fundamental role in setting forth the laws,

- 3 the return to God in the Hereafter, and the constructive role of this belief in the course of man's ascent towards God,

- 4 the justice of God in creation and legislation,

- 5 continuous leadership (imamah) and perpetual guidance, and its fundamental role in ensuring the uninterrupted process of the revolution of Islam,

- 6 the exalted dignity and value of man, and his freedom coupled with responsibility before God, in which equity, justice, political, economic, social, and cultural independence, and national solidarity are secured by recourse to

- 1 continuous ijtihad of the fuqaha' possessing necessary qualifications, exercised on the basis of the Qur'an and the Sunnah of the Ma'sumun, upon all of whom be peace,

- 2 sciences and arts and the most advanced results of human experience, together with the effort to advance them further,

- 3 negation of all forms of oppression, both the infliction of and the submission to it, and of dominance, both its imposition and its acceptance

3. In order to attain the objectives specified in Article 2, the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran has the duty of directing all its resources to the following goals

- 1 the creation of a favorable environment for the growth of moral virtues based on faith and piety and the struggle against all forms of vice and corruption,

- 2 raising the level of public awareness in all areas, through the proper use of the press, mass media, and other means,

- 3 free education and physical training for everyone at all levels, and the facilitation and expansion of higher education,

- 4 strengthening the spirit of inquiry, investigation, and innovation in all areas of science, technology, and culture, as well as Islamic studies, by establishing research centers and encouraging researchers,

- 5 the complete elimination of imperialism and the prevention of foreign influence,

- 6 the elimination of all forms of despotism and autocracy and all attempts to monopolize power,

7 ensuring political and social freedoms within the framework of the law,

8 the participation of the entire people in determining their political, economic, social, and cultural destiny,

9 the abolition of all forms of undesirable discrimination and the provision of equitable opportunities for all, in both the material and intellectual spheres,

10 the creation of a correct administrative system and elimination of superfluous government organizations,

11 all round strengthening of the foundations of national defence to the utmost degree by means of universal military training for the sake of safeguarding the independence, territorial integrity, and the Islamic order of the country,

12 the planning of a correct and just economic system, in accordance with Islamic criteria in order to create welfare, eliminate poverty, and abolish all forms of deprivation with respect to food, housing, work, health care, and the provision of social insurance for all,

13 the attainment of self-sufficiency in scientific, technological, industrial, agricultural, and military domains, and other similar spheres,

14 securing the multifarious rights of all citizens, both women and men, and providing legal protection for all, as well as the equality of all before the law,

15 the expansion and strengthening of Islamic brotherhood and public cooperation among all the people,

16 framing the foreign policy of the country on the basis of Islamic criteria, fraternal commitment to all Muslims, and unsparing support to the mustad'afin of the world

4. All civil, penal financial, economic, administrative, cultural, military, political, and other laws and regulations must be based on Islamic criteria. This principle applies absolutely and generally to all Articles of the Constitution as well as to all other laws and regulations, and the fuqaha' of the Guardian Council are judges in this matter

5. During the Occultation of the Wali al-Asr (may God hasten his reappearance), the wilayah and leadership of the Ummah devolve upon the just ['adil] and pious [muttaqi] faqih, who is fully aware of the circumstances of his age, courageous, resourceful, and possessed of administrative ability, will assume the responsibilities of this office in accordance with Article 107.

6. In the Islamic Republic of Iran, the affairs of the country must be administered on the basis of public opinion expressed by the means of elections, including the election of the President, the representatives of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, and the members of Councils, or by means of referenda in matters specified in other Articles of this Constitution

7. In accordance with the command of the Qur'an contained in the verse ("Their affairs are by consultations among them" [42:38]) and ("Consult them in affairs" [3 159]), consultative bodies—such as the Islamic Consultative Assembly, the Provincial Councils, and the City, Region, District, and Village Councils and the likes of them—are the decision-making and administrative organs of the country

The nature of each of these councils, together with the manner of their formation, their jurisdiction, and scope of their duties and functions, is determined by the Constitution and laws derived from it

8. In the Islamic Republic of Iran, al-'amr bilma'ruf wa al-nahy 'an al munkar is a universal and reciprocal duty that must be fulfilled by the people with respect to one another, by the Government with respect to the people, and by the people with respect to the Government. The conditions, limits, and nature of this duty will be specified by law. (This is in accordance with the Qur'anic verse, "The believers, men and women, are guardians of one another, they enjoin the good and forbid the evil" [9 71])

9. In the Islamic Republic of Iran, the freedom, independence, unity, and territorial integrity of the country are inseparable from one another, and their preservation is the duty of the Government and all individual citizens. No individual, group, or authority, has the right to infringe in the slightest way upon the political, cultural, economic, and military independence or the territorial integrity of Iran under the pretext of exercising freedom. Similarly, no authority has the right to abrogate legitimate freedoms, not even by enacting laws and regulations for that purpose, under the pretext of preserving the independence and territorial integrity of the country.

10. Since the family is the fundamental unit of Islamic society, all laws, regulations, and pertinent programmes must tend to facilitate the formation of a family, and to safeguard its sanctity and the stability of family relations on the basis of the law and the ethics of Islam.

11. In accordance with the sacred verse of the Qur'an ("This your community is a single community, and I am your Lord, so worship Me" [21 92]), all Muslims form a single nation, and the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran has the duty of formulating its general policies with a view to cultivating the friendship and unity of all Muslim peoples, and it must constantly strive to bring about the political, economic, and cultural unity of the Islamic world.

12. The official religion of Iran is Islam and the Twelver Ja'fari school [in usual al-Din and fiqh], and this principle will remain eternally immutable. Other Islamic schools, including the Hanafi, Shafi'i, Maliki, Hanbali, and Zaydi, are to be accorded full respect, and their followers are free to act in accordance with their own jurisprudence in performing their religious rites. These schools enjoy official status in matters pertaining to religious education, affairs of personal status (marriage, divorce, inheritance, and wills) and related litigation in courts of law. In regions of the country where Muslims following any one of these schools of fiqh constitute the majority, local regulations, within the bounds of the jurisdiction of local councils, are to be in accordance with the respective school of fiqh, without infringing upon the rights of the followers of other schools.

13. Zoroastrian, Jewish, and Christian Iranians are the only recognized religious minorities, who, within the limits of the law, are free to perform their religious rites and ceremonies, and to act according to their own canon in matters of personal affairs and religious education

14. In accordance with the sacred verse, ("God does not forbid you to deal kindly and justly with those who have not fought against you because of your religion and who have not expelled you from your homes" [60 8]), the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran and all Muslims are duty bound to treat non-Muslims in conformity with ethical norms and the principles of Islamic justice and equity, and to respect their human rights This principle applies to all who refrain from engaging in conspiracy or activity against Islam and the Islamic Republic of Iran

THE OFFICIAL LANGUAGE, SCRIPT, CALENDAR, AND FLAG OF THE COUNTRY

15. The official language and script of Iran, the lingua franca of its people, is Persian Official documents, correspondence, and texts, as well as text-books, must be in this language and script However, the use of regional and tribal languages in the press and mass media, as well as for teaching of their literature in schools, is allowed in addition to Persian

16. Since the language of the Qur'an and Islamic texts and teachings is Arabic, and since Persian literature is thoroughly permeated by this language, it must be taught after elementary level, in all classes of secondary school and in all areas of study

17. The official calendar of the country takes as its point of departure the migration of the Prophet of Islam - God's peace and blessings upon him and his Family Both the solar and lunar Islamic calendars are recognized, but Government offices will function according to the solar calendar The official weekly holiday is Friday

18. The official flag of Iran is composed of green, white and red colours with the special emblem of the Islamic Republic, together with the motto "Allah-o Akbar"

THE RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE

19. All people of Iran, whatever the ethnic group or tribe to which they belong, enjoy equal rights, and colour, race, language, and the like, do not bestow any privilege

20. All citizens of the country, both men and women, equally enjoy the protection of the law and enjoy all human, political, economic, social, and cultural rights, in conformity with Islamic criteria

21. The Government must ensure the rights of women in all respects, in conformity with Islamic criteria, and accomplish the following goals

1 create a favorable environment for the growth of woman's personality and the restoration of her rights, both the material and intellectual,

2 the protection of mothers, particularly during pregnancy and childbearing, and the protection of children without guardians,

3 establishing competent courts to protect and preserve the family,

ECONOMY AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

43. The economy of the Islamic Republic of Iran, with its objectives of achieving the economic independence of the society, uprooting poverty and deprivation, and fulfilling human needs in the process of development while preserving human liberty, is based on the following criteria:

1. the provision of basic necessities for all citizens: housing, food, clothing, hygiene, medical treatment, education, and the necessary facilities for the establishment of a family,

2. ensuring conditions and opportunities of employment for everyone, with a view to attaining full employment, placing the means of work at the disposal of everyone who is able to work but lacks the means, in the form of cooperatives, through granting interest free loans or recourse to any other legitimate means that neither results in the concentration or circulation of wealth in the hands of a few individuals or groups, nor turns the Government into a major absolute employer. These steps must be taken with due regard for the requirements governing the general economic planning of the country at each stage of its growth,

3. the plan for the national economy, must be structured in such a manner that the form, content, and hours of work of every individual will allow him sufficient leisure and energy to engage, beyond his professional endeavour, in intellectual, political, and social activities leading to all-round development of his self, to take active part in leading the affairs of the country, improve his skills, and to make full use of his creativity,

4. respect for the right to choose freely one's occupation, refraining from compelling anyone to engage in a particular job, and preventing the exploitation of another's labor,

5. the prohibition of infliction of harm and loss upon others, monopoly, hoarding, usury, and other illegitimate and evil practices,

6. the prohibition of extravagance and wastefulness in all matters related to the economy, including consumption, investment, production, distribution, and services,

7. the utilization of science and technology, and the training of skilled personnel in accordance with the developmental needs of the country's economy,

8. prevention of foreign economic domination over the country's economy,

9 emphasis on increase of agricultural, livestock, and industrial production in order to satisfy public needs and to make the country self-sufficient and free from dependence

44. The economy of the Islamic Republic of Iran is to consist of three sectors State, cooperative, and private, and is to be based on systematic and sound planning

The State sector is to include all large-scale and mother industries, foreign trade, major minerals, banking, insurance, power generation, dams and large-scale irrigation networks, radio and television, post, telegraph and telephone services, aviation, shipping, roads, railroads and the like, all these will be publicly owned and administered by the State

The cooperative sector is to include cooperative companies and enterprises concerned with production and distribution, in urban and rural areas, in accordance with Islamic criteria

The private sector consists of those activities concerned with agriculture, animal husbandry, industry, trade, and services that supplement the economic activities of the State and cooperative sectors

Ownership in each of these three sectors is protected by the laws of the Islamic Republic, in so far as this ownership is in conformity with the other Articles of this Chapter, does not go beyond the bounds of Islamic law, contributes to the economic growth and progress of the country, and does not harm society

The [precise] scope of each of these sectors, as well as the regulations and conditions governing their operation, will be specified by law

45. Public wealth and property, such as uncultivated or abandoned land, mineral deposits, seas, lakes, rivers and other public waterways, mountains, valleys, forests, marshlands, natural forests, unenclosed pastureland, legacies without heirs, property of undetermined ownership, and public property recovered from usurpers, shall be at the disposal of the Islamic Government for it to utilize in accordance with the public interest. Law will specify detailed procedures for the utilization of each of the foregoing items

46. Everyone is the owner of the fruits of his legitimate business and labour, and no one may deprive another of the opportunity of business and work under the pretext of his right to ownership

47. Private ownership, legitimately acquired, is to be respected. The relevant criteria are determined by law

48. There must be no discrimination among the various provinces with regard to the exploitation of natural resources, utilization of public revenues, and distribution of economic activities among the various provinces and regions of the country, thereby ensuring that every region has access to the necessary capital and facilities in accordance with its needs and capacity for growth

49. The Government has the responsibility of confiscating all wealth accumulated through usury, usurpation, bribery, embezzlement, theft, gambling, misuse of endowments, misuse of Government contracts and transactions, the sale of uncultivated lands and other resources subject to public ownership, the operation of centers of corruption, and other illicit means and sources, and restoring it to its legitimate owner, and if no such owner can be identified, it must be entrusted to the public treasury. This rule must be executed by the Government with due care, after investigation and furnishing necessary evidence in accordance with the law of Islam.

50. The preservation of the environment, in which the present as well as the future generations have a right to flourishing social existence, is regarded as a public duty in the Islamic Republic. Economic and other activities that inevitably involve pollution of the environment or cause irreparable damage to it are therefore forbidden.

51. No form of taxation may be imposed except in accordance with the law. Provisions for tax exemption and reduction will be determined by law.

52. The annual budget of the country will be drawn up by the Government, in the manner specified by law, and submitted to the Islamic Consultative Assembly for discussion and approval. Any change in the figures contained in the budget will be in accordance with the procedures prescribed by law.

53. All sums collected by the Government will be deposited into the Government accounts at the central treasury, and all disbursements, within the limits of allocations approved, shall be made in accordance with law.

54. The National Accounting Agency is to be directly under the supervision of the Islamic Consultative Assembly. Its organization and mode of operation in Tehran and at the provincial capitals, are to be determined by law.

55. The National Accounting Agency will inspect and audit, in the manner prescribed by law, all the accounts of Ministries, Government institutions and companies as well as other organizations that draw, in any way, on the general budget of the country, to ensure that no expenditure exceeds the allocations approved and that all sums are spent for the specified purpose. It will collect all relevant accounts, documents, and records, in accordance with law, and submit to the Islamic Consultative Assembly a report for the settlement of each year's budget together with its own comments. This report must be made available to the public.

CHAPTER V

THE RIGHT OF NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

56. Absolute sovereignty over the world and man belongs to God, and it is He who has made man master of his own social destiny. No one can deprive man of this divine right, nor subordinate it to the vested interests of a particular individual or group. The people are to exercise this divine right in the manner specified in the following Articles.

57. The powers of Government in the Islamic Republic are vested in the legislature, the judiciary, and the executive powers, functioning under the supervision of the absolute wilayat al-'amr and the leadership of the Ummah, in accordance with the forthcoming articles of this Constitution. These powers are independent of each other.

58. The function of the legislature are to be exercised through the Islamic Consultative Assembly, consisting of the elected representatives of the people. Legislation approved by this body, after going through the stages specified in the Articles below, is communicated to the executive and the judiciary for implementation.

59. In extremely important economic, political, social, and cultural matters, the function of the legislature may be exercised through direct recourse to popular vote through a referendum. Any request for such direct recourse to public opinion must be approved by two-thirds of the members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly.

60. The functions of the executive, except in the matters that are directly placed under the jurisdiction of the leadership by the Constitution, are to be exercised by the President and the Ministers.

61. The function of the judiciary are to be performed by courts of justice, which are to be formed in accordance with the criteria of Islam, and are vested with the authority to examine and settle law suits, protect the rights of the public, dispense and enact justice, and implement the Divine limits [al-hudud al-'ilahiyyah].

CHAPTER VI

THE LEGISLATIVE POWERS

62. The Islamic Consultative Assembly is constituted by the representatives of the people elected directly and by secret ballot. The qualifications of voters and candidates, as well as the nature of election, will be specified by law.

63. The term of membership in the Islamic Consultative Assembly is four years. Elections for each term must take place before the end of the preceding term, so that the country is never without an Assembly.

64. There are to be two hundred seventy members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly which, keeping in view the human, political, geographic and other similar factors, may increase by not more than twenty for each ten-year period from the date of the national referendum of the year 1368 of the solar Islamic calendar.

The Zoroastrians and Jews will each elect one representative, Assyrian and Chaldean Christians will jointly elect one representative, and Armenian Christians in the north and those in the south of the country will each elect one representative.

The limits of the election constituencies and the number of representatives will be determined by law.

65. After the holding of elections, sessions of the Islamic Consultative Assembly are considered legally valid when two-thirds of the total number of members are present. Drafts and Bills will be approved in accordance with the code of procedure approved by it, except in cases where the Constitution has specified a certain quorum.

The consent of two-thirds of all members present is necessary for the approve of the code of procedure of the Assembly.

66. The manner of election of the Speaker and the Presiding Board of the Assembly, the number of committees and their term of office, and matters related to conducting the discussions and maintaining the discipline of the Assembly will be determined by the code of procedure of the Assembly.

67. Members of the Assembly must take the following oath at the first session of the Assembly and affix their signatures to its text:

"In the Name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful. In the presence of the Glorious Qur'an, I swear by God, the Exalted and Almighty, and undertake, swearing by my own honour as a human being, to protect the sanctity of Islam and guard the accomplishments of the Islamic Revolution of the Iranian people and the foundations of the Islamic Republic, to protect, as a just trustee, the honour bestowed upon me by the people, to observe piety in fulfilling my duties as people's representative, to remain always committed to the independence and honour of the country, to fulfil my duties towards the nation and the service of the people, to defend the Constitution, and to bear in mind, both in speech and writing and in the expression of my views, the independence of the country, the freedom of the people, and the security of their interests."

Members belonging to the religious minorities will swear by their own sacred books while taking this oath.

Members not attending the first session will perform the ceremony of taking the oath at the first session they attend.

68. In time of war and the military occupation of the country, elections due to be held in occupied areas or countrywide may be delayed for a specified period if proposed by the President of the Republic, and approved by three-fourths of the total members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, with the endorsement of the Guardian Council. If a new Assembly is not formed, the previous one will continue to function.

69. The deliberations of the Islamic Consultative Assembly must be open, and full minutes of them made available to the public by the radio and the official gazette. A closed session may be held in emergency conditions, if it is required for national security, upon the requisition of the President, one of the ministers, or ten members of the Assembly. Legislation passed at a closed session is valid only when approved by three-fourths of the members in the presence of the Guardian Council. After emergency conditions have ceased to exist, the minutes of such closed sessions, together with any legislation approved in them, must be made available to the public.

70. The President, his deputies and the Ministers have the right to participate in the open sessions of the Assembly either collectively or individually. They may also have their advisers accompany them. If the members of the Assembly deem it necessary, the Ministers are obliged to attend [Conversely], whenever they request it, their statements are to be heard.

71. The Islamic Consultative Assembly can establish laws on all matters, within the limits of its competence as laid down in the Constitution.

72. The Islamic Consultative Assembly cannot enact laws contrary to the usual and ahkam of the official religion of the country or to the Constitution. It is the duty of the Guardian Council to determine whether a violation has occurred, in accordance with Article 96.

73. The interpretation of ordinary laws falls within the competence of the Islamic Consultative Assembly. The intent of this Article does not prevent the interpretations that Judges may make in the course of cassation.

74. Government Bills are presented to the Islamic Consultative Assembly after receiving the approval of the Council of Ministers. Members' Bills may be introduced in the Islamic Consultative Assembly if sponsored by at least fifteen members.

75. Members' Bills and proposals and amendments to Governments Bills proposed by members that entail the reduction of the public income or the increase of public expenditure may be introduced in the Assembly only if means for compensating for the decrease in income or for meeting the new expenditure are also specified.

76. The Islamic Consultative Assembly has the right to investigate and examine all the affairs of the country.

77. International treaties, protocols, contracts, and agreements must be approved by the Islamic Consultative Assembly.

78. All changes in the boundaries of the country are forbidden, with the exception of minor amendments in keeping with the interests of the country, on condition that they are not unilateral, do not encroach on the independence and territorial integrity of the country, and receive the approval of four-fifths of the total members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly.

79. The proclamation of martial law is forbidden. In case of war or emergency conditions akin to war, the Government has the right to impose temporarily certain necessary restrictions, with the agreement of the Islamic Consultative Assembly. In no case can such restrictions last for more than thirty days, if the need for them persists beyond this limit, the Government must obtain new authorization for them from the Assembly.

80. The taking and giving of loans or grants-in-aid, domestic and foreign, by the Government, must be approved by the Islamic Consultative Assembly.

81. The granting of concessions to foreigners for the formation of companies or institutions dealing with commerce, industry, agriculture, services or mineral extraction, is absolutely forbidden.

82. The employment of foreign experts is forbidden, except in cases of necessity and with the approval of the Islamic Consultative Assembly

83. Government buildings and properties forming part of the national heritage cannot be transferred except with the approval of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, that, too, is not applicable in the case of irreplaceable treasures

84. Every representative is responsible to the entire nation and has the right to express his views on all internal and external affairs of the country

85. The right of membership is vested with the individual, and is not transferable to others. The Assembly cannot delegate the power of legislation to an individual or committee. But whenever necessary, it can delegate the power of legislating certain laws to its own committees, in accordance with Article 72. In such a case, the laws will be implemented on a tentative basis for a period specified by the Assembly, and their final approval will rest with the Assembly.

Likewise, the Assembly may, in accordance with Article 72, delegate to the relevant committees the responsibility for permanent approval of articles of association of organizations, companies, Government institutions, or organizations affiliated to the Government and or invest the authority in the Government. In such a case, the Government approvals must not be inconsistent with the principles and commandments of the official religion in the country and or the Constitution which question shall be determined by the Guardian Council in accordance with what is stated in Article 96. In addition to this, the Government approvals shall not be against the laws and other general rules of the country and, while calling for implementation, the same shall be brought to the knowledge of the Speaker of the Islamic Consultative Assembly for its study and indication that the approvals in question are not inconsistent with the aforesaid rules.

86. Members of the Assembly are completely free in expressing their views and casting their votes in the course of performing their duties as representatives, and they cannot be prosecuted or arrested for opinions expressed in the Assembly or votes cast in the course of performing their duties as representatives.

87. The President must obtain, for the Council of Ministers, after being formed and before all other business, a vote of confidence from the Assembly. During his incumbency, he can also seek a vote of confidence for the Council of Ministers from the Assembly on important and controversial issues.

88. Whenever at least one-fourth of the total members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly pose a question to the President, or any one member of the Assembly poses a question to a Minister on a subject relating to their duties, the President or the Minister is obliged to attend the Assembly and answer the question. This answer must not be delayed more than one month in the case of the President and ten days in the case of the Minister, except with an excuse deemed reasonable by the Islamic Consultative Assembly.

89. 1 Members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly can interpolate the Council of Ministers or an individual Minister in instances they deem necessary. Interpolations can be tabled if they bear the signatures of at least ten members. The Council of Ministers or interpolated Minister must be present in the Assembly within ten days after the tabling of the interpolation in order to answer it and seek a vote of confidence. If the Council of Ministers or the Minister concerned fails to attend the Assembly, the members who tabled the interpolation will explain their reasons, and the Assembly will declare a vote of no-confidence if it deems it necessary. If the Assembly does not pronounce a vote of confidence, the Council of Ministers or the Minister subject to interpolation is dismissed. In both cases, the Ministers subject to interpolation cannot become members of the next Council of Ministers formed immediately afterwards.

2 In the event at least one-third of the members of the Islamic Consultative Assembly interpolate the President concerning his executive responsibilities in relation with the executive power and the executive affairs of the country, the President must be present in the Assembly within one month after the tabling of the interpolation in order to give adequate explanations in regard to the matters raised. In the event, after hearing the statements of the opposing and favoring members and the reply of the President, two-thirds of the members of the Assembly declare a vote of no confidence, the same will be communicated to the Leadership for information and implementation of section (10) of Article 110 of the Constitution.

90. Whoever has a complaint concerning the work of the Assembly or the executive power, or the judicial power can forward his complaint in writing to the Assembly. The Assembly must investigate his complaint and give a satisfactory reply. In cases where the complaint relates to the executive or the judiciary, the Assembly must demand proper investigation in the matter and an adequate explanation from them, and announce the results within a reasonable time. In cases where the subject of the complaint is of public interest, the reply must be made public.

91. With a view to safeguard the Islamic ordinances and the Constitution, in order to examine the compatibility of the legislation passed by the Islamic Consultative Assembly with Islam, a council to be known as the Guardian Council is to be constituted with the following composition:

1 six 'adil fuqaha' conscious of the present needs and the issues of the day, to be selected by the Leader, and 2 six jurists, specializing in different areas of law, to be elected by the Islamic Consultative Assembly from among the Muslim jurists nominated by the Head of the judicial power.

92. Members of the Guardian Council are elected to serve for a period of six years, but during the first term, after three years have passed, half of the members of each group will be changed by lot and new members will be elected in their place.

93. The Islamic Consultative Assembly does not hold any legal status if there is no Guardian Council in existence, except for the purpose of approving the credentials of its members and the election of three six jurists on the Guardian Council

94. All legislation passed by the Islamic Consultative Assembly must be sent to the Guardian Council. The Guardian Council must review it within a maximum of ten days from its receipt with a view to ensuring its compatibility with the criteria of Islam and the Constitution. If it finds the legislation incompatible, it will return it to the Assembly for review. Otherwise the legislation will be deemed enforceable.

95. In cases where the Guardian Council deems ten days inadequate for completing the process of review and delivering a definite opinion, it can request the Islamic Consultative Assembly to grant an extension of the time limit not exceeding ten days.

96. The determination of compatibility of the legislation passed by the Islamic Consultative Assembly with the laws of Islam rests with the majority vote of the fuqaha' on the Guardian Council, and the determination of its compatibility with the Constitution rests with the majority of all the members of the Guardian Council.

97. In order to expedite the work, the members of the Guardian Council may attend the Assembly and listen to its debates when a Government Bill or a members' Bill is under discussion. When an urgent Government or members' Bill is placed on the agenda of the Assembly, the members of the Guardian Council must attend the Assembly and make their views known.

98. The authority of the interpretation of the Constitution is vested with the Guardian Council, which is to be done with the consent of three-fourths of its members.

99. The Guardian Council has the responsibility of supervising the elections of the Assembly of Experts for Leadership, the President of the Republic, the Islamic Consultative Assembly, and the direct recourse to popular opinion and referendum.

CHAPTER VII COUNCILS

100. In order to expedite social, economic, development, public health, cultural, and educational programs and facilitate other affairs relating to public welfare with the cooperation of the people according to local needs, the administration of each village, division, city, municipality, and province will be supervised by a council to be named the Village, Division, City, Municipality, or Provincial Council. Members of each of these councils will be elected by the people of the locality in question.

Qualifications for the eligibility of electors and candidates for these Councils, as well as their functions and powers, the mode of election, the jurisdiction of these Councils, the hierarchy of their authority, will be determined by law, in such a way as to preserve national unity, territorial integrity, the system of the Islamic Republic, and the sovereignty of the Central Government

101. In order to prevent discrimination in the preparation of programmes for the development and welfare of the provinces, to secure the cooperation of the people, and to arrange for the supervision of coordinated implementation of such programmes, a Supreme Council of the Provinces will be formed, composed of representatives of the Provincial Councils

Law will specify the manner in which this council is to be formed and the functions that it is to fulfil

102. The Supreme Council of the Provinces has the right within its jurisdiction, to draft bills and to submit them to the Islamic Consultative Assembly, either directly or through the Government. These Bills must be examined by the Assembly

103. Provincial Governors, city Governors, divisional Governors, and other officials appointed by the Government must abide by all decisions taken by the Councils within their jurisdiction

104. In order to ensure Islamic equity and cooperation in chalking out the programmes and to bring about the harmonious progress of all units of production, both industrial and agricultural, Councils consisting of the representatives of the workers, peasants, other employees, and managers, will be formed in educational and administrative units, units of service industries, and other units of a like nature, similar Councils will be formed, composed of representatives of the members of those units

The mode of the formation of these Councils and the scope of their functions and powers, are to be specified by law

105. Decisions taken by the Councils must not be contrary to the criteria of Islam and the laws of the country

106. The Councils may not be dissolved unless they deviate from their legal duties. The body responsible for determining such deviation, as well as the manner for dissolving the Councils and re-forming them, will be specified by law

Should a council have any objection to its dissolution, it has the right to appeal to a competent court, and the court is duty-bound to examine its complaint outside the docket sequence

THE LEADER OR LEADERSHIP COUNCIL

107. After the demise of the eminent marji' al-taqlid and great leader of the universal Islamic revolution, and founder of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Ayatullah al-'Uzma Imam Khomeini—quddisa sirruh al-sharif—who was recognized and accepted as marji' and Leader by a decisive majority of the people, the task of appointing the Leader shall be vested with the experts elected by the people. The experts will review and consult among themselves concerning all the fuqaha' possessing the qualifications specified in Articles 5 and 109. In the event they find one of them better versed in Islamic regulations, the subjects of the fiqh, or in political and social issues, or possessing general popularity or special prominence for any of the qualifications mentioned in Article 109, they shall elect him as the Leader. Otherwise, in the absence of such a superiority, they shall elect and declare one of them as the Leader. The Leader thus elected by the Assembly of Experts shall assume all the powers of the wilayat al-amr and all the responsibilities arising therefrom.

The Leader is equal with the rest of the people of the country in the eyes of law.

108. The law setting out the number and qualifications of the experts [mentioned in, the preceding article], the mode of their election, and the code of procedure regulating the sessions during the first term must be drawn up by the fuqaha' on the first Guardian Council, passed by a majority of votes and then finally approved by the Leader of the Revolution. The power to make any subsequent change or a review of this law, or approval of all the provisions concerning the duties of the experts is vested in themselves.

d the chief of the joint staff,

e the chief commander of the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps, f the supreme commanders of the armed forces,

g Resolving differences between the three wings of the armed forces and regulation of their relations

h Resolving the problems, which cannot be solved by conventional methods, through the Nation's Exigency Council

i Signing the decree formalizing the election of the President of the Republic by the people. The suitability of candidates for the Presidency of the Republic, with respect to the qualifications specified in the Constitution, must be confirmed before elections take place by the Guardian Council, and, in the case of the first term [of the Presidency], by the Leadership, j Dismissal of the President of the Republic, with due regard for the interests of the country, after the Supreme Court holds him guilty of the violation of his constitutional duties, or after a vote of the Islamic Consultative Assembly testifying to his incompetence on the basis of Article 89 of the Constitution k Pardoning or reducing the sentences of convicts, within the framework of Islamic criteria, on a recommendation [to that effect] from the Head of judicial power. The Leader may delegate part of his duties and powers to another person

111. Whenever the Leader becomes incapable of fulfilling his constitutional duties, or loses one of the qualifications mentioned in Articles 5 and 109, or it becomes known that he did not possess some of the qualifications initially, he will be dismissed. The authority of determination in this matter is vested with the experts specified in Article 108.

In the event of the death, or resignation or dismissal of the Leader, the experts shall take steps within the shortest possible time for the appointment of the new Leader. Till the appointment of the new Leader, a Council consisting of the President, head of the judicial power, and a faqih from the Guardian Council, upon the decision of the Nation's Exigency Council, shall temporarily take over all the duties of the Leader. In the event, during this period, any one of them is unable to fulfil his duties for whatsoever reason, another person, upon the decision of majority of fuqaha' in the Nation's Exigency Council shall be elected in his place.

This Council shall take action in respect of items 1, 3, 5, and 10, and sections d, e and f of item 6 of Article 110, upon the decision of three-fourths of the members of the Nation's Exigency Council.

Whenever the Leader becomes temporarily unable to perform the duties of leadership owing to his illness or any other incident, then during this period, the council mentioned in this Article shall assume his duties.

112. Upon the order of the Leader, the Nation's Exigency Council shall meet at any time the Guardian Council judges a proposed Bill of the Islamic Consultative Assembly to be against the principles of Shariah or the Constitution, and the Assembly is 'unable to meet the expectations of the Guardian Council. Also, the Council shall meet for consideration on any issue forwarded to it by the Leader and shall carry out any other responsibility as mentioned in this Constitution.

The permanent and changeable members of the Council shall be appointed by the Leader. The rules for the Council shall be formulated and approved by the Council members subject to the confirmation by the Leader.

THE EXECUTIVE POWER

113. After the office of Leadership, the President is the highest official in the country. His is the responsibility for implementing the Constitution and acting as the head of the executive, except in matters directly concerned with (the office of) the Leadership.

114. The President is elected for a four year term by the direct vote of the people. His re-election for a successive term is permissible only once.

115. The President must be elected from among religious and political personalities possessing the following qualifications:

Iranian origin, Iranian nationality, administrative capacity and resourcefulness, a good past-record, trustworthiness and piety, convinced belief in the fundamental principles of the Islamic Republic of Iran and the official madhhab of the country.

116. Candidates nominated for the post of President must declare their candidature officially. Law lays down the manner in which the President is to be elected.

117. The President is elected by an absolute majority of votes polled by the voters. But if none of the candidates is able to win such a majority in the first round, voting will take place a second time on Friday of the following week. In the second round only the two candidates who received greatest number of votes in the first round will participate. If, however, some of the candidates securing greatest votes in the first round withdraw from the elections, the final choice will be between the two candidates who won greater number of votes than all the remaining candidates.

118. Responsibility for the supervision of the election, of the President lies with the Guardian Council, as stipulated in Article 99. But before the establishment of the first Guardian Council, however, it lies with a supervisory body to be constituted by law.

119. The election of a new President must take place no later than one month before the end of the term of the outgoing President. In the interim period before the election of the new President and the end of the term of the outgoing President, the outgoing President will perform the duties of the President.

120. In case any of the candidates whose suitability is established in terms of the qualifications listed above should die within ten days before polling day, the elections will be postponed for two weeks. If one of the candidates securing greatest number of votes dies in the intervening period between the first and second rounds of voting, the period for holding (the second round of) the election will be extended for two weeks.

121. The President must take the following oath and affix his signature to it at a session of the Islamic Consultative Assembly in the presence of the head of the judicial power and the members of the Guardian Council

"In, the Name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful, I, as President, swear, in the presence of the Noble Qur'an and the people of Iran, by God, the Exalted and Almighty, that I will guard the official religion of the country, the order of the Islamic Republic and the Constitution of the country, that I will devote all my capacities and abilities to the fulfillment of the responsibilities that I have assumed, that I will dedicate myself to the service of the people, the honour of the country, the propagation of religion and morality, and the support of truth and justice, refraining from every kind of arbitrary behavior, that I will protect the freedom and dignity of all citizens and the rights that the Constitution has accorded the people, that in guarding the frontiers and the political, economic, and cultural independence of the country I will not shirk any necessary measure, that, seeking help from God and following the Prophet of Islam and the infallible Imams (peace be upon them), I will guard, as a pious and selfless trustee, the authority vested in me by the people as a sacred trust, and transfer it to whomever the people may elect after me "

122. The President, within the limits of his powers and duties, which he has by virtue of this Constitution or other laws, is responsible to the people, the Leader and the Islamic Consultative Assembly

123. The President is obliged to sign legislation approved by the Assembly or the result of a referendum, after the (related) legal procedures have been completed and it has been communicated to him. After signing, he must forward it to the responsible authorities for implementation

124. The President may have Deputies for the performance of his constitutional duties

With the approval of the President, the first Deputy of the President shall be vested with the responsibilities of administering the affairs of the Council of Ministers and coordination of functions of other Deputies

125. The President or his legal representative has the authority to sign treaties, protocols, contracts, and agreements concluded by the Iranian Government with other Governments, as well as agreements pertaining to international organizations, after obtaining the approval of the Islamic Consultative Assembly

126. The President is responsible for national planning and budget and State employment affairs and may entrust the administration of these to others

127. In special circumstances, subject to approval of the Council of Ministers the President may appoint one or more special representatives with specific powers. In such cases, the decisions of his representative(s) will be considered as the same as those of the President and the Council of Ministers.

128. The Ambassadors shall be appointed upon the recommendation of the Foreign Minister and approval of the President. The President signs the credentials of Ambassadors and receives the credentials presented by the ambassadors of the foreign countries.

129. The award of State decorations is a prerogative of the President.

130. The President shall submit his resignation to the Leader and shall continue performing his duties until his resignation is not accepted.

131. In case of death, dismissal, resignation, absence, or illness lasting longer than two months of the President, or when his term in office has ended and a new President has not been elected due to some impediments, or similar other circumstances, his first Deputy shall assume, with the approval of the Leader, the powers and functions of the President. The Council, consisting of the Speaker of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, head of the judicial power, and the first Deputy of the President, is obliged to arrange for a new President to be elected within a maximum period of fifty days. In case of death of the first Deputy to the President, or other matters which prevent him to perform his duties, or when the President does not have a first Deputy, the Leader shall appoint another person in his place.

132. During the period when the powers and responsibilities of the President are assigned to his first Deputy or the other person in accordance with Article 131, neither can the Ministers be interpolated nor can a vote of no-confidence be passed against them. Also, neither can any step be undertaken for a review of the Constitution, nor a national referendum be held.

133. Ministers will be appointed by the President and will be presented to the Assembly for a vote of confidence. With the change of Assembly, a new vote of confidence will not be necessary. The number of Ministers and the jurisdiction of each will be determined by law.

134. The President is the head of the Council of Ministers. He supervises the work of the Ministers and takes all necessary measures to coordinate the decisions of the Government. With the cooperation of the Ministers, he determines the programme and policies of the Government and implements the laws.

In the case of discrepancies, or interferences in the constitutional duties of the Government agencies, the decision of the Council of Ministers at the request of the President shall be binding provided it does not call for an interpretation of or modification in the laws.

The President is responsible to the Assembly for the actions of the Council of Ministers.

135. The Ministers shall continue in office unless they are dismissed or given a vote of no-confidence by the Assembly as a result of their interpolation, or a motion for a vote of no-confidence against them.

The resignation of the Council of Ministers, or that of each of them shall be submitted to the President, and the Council of Ministers shall continue to function until such time as the new Government is appointed

The President can appoint a caretaker for a maximum period of three months for the Ministries having no Minister

136. The President can dismiss the Ministers and in such a case he must obtain a vote of confidence for the new Minister(s) from the Assembly. In case half of the members of the Council of Ministers are changed after the Government has received its vote of confidence from the Assembly, the Government must seek a fresh vote of confidence from the Assembly

137. Each of the Ministers is responsible for his duties to the President and the Assembly, but in matters approved by the Council of Ministers as a whole, he is also responsible for the actions of the others

138. In addition to instances in which the Council of Ministers or a single Minister is authorized to frame procedures for the implementation of laws, the Council of Ministers has the right to lay down rules, regulations, and procedures for performing its administrative duties, ensuring the implementation of laws, and setting up administrative bodies. Each of the Ministers also has the right to frame regulations and issue circulars in matters within his jurisdiction and in conformity with the decisions of the Council of Ministers. However, the content of all such regulations must not violate the letter or the spirit of the law

The Government can entrust any portion of its task to the Commissions composed of some Ministers. The decisions of such Commissions within the rules will be binding after the endorsement of the President

The ratification and the regulations of the Government and the decisions of the Commissions mentioned under this Article shall also be brought to the notice of the Speaker of the Islamic Consultative Assembly while being communicated for implementation so that in the event he finds them contrary to law, he may send the same stating the reason for reconsideration by the Council of Ministers

139. The settlement, of claims relating to public and state property or the referral thereof to arbitration is in every case dependent on the approval of the Council of Ministers, and the Assembly must be informed of these matters. In cases where one party to the dispute is a foreigner, as well as in important cases that are purely domestic, the approval of the Assembly must also be obtained. Law will specify the important cases intended here

140. Allegations of common crimes against the President, his deputies, and the Ministers will be investigated in common courts of justice with the knowledge of the Islamic Consultative Assembly

141. The President, the Deputies to the President, Ministers, and Government employees cannot hold more than one Government position, and it is forbidden for them to hold any kind of additional post in institutions of which all or a part of the capital belongs to the Government or public institutions, to be a member of the Islamic Consultative Assembly, to practice the profession of attorney or legal adviser, or to hold the post of President, Managing Director, or membership of the Board of Directors of any kind of private company, with the exception of cooperative companies affiliated to the Government departments and institutions

Teaching positions in universities and research institutions are exempted from this rule

142. The assets of the Leader, the President, the Deputies to the President, and Ministers, as well as those of their spouses and offspring, are to be examined before and after their term of office by the head of the judicial power, in order to ensure they have not increased in a fashion contrary to law

143. The Army of the Islamic Republic of Iran is responsible for guarding the independence and territorial integrity of the country, as well as the order of the Islamic Republic

144. The Army of the Islamic Republic of Iran must be an Islamic Army, i.e., committed to Islamic ideology and the people, and must recruit into its service individuals who have faith in the objectives of the Islamic Revolution and are devoted to the cause of realizing its goals

145. No foreigner will be accepted into the Army or security forces of the country

146. The establishment of any kind of foreign military base in Iran, even for peaceful purposes, is forbidden

147. In time of peace, the Government must utilize the personnel and technical equipment of the Army in relief operations, and for educational and productive ends, and the Construction Jihad, while fully observing the criteria of Islamic justice and ensuring that such utilization does not harm the combat-readiness of the Army

148. All forms of personal use of military vehicles, equipment, and other means, as well as taking advantage of Army personnel as personal servants and chauffeurs or in similar capacities, are forbidden.

149. Promotions in military rank and their withdrawal take place in accordance with the law

150. The Islamic Revolution Guards Corps, organized in the early days of the triumph of the Revolution, is to be maintained so that it may continue in its role of guarding the Revolution and its achievements. The scope of the duties of this Corps, and its areas of responsibility, in relation to the duties and areas of responsibility of the other armed forces, are to be determined by law, with emphasis on brotherly cooperation and harmony among them

151. In accordance with the noble Qur'anic verse (Prepare against them whatever force you are able to muster, and horses ready for battle, striking fear into God's enemy and your enemy, and others beyond them unknown to you but known to God [8:60])

The Government is obliged to provide a programme of military training, with all requisite facilities, for all its citizens, in accordance with the Islamic criteria, in such a way that all citizens will always be able to engage in the armed defence of the Islamic Republic of Iran The possession of arms, however, requires the granting of permission by the competent authorities

CHAPTER X FOREIGN POLICY

152. The foreign policy of the Islamic Republic of Iran is based upon the rejection of all forms of domination, both the exertion of it and submission to it, the preservation of the independence of the country in all respects and its territorial integrity, the defence of the rights of all Muslims, non-alignment with respect to the hegemonist superpowers, and the maintenance of mutually peaceful relations with all non-belligerent States

153. Any form of agreement resulting in foreign control over the natural resources, economy, army, or culture of the country, as well as other aspects of the national life, is forbidden

154. The Islamic Republic of Iran has as its ideal human felicity throughout human society, and considers the attainment of independence, freedom, and rule of justice and truth to be the right of all people of the world Accordingly, while scrupulously refraining from all forms of interference in the internal affairs of other nations, it supports the just struggles of the mustad'afun against the mustakbirun in every corner of the globe

155. The Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran may grant political asylum to those who seek it unless they are regarded as traitors and saboteurs according to the laws of Iran

CHAPTER XI THE JUDICIARY

156. The judiciary is an independent power, the protector of the rights of the individual and society, responsible for the implementation of justice, and entrusted with the following duties

- 1 investigating and passing judgement on grievances, violations of rights, and complaints, the resolving of litigation, the settling of disputes, and the taking of all necessary decisions and measures in probate matters as the law may determine,

- 2 restoring public rights and promoting justice and legitimate freedoms,

- 3 supervising the proper enforcement of laws,

- 4 uncovering crimes, prosecuting, punishing, and chastising criminals, and enacting the penalties and provisions of the Islamic penal code,

- 5 taking suitable measures to prevent the occurrence of crime and to reform criminals

157. In order to fulfil the responsibilities of the judiciary power in all the matters concerning judiciary, administrative and executive areas, the Leader shall appoint a just Muijahid well versed in judiciary affairs and possessing prudence and administrative abilities as the head of the judiciary power for a period of five years who shall be the highest judicial authority

158. The head of the judiciary branch is responsible for the following

1 Establishment of the organizational structure necessary for the administration of justice commensurate with the responsibilities mentioned under Article 156

2 Drafting judiciary Bills appropriate for the Islamic Republic

3 Employment of just and worthy judges, their dismissal, appointment, transfer, assignment to particular duties, promotions and carrying out similar administrative duties, in accordance with the law

159. The courts of justice are the official bodies to which all grievances and complaints are to be referred. The formation of courts and their jurisdiction is to be determined by law

160. The Minister of Justice owes responsibility in all matters concerning the relationship between the judiciary, on the one hand, and the executive and legislative branches, on the other hand. He will be elected from among the individuals proposed to the President by the head of the judiciary branch.

The head of the judiciary may delegate full authority to the Minister of Justice in financial and administrative areas and for employment of personnel other than judges in which case the Minister of Justice shall have the same authority and responsibility as those possessed by the other Ministers in their capacity as the highest ranking Government executives

161. The Supreme Court is to be formed for the purpose of supervising the correct implementation of the laws by the courts, ensuring uniformity of judicial procedure, and fulfilling any other responsibilities assigned to it by law, on the basis of regulations to be established by the head of the judicial branch

162. The chief of the Supreme Court and the Prosecutor-General must both be just mujtahids well versed in judicial matters. They will be nominated by the head of the judiciary branch for a period of five years, in consultation with the Judges of the Supreme Court

163. The conditions and qualifications to be fulfilled by a Judge will be determined by law, in accordance with the criteria of fiqh

164. A Judge cannot be removed, whether temporarily or permanently, from the post he occupies except by trial and proof of his guilt, or in consequence of a violation entailing his dismissal. A Judge cannot be transferred or redesignated without his consent, except in cases when the interest of society necessitates it, that too, with the decision of the head of the judiciary branch after consultation with the chief of the Supreme Court and the Prosecutor-General. The periodic transfer and rotation of Judges will be in accordance with general regulations to be laid down by law

165. Trials are to be held openly and members of the public may attend without any restriction, unless the court determines that an open trial would be detrimental to public morality or discipline, or if in case of private disputes, both the parties request not to hold open hearing

166. The verdicts of courts must be well reasoned out and documented with reference to the Articles and principles of the law in accordance with which they are delivered

167. The Judge is bound to endeavor to judge each case on the basis of the codified law. In case of the absence of any such law, he has to deliver his judgement on the basis of authoritative Islamic sources and authentic fatawa. He, on the pretext of the silence of or deficiency of law in the matter, or its brevity or contradictory nature, cannot refrain from admitting and examining cases and delivering his judgement

168. Political and press offenses will be tried openly and in the presence of a jury, in courts of justice. The manner of the selection of the jury, its powers, and the definition of political offenses, will be determined by law in accordance with the Islamic criteria

169. No act or omission may be regarded as a crime with retrospective effect on the basis of a law framed subsequently

170. Judges of courts are obliged to refrain from executing statutes and regulations of the Government that are in conflict with the laws or the norms of Islam, or lie outside the competence of the executive power. Every one has the right to demand the annulment of any such regulation from the Court of Administrative Justice

171. Whenever an individual suffers moral or material loss as the result of a default or error of the Judge with respect to the subject matter of a case or the verdict delivered, or the application of a rule in a particular case, the defaulting Judge must stand surety for the reparation of that loss in accordance with the Islamic criteria, if it be a case of default. Otherwise, losses will be compensated for by the State. In all such cases, the repute and good standing of the accused will be restored

172. Military courts will be established by law to investigate crimes committed in connection with military or security duties by members of the Army, the Gendarmerie, the police, and the Islamic Revolution Guards Corps. They will be tried in public courts, however, for common crimes or crimes committed while serving the department of justice in executive capacity. The office of military prosecutor and the military courts form part of the judiciary and are subject to the same principles that regulate the judiciary

173. In order to investigate the complaints, grievances, and objections of the people with respect to Government officials, organs, and statutes, a court will be established to be known as the Court of Administrative Justice under the supervision of the head of the judiciary branch. The jurisdiction, powers, and mode of operation of this Court will be laid down by law

174. In accordance with the right of the judiciary to supervise the proper conducting of affairs and the correct implementation of laws by the administrative organs of the Government, an organization will be constituted under the supervision of the head of the judiciary branch to be known as the National General Inspectorate. The powers and duties of this organization will be determined by law.

CHAPTER XII

RADIO AND TELEVISION

175. The freedom of expression and dissemination of thoughts in the Radio and Television of the Islamic Republic of Iran must be guaranteed in keeping with the Islamic criteria and the best interests of the country.

The appointment and dismissal of the head of the Radio and Television of the Islamic Republic of Iran rests with the Leader. A Council consisting of two representatives each of the President, the head of the judiciary branch and the Islamic Consultative Assembly shall supervise the functioning of this organization.

The policies and the manner of managing the organization and its supervision will be determined by law.

CHAPTER XIII

SUPREME COUNCIL FOR NATIONAL SECURITY

176. In order to safeguarding the national interests and preserving the Islamic Revolution, the territorial integrity and national sovereignty, a Supreme Council for National Security presided over by the President shall be constituted to fulfil the following responsibilities:

1. Determining the defence and national security policies within the framework of general policies determined by the Leader.

2. Coordination of activities in the areas relating to politics, intelligence, social, cultural and economic fields in regard to general defence and security policies.

3. Exploitation of materialistic and intellectual resources of the country for facing the internal and external threats.

The Council shall consist of heads of three branches of the Government, chief of the Supreme Command Council of the Armed Forces, the officer in charge of the planning and budget affairs, two representatives nominated by the Leader, Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Interior, and Information, a Minister related with the subject, and the highest ranking officials from the Armed Forces and the Islamic Revolution's Guards Corps.

Commensurate with its duties, the Supreme Council for National Security shall form Sub-councils such as Defence Sub-council and National Security Sub-council. Each Sub-council will be presided over by the President or a member of the Supreme Council for National Security appointed by the President.

The scope of authority and responsibility of the Sub-councils will be determined by law and their organizational structure will be approved by the Supreme Council for National Defence

The decisions of the Supreme Council for National Security shall be effective after the confirmation by the Leader

CHAPTER XIV

THE REVISION OF THE CONSTITUTION

177. The revision of the Constitution of the Islamic Republic of Iran, whenever needed by the circumstances, will be done in the following manner

The Leader issues an edict to the President after consultation with the Nation's Exigency Council stipulating the amendments or additions to be made by the Council for Revision of the Constitution which consists of

- 1 Members of the Guardian Council
- 2 Heads of the three branches of the Government
- 3 Permanent members of the Nation's Exigency Council

CONSTITUTION OF IRELAND

{Adopted on 1 July 1937}

PREAMBLE

In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, from Whom is all authority and to Whom, as our final end, all actions both of men and States must be referred,

We, the people of Ireland, humbly acknowledging all our obligations to our Divine Lord, Jesus Christ,

Who sustained our fathers through centuries of trial,

Gratefully remembering their heroic and unremitting struggle to regain the rightful independence of our Nation,

And seeking to promote the common good, with due observance of Prudence, Justice and Charity, so that the dignity and freedom of the individual may be assured, true social order attained, the unity of our country restored, and concord established with other nations,

Do hereby adopt, enact, and give to ourselves this Constitution

CHAPTER I THE NATION

1. Sovereign Rights

The Irish nation hereby affirms its inalienable, indefeasible, and sovereign right to choose its own form of Government, to determine its relations with other nations, and to develop its life, political, economic and cultural, in accordance with its own genius and traditions

2. Territory

The national territory consists of the whole island of Ireland, its islands and the territorial seas

3. Extent of Application of Laws

Pending the re-integration of the national territory, and without prejudice to the right of Parliament and Government established by this Constitution to exercise jurisdiction over the whole of that territory, the laws enacted by that Parliament shall have the like area and extent of application as the laws of Ireland and the like extra-territorial effect

THE STATE

4. Name of the State

The name of the State is Ireland

5. State Principles

Ireland is a sovereign, independent, democratic State

6. Popular Sovereignty, Rule of Law

(1) All powers of Government, legislative, executive and judicial, derive, under God, from the people, whose right it is to designate the rulers of the State and, in final appeal, to decide all questions of national policy, according to the requirements of the common good

(2) These powers of Government are exercisable only by or on the authority of the organs of State established by this Constitution

7. Flag

The national flag is the tricolor of green, white and orange

8. Language

(1) The Irish language as the national language is the first official language

(2) The English language is recognized as a second official language

(3) Provision may, however, be made by law for the exclusive use of either of the said languages for any one or more official purposes, either throughout the State or in any part thereof

9. Citizenship

(1) On the coming into operation of this Constitution any person who was a citizen of Ireland immediately before the coming into operation of this Constitution shall become and be a citizen of Ireland

(2) The future acquisition and loss of Irish nationality and citizenship shall be determined in accordance with law

(3) No person may be excluded from Irish nationality and citizenship by reason of the sex of such person

(2) Fidelity to the nation and loyalty to the State are fundamental political duties of all citizens

10. Natural Resources

(1) All natural resources, including the air and all forms of potential energy, within the jurisdiction of Parliament and Government established by this Constitution and all royalties and franchises within that jurisdiction belong to the State subject to all estates and interests therein for the time being lawfully vested in any person or body

(2) All land and all mines, minerals and waters which belonged to Ireland immediately before the coming into operation of this Constitution belong to the State to the same extent as they then belonged to Ireland

(3) Provision may be made by law for the management of the property which belongs to the State by virtue of this Article and for the control of the alienation, whether temporary or permanent, of that property

(4) Provision may also be made by law for the management of land, mines, minerals and waters acquired by the State after the coming into operation of this Constitution and for the control of the alienation, whether temporary or permanent, of the land, mines, minerals and waters so acquired

11. Fund

All revenues of the State from whatever source arising shall, subject to such exception as may be provided by law, form one fund, and shall be appropriated for the purposes and in the manner and subject to the charges and liabilities determined and imposed by law

CHAPTER III THE PRESIDENT

12. Election

(1) There shall be a President of Ireland, hereinafter called the President, who shall take precedence over all other persons in the State and who shall exercise and perform the powers and functions conferred on the President by this Constitution and by law

(2.1) The President shall be elected by direct vote of the people

(2.2) Every citizen who has the right to vote at an election for members of the House of Representatives shall have the right to vote at an election for President

(2.3) The voting shall be by secret ballot and on the system of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote

(3.1) The President shall hold office for seven years from the date upon which he enters upon his office, unless before the expiration of that period he dies, or resigns, or is removed from office, or becomes permanently incapacitated, such incapacity being established to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court consisting of not less than five judges

(3 2) A person who holds, or who has held, office as President, shall be eligible for re-election to that office once, but only once

(3 3) An election for the office of President shall be held not later than, and not earlier than the sixtieth day before, the date of the expiration of the term of office of every President, but in the event of the removal from office of the President or of his death, resignation, or permanent incapacity established as aforesaid (whether occurring before or after he enters upon his office), an election for the office of President shall be held within sixty days after such event

(4 1) Every citizen who has reached his thirty-fifth year of age is eligible for election to the office of President

(4 2) Every candidate for election, not a former or retiring President, must be nominated either by

(i) not less than twenty persons, each of whom is at the time a member of one of the Houses of Parliament or

(ii) by the Councils of not less than four administrative Counties (including County Boroughs) as defined by law

(4 3) No person and no such Council shall be entitled to subscribe to the nomination of more than one candidate in respect of the same election

(4 4) Former or retiring Presidents may become candidates on their own nomination

(4 5) Where only one candidate is nominated for the office of President it shall not be necessary to proceed to a ballot for his election

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Article, elections for the office of President shall be regulated by law

(6 1) The President shall not be a member of either House of Parliament

(6 2) If a member of either House of Parliament be elected President, he shall be deemed to have vacated his seat in that House

(6 3) The President shall not hold any other office or position of emolument

(7) The first President shall enter upon his office as soon as may be after his election, and every subsequent President shall enter upon his office on the day following the expiration of the term of office of his predecessor or as soon as may be thereafter or, in the event of his predecessor's removal from office, death, resignation, or permanent incapacity established as provided by section (3), as soon as may be after the election

(8) The President shall enter upon his office by taking and subscribing publicly, in the presence of members of both Houses of Parliament, of Judges of the Supreme Court and of the High Court, and other public personages, the following declaration

"In the presence of Almighty God I do solemnly and sincerely promise and declare that I will maintain the Constitution of Ireland and uphold its laws, that I will fulfill my duties faithfully and conscientiously in accordance with the Constitution and the law, and that I will dedicate my abilities to the service and welfare of the people of Ireland May God direct and sustain me "

(9) The President shall not leave the State during his term of office save with the consent of the Government (10 1) The President may be impeached for stated misbehavior.

(10 2) The charge shall be preferred by either of the Houses of Parliament, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of this section

(10 3) A proposal to either House of Parliament to prefer a charge against the President under this section shall not be entertained unless upon a notice of motion in writing signed by not less than thirty members of that House

(10 4) No such proposal shall be adopted by either of the Houses of Parliament save upon a resolution of that House supported by not less than two-thirds of the total membership thereof

(10 5) When a charge has been preferred by either House of Parliament, the other House shall investigate the charge, or cause the charge to be investigated

(10 6) The President shall have the right to appear and to be represented at the investigation of the charge

(10 7) If, as a result of the investigation, a resolution be passed supported by not less than two-thirds of the total membership of the House of Parliament by which the charge was investigated, or caused to be investigated, declaring that the charge preferred against the President has been sustained and that the misbehavior, the subject of the charge, was such as to render him unfit to continue in office, such resolution shall operate to remove the President from his office

(11 1) The President shall have an official residence in or near the City of Dublin

(11 2) The President shall receive such emoluments and allowances as may be determined by law

(11 3) The emoluments and allowances of the President shall not be diminished during his term of office

13. Functions

(1 1) The President shall, on the nomination of the House of Representatives, appoint the Prime Minister

(1 2) The President shall, on the nomination of the Prime Minister with the previous approval of the House of Representatives, appoint the other members of the Government

(1 3) The President shall, on the advice of the Prime Minister, accept the resignation or terminate the appointment of any member of the Government

(2 1) the House of Representatives shall be summoned and dissolved by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister

(2 2) The President may in his absolute discretion refuse to dissolve the House of Representatives on the advice of a Prime Minister who has ceased to retain the support of a majority in the House of Representatives

(2 3) The President may at any time, after consultation with the Council of State, convene a meeting of either or both of the Houses of Parliament

(3 1) Every Bill passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of Parliament shall require the signature of the President for its enactment into law

(3 2) The President shall promulgate every law made by Parliament

(4) The supreme command of the Defense Forces is hereby vested in the President

(5 1) The exercise of the supreme command of the Defense Forces shall be regulated by law

(5 2) All commissioned officers of the Defense Forces shall hold their commissions from the President

(6) The right of pardon and the power to commute or remit punishment imposed by any court exercising criminal jurisdiction are hereby vested in the President, but such power of commutation or remission may, except in capital cases, also be conferred by law on other authorities

(7 1) The President may, after consultation with the Council of State, communicate with the Houses of Parliament by message or address on any matter of national or public importance

(7 2) The President may, after consultation with the Council of State, address a message to the Nation at any time on any such matter

(7 3) Every such message or address must, however, have received the approval of the Government

(8 1) The President shall not be answerable to either House of Parliament or to any court for the exercise and performance of the powers and functions of his office or for any act done or purporting to be done by him in the exercise and performance of these powers and functions

(8 2) The behavior of the President may, however, be brought under review in either of the Houses of Parliament for the purposes of Article 12 (10), or by any court, tribunal or body appointed or designated by either of the Houses of Parliament for the investigation of a charge under Article 12 (10)

(9) The powers and functions conferred on the President by this Constitution shall be exercisable and performable by him only on the advice of the Government, save where it is provided by this Constitution that he shall act in his absolute discretion or after consultation with or in relation to the Council of State, or on the advice or nomination of, or on receipt of any other communication from, any other person or body

(10) Subject to this Constitution, additional powers and functions may be conferred on the President by law

(11) No power or function conferred on the President by law shall be exercisable or performable by him save only on the advice of the Government.

14. Absence of the President

(1) In the event of the absence of the President, or his temporary incapacity, or his permanent incapacity established as provided by Article 12

(3) hereof, or in the event of his death, resignation, removal from office, or failure to exercise and perform the powers and functions of his office or any of them, or at any time at which the office of President may be vacant, the powers and functions conferred on the President by or under this Constitution shall be exercised and performed by a Commission constituted as provided in section (2) of this Article.

(2 1) The Commission shall consist of the following persons, namely, the Chief Justice, the Chairman of the House of Representatives, and the Chairman of the Senate

(2 2) The President of the High Court shall act as a member of the Commission in the place of the Chief Justice on any occasion on which the office of Chief Justice is vacant or on which the Chief Justice is unable to act

(2 3) The Deputy Chairman of the House of Representatives shall act as a member of the Commission in the place of the Chairman of the House of Representatives on any occasion on which the office of Chairman of the House of Representatives is vacant or on which the said Chairman is unable to act.

(2 4) The Deputy Chairman of the Senate shall act as a member of the Commission in the place of the Chairman of the Senate on any occasion on which the office of Chairman of the Senate is vacant or on which the said Chairman is unable to act

(3) The Commission may act by any two of their number and may act notwithstanding a vacancy in their membership

(4) The Council of State may by a majority of its members make such provision as to them may seem meet for the exercise and performance of the powers and functions conferred on the President by or under this Constitution in any contingency which is not provided for by the foregoing provisions of this

(5 1) The provisions of this Constitution which relate to the exercise and performance by the President of the powers and functions conferred on him by or under this Constitution shall subject to the subsequent provisions of this section apply to the exercise and performance of the said powers and functions under this article

(5 2) In the event of the failure of the President to exercise or perform any power or function which the President is by or under this Constitution required to exercise or perform within a specified time, the said power or function shall be exercised or performed under this article, as soon as may be after the expiration of the time so specified.
